To Fight Inflation

(Roosevelt Price Message, Page 30.)

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

Congress today is expected to receive legislation carrying out a Presidential request for broad authority to combat inflationary price increases "threatening to undermine our defense effort."

In a message to Congress yesterday Mr. Roosevelt urged a prompt grant of power to the Government to establish ceilings for prices, rents and installment credit terms and to purchase materials and commodities whenever necessary "to make ceiling prices effective."

The President, comparing spiraling prices of recent months with the period prior to American entry into the World War, said, "The facts today are frighteningly similar."

Meet With Henderson

Legislation embodying the President's price control recommendations will be offered by Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, acting head of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, and Representative Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

The two committee chairmen, joined by Senate Majority Leader Barkley and House Majority Leader McCormack, conferred late yesterday with Price Administrator Leon Henderson on last-minute suggestions for revision of the bill, but declined any comment on the session beyond the announcement that the measure is likely to be introduced today.

It is believed, however, that the bill includes a strong bid for support of Southern legislators who have been hostile to price control in the form of a provision that the ceiling on cotton prices, and possibly other farm products, cannot be fixed below parity.

Fight for Curbs Seen

Another provision of the bill is understood to call for creation of a three-judge court of review, with machinery for receiving and adjusting complaints against specific orders of the control agency.

Congressional comment on the President's message yesterday revealed broad support for the general principle of price control, with indications pointing to a sharp fight over the type of agency to administer the price regulations.

If the Administration bill carries no restriction on the President's power to delegate the price-control authority or specifically designates Henderson and his agency to handle the job a long debate is in prospect.

Several Senators who believe some form of price-control legislation essential said yesterday they would resist any move for "one-man control" and demand establishment of a board representing several of the Federal agencies most closely concerned with price trends.

Lesser Evil, Says Adams

Publication of the President's message was followed by an abrupt decline of commodity prices, led by cotton. An Associated Press dispatch from New York reported that cotton prices plunged as much as

What About Aid To Britain Now?

The German timetable has been slowed up by unexpected Russian resistance. Does this mean America can relax on aid to Britain? Or should we use this breathing spell to increase our aid against the ever-possible day of German victory over Russia? Which policy do American voters deem wiser? Valiant Monkey Wins Ovation In Battle With Elements, Captor

"HERE I AM, BOYS!"—Sea-going simian pulls himself up the seawall at Hains Point, gazes at his pursuers before diving back into the Potomac. (Picture-Story On Page 12.)

The strong wind and rain storm struck the Potomac, raising waves nearly 3 feet high, but the old nameless monkey with the frightened eyes and iron heart feared the men on the Hains Point seawall more than the river, and turned in epic attempt to make the Virginia shore.

Two hours earlier, which was just before noon yesterday, Elmer Wiseman, Negro, thin-faced and worried because he is the champion monkey catcher at the National Institute of Health's laboratory, Twenty-fifth and E Streets Northwest, had shinned down from the swamp willow tree in East Potomac Park. Holding his net, he regarded the tree top where the monkey sat.

"I'm not going to break my neck after that ——— monkey any more. That tree's brittle."

Two others, Jerry Wilson and Leonard Price, up the tree, had relaxed with their nets.

It had been like chasing a man on a flying trapeze. They had sat on boughs, swishing their nets and dangling two fishing poles. R. W. Heinbuck had brought them these from the golf course where he works. They had climbed up and down, across, around, and through the tree a dozen times. When they climbed low the monkey went high and when they climbed high the monkey went low. For an hour it was like that.

Leaps Into River

But at about 1 p. m., the monkey leaped to an adjoining tree, then swung back, paws flashing too fast to see, to its former tree. A whoop arose from the crowd and, before the eye could get it, the monkey bounded on to the grass and everybody leaped aside.

It then struck the wet sidewalk, where the rising river was splashing over the wall, and in a leap of 20 feet dived, with paws extended in the best of form.

"Now he's drowned," a woman cried.

Children climbed the iron guardrail and the men and women leaned far over it, staring at the river. It must have been 30 seconds before the monkey's head appeared, 15 feet from the place it had hit.

A mass cry: "He's swimming, he's swimming! Monkeys can swim!" Everybody was relieved because the monkey was game.

Fishermen along the river, beginning on Monday, had called police, saying a monkey was staring at

Roosevelt For Modified War Building

35-Million-Dollar Traffic Headache Feared in Present Plan

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The problem of getting 40,000 persons to and from the proposed 35 million dollar War Department Building in Arlington County, Va., has so concerned President Roosevelt that, with his blessing, Federal officials have taken steps to modify drastically original plans for the structure, it was learned last night.

The President yesterday conferred with Harold D. Smith, his budget director, and Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The President was told, it was learned, that location of the huge building, as proposed, on a portion of the old Arlington Experimental Farm just west of the Virginia approaches to the Memorial Bridge, would create in both Virginia and the District a "terrific" traffic problem.

Traffic conditions would be so bad, it was said, that it would be necessary to stagger over a two-hour period the working hours of the 40,000 who would be employed in the building.

Even with staggered hours, some Federal officials believe, traffic con-

Painter Sought In Attempted Attack on Girl, 4

A 4-year-old girl was assaulted a block from police headquarters last night, and police were scouring the area for her alleged assailant, a 57-year-old unemployed housepainter, recently discharged from Occoquan Workhouse.

The child was invited to go for an ice cream cone by her assailant, who lured her into an alley in the rear of the 300 block of D Street Northwest en route to the store and attempted to rape her, police said.

She ran screaming into the house after she had been attacked. Her mother immediately rushed to police headquarters, Capt. Ira Keck, acting chief of detectives, sent every available plainclothesman on the case.

The girl was taken to Casualty Hospital and later removed to Gallinger Hospital.

U. S. Tightens Curb On Job Transfers

The Civil Service Commission yesterday acted to close a loophole in the recent restrictions against job transfers for Federal defense employes.

2 Added to Death Toll

Showers Put Off Heat for a Day, But More of Same Is on the Way

Heavy showers brought lower temperatures but little relief from the humidity yesterday as two more deaths were added to the toll taken by the extreme heat which passed early in the week.

The dead were John W. Davis, jr., 22, 411 G Street Southeast, and Robert Hoover, jr., 1-year-old son of Robert Hoover, Carmody Hills, Md. Both died at Providence Hospital Tuesday of ailments induced by the hot weather, physicians said.

Treated at Emergency Hospital yesterday for heat collapse were George Hancock, 45, of 1704 First Street Northwest, and Harry Williams, 17, of 1706 Seventeenth Street Northwest.

Despite the toll of victims, the Weather Bureau reported that the highest temperature yesterday was 87 at 1:30 p. m. Following the heavy shower, the mercury dropped to 77 at 3:30 p. m.

High humidity percentages throughout the day reached a peak at 4:30 p. m., when 93 per cent was registered.

The forecast for today is a high of 95, with another thunderstorm in the afternoon.

Fairfax, Va., was without electricity for about half an hour in yesterday's thunderstorm when a tree fell across power lines. Repairmen of the Virginia Public Service Co. repaired the damage in a few minutes.

America Angered

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States called Japan to immediate account yesterday for the bombing of an American gunboat in China.

The American Government was plainly angry. The bombing was treated at the State Department as a major incident, counteraction being even swifter than in the bombing of the gunboat Panay in December, 1937, which cost two American lives.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, at the evident direction of President Roosevelt, implied that he did not consider the bombing to be an accident on the part of the Japanese. The incident appeared last night to have injected a new and even more serious note into the economic warfare with the Tokyo government that began last week when Japanese troops occupied Indo-China.

Nomura Called on Carpet

Welles made strong representations to the Japanese Ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, immediately after receipt of official word that a flight of 26 Japanese warplanes had dropped bombs which, while causing no casualties, damaged the stern superstructure of the U. S. gunboat Tutuila, of the Yangtse River patrol, and narrowly missed the American Embassy at Chungking.

Welles first discussed the incident with the President and then summoned Nomura to the State Department for an unscheduled interview.

Panay Action Recalled

Later, at a press conference, the Acting Secretary would not disclose the exact nature of his representations to Nomura, but he underscored the fact that they were immediate.

In addition, Welles emphasized that both the embassy and the moorage of the Tutuila were on the opposite side of the Yangtze River from the City of Chungking, which was the target yesterday of a seven-hour Japanese air raid, the heaviest ever administered to the much-bombed Chinese capital.

Welles refused to say whether the United States had demanded in-

English 'Typhoon' Will Sweep the Skies

R. A. F. Will Start Super-Blitz About Sept. 1, Briton Says; Describes New Wonder Plane

Copyright by New York Times

New York, July 30.—Great Britain's air offensive against Germany will "really start" about September 1, when the nights are longer, and the Nazis "will have to invent a new word for blitz" when it begins, Noel Monks, air correspondent of the London Daily Mail, who recently arrived from England, declared today.

Monks was an accredited correspondent with the Royal Air Force in France in the early stages of the war and subsequently has covered the air effort in England.

Referring to the coming big R. A. F. offensive on Germany, he asserted in an interview here that "what Germany did to us last winter was nothing to what we are going to do."

"Where we sent out a dozen bombers last winter we will send out 200," he said. He emphasized, however, that in the official air ministry view "there is not such word as reprisal," adding that all British raids were part of a long-range plan.

Describing the rise in strength of the R. A. F. as "fantastic," Monks said that where one Spitfire would go up into the air to intercept 14 raiding Heinkels last year, one now sees at the same air field 500 fighters preparing to accompany hundreds of bombers over France in one day. England has about achieved parity in the number of fighting planes, he added.

He said the British had a new fighter in production which will "absolutely revolutionize air warfare." The new plane, the Typhoon, "can walk past a Spitfire," he said, "and our new Spitfire can do well over 400 miles per hour." He praised the maneuverability, its altitude range and particularly its heavy fire power. "Nothing can live against this plane," he declared. "It will sweep the skies."

There is a move under way to have the engine for the Typhoon mass produced in the United States, Monks disclosed. He called this new engine, the

Nazis Say Soviet And Fleet Craft Simultaneously Bombed Norway

By the Associated Press

British-Russian offensive action in the Arctic region was reported last night by the Germans and the possibility was thus raised that the Royal Navy had entered the far northern struggle in an effort to relieve the Red armies protecting Leningrad by creating a major diversion in Nazi-held Norway.

Possible, too, but perhaps not so plausible was that the British intended to make a major assault on German positions in Norway while the Nazis were busy with the Russians.

Berlin declared that 28 British planes which had taken off from an aircraft carried in the Arctic Ocean were shot down in air combat and by antiaircraft guns over northern Norway in an attempt to attack a northern Norwegian port (identified in a United Press dispatch as Kirkenen, 90 miles from Murmansk), and that two German planes had been lost in the engagement.

Moreover, the Germans declared that the British had struck simultaneously with an attack by Soviet bombers on northern Norwegian territory.

Conflicting Claims.

Afield, the Nazis claimed that Leningrad, one of their three major objectives in the Russian campaign, was apparently caught in a fatal trap and that a major break-through at the Smolensk salient toward Moscow, objective No. 1, was now imminent.

The Russians—and this, too, was unofficial—offered an altogether different picture, one of continuing Red counterattacks which were declared not only to have broken the Nazi offensives generally but to have turned them in some areas into costly forced retirements.

Reliable private advices received by the Associated Press in New York stated that the German high command expected the fall of Leningrad at any time.

Official reports from both sides were full of the heavy restraint that sometimes foreshadows announcements of the utmost importance.

"Stubborn" Red Resistance

The Nazi war bulletin spoke only of continuing and futile Russian attempts to relieve Red forces said to be encircled at the center about Smolensk, and dismissed operations elsewhere with the old description: "According to plan."

Yesterday's Soviet communique offered only the bare information that there was "continued stubborn fighting" in the Nevel-Smolensk area and about Zhitomir in the Ukraine, although reporting the kind of heavy and continuing Red aerial action which ordinarily supports offensive rather than defensive actions.

Again this morning, the official Soviet war bulletin spoke only of heavy action at the center and below Leningrad, reporting heavy German losses.

Complete smashing "a few days ago" of a motorized infantry regiment of German storm troopers in the Smolensk area was credited to the Red army. More than 2,000 of its members were killed or wounded and several hundred captured, the Russians asserted.

Nazi Strength Gains 5-Fold, Senate Told

Peril Greater Now, Thomas Says as Troop Retention Fight Opens

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

An Administration spokesman opened the Senate fight over the service extension bill yesterday with the statement that Germany's military might has multiplied nearly five times since the war's start and that such power endangers the United States.

Speaking before packed galleries sprinkled with khaki-clad selectees, Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, outlined the Administration's case for swift passage of the measure. He told the Senate that Hitler's legions now number 260 divisions as compared with but 55 two years ago.

Senate debate on the proposal to hold in selectees, reservists and National Guardsmen indefinitely "because the national interest is imperiled" opened a few minutes after it was approved by the House Military Affairs Committee. The measure was sent to the House floor for consideration next week by a 15-to-7 vote.

Seasoned by Battle

The increasing tension in the Far East, meanwhile, appeared to have brightened the bill's chances in the House. Speaker Rayburn, who a few weeks ago predicted the proposal to hold in the selectees would not pass, said yesterday that increasing support indicated House approval of the measure next week.

"I think the sentiment for keeping selectees in service is much stronger now than it was a few days ago," he told reporters. "Events abroad—especially what Japan has been doing—have caused this, I believe."

Senator Thomas, floor manager of the controversial bill, responded to opposition demands for a bill of particulars as to the "increasing peril" cited by President Roosevelt and Army chiefs as justifying its

Hitler's Angel Has 3 Millions In N. Y. Bank

By M. J. Racusin
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, July 30.—Hidden in the tides of economic warfare now surging over the world, the New York Herald Tribune has discovered that Fritz Thyssen, the German industrialist who was Adolf Hitler' original patron a decade ago, has three million dollars in American cash salted away in the bank vaults of downtown New York.

In the American colony of Thyssen enterprises, perhaps the most interesting is the Union Banking Corporation, 39 Broadway, nominal guardian of the three million dollars cache, all in United States currency—a sort of nest egg for Thyssen or perhaps some of his high-placed Nazi friends when the present troublous days are over.

Real Ownership Is Mystery

Among other Thyssen interests in New York are half a dozen corporations engaged in the shipping, export and import trades, centering chiefly about the coal and steel industries and operating under the wing of the Union Banking Corporation. These organizations did a thriving business in rolling up dollars for Thyssen in years past, but have been brought virtually to a standstill during the last year by the war.

One of the most fascinating aspects of this story is the mystery surrounding the real ownership of the Thyssen fortune. At the moment, of course, no one can get at this Thyssen nest egg, because it is part of the $4,500,000,000 foreign assets frozen by the United States Government since Adolf Hitler's Moscow (Thursday), July 31.—Premier Joseph Stalin last night gave Harry L. Hopkins a personal message for President Roosevelt assuring him the Russians "will play their role in crushing Hitler," and thanking him for proffered United States aid in equipment and supplies for the Red army.

Hopkins arrived by plane from London yesterday and visited Stalin at the Kremlin.

On behalf of the President the lend-lease administrator expressed admiration for the Soviet stand against Germany, and said the United States intended to aid Russia both with immediate and long-term deliveries of war supplies.

"We discussed problems of supply including types and quantity of materials that can be delivered to the U. S. S. R.," Hopkins said later. "I cannot presently speak of the details or quantities.

Escaped Nazi Pilot Reported Killed On Russian Front

London (Thursday), July 31 (AP).—The Daily Herald reported today that Baron Franz von Werra, German flier who made three escapes from the British and jumped bail in the United States to go back to Germany, had been killed on the Russian front.

The baron was shot down near London last September and captured. He escaped in Britain twice but was recaptured. Taken to Canada, he fled a prison train and crossed into the United States, last January, where he was arrested on a charge of failure to report to an immigration officer.

He was released on $5,000 bond, but forfeited it when it was disclosed in April he had gone to South America. Thence he flew to Europe.

Discrimination Against Women In Civilian Defense Charged

By the Associated Press

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, said yesterday that women were being "intolerably" discriminated against in the civilian defense program.

She made the comment in an interview after learning that Mrs. Florence Kerr no longer was assistant civilian defense director. This, Mrs. Whitehurst said, left women without representation on the national home defense program.

Mrs. Whitehurst also said she intended to recommend that the general federation throw its full weight against the action of the Civil Aeronautics board in closing the civilian pilot training programs to women.

As the only woman member of the Maryland Council of Defense, Mrs. Whitehurst is organizing the women of her State in defense activities.

"I understand that a man is taking over Mrs. Kerr's place," she said. Fiorello H. LaGuardia, civilian defense director, recently appointed T. S. Wamsley, former mayor of New Orleans, as an assistant.

About this time, it was learned, Mrs. Kerr returned to her duties as assistant WPA commissioner. She had worked out one of the original plans to mobilize women in national defense and had been attached to LaGuardia's office on a part-time basis since mid-June.

Reds Report SS Regiment Destroyed; Leningrad Decision Near, Nazis Say

Use of Elite Troops Believed Signifying Wavering Reich Line

By International News Service

Moscow (Thursday), July 31.—Annihilation of a regiment of Adolf Hitler's picked Storm Troops in the blood-drenched Smolensk sector was claimed early today in a Soviet communique announcing extremely violent battles in that area west of Moscow and in the Zhitomir zone protecting Kiev.

Issued after an official spokesman declared the invaders "have been halted everywhere" and "several' 'Nazi units have been completely encircled, the bulletin announced counterattacking Red troops throughout Wednesday "continued to engage the enemy in the Novorzhev, Nevel, Smolensk and Zhitomir sectors.'"

"Fighting," said the communique, "was especially stubborn in the last two sectors."

Russian aerial and antiaircraft forces early today were credited with beating back a new German air raid on Moscow.

In the latest Luftwaffe raid, it was announced, not a German plane reached the capital itself and of the night fighters defending the city, not one was lost. One of the Nazi planes was shot down.

In the pivotal Smolensk zone, where the Nazis previously had been reported driven from their trenches by fierce counterattacks, the Germans "sustained heavy losses in men and equipment," said the communique, adding:

"A few days ago Red army units smashed a motorized infantry regiment of Storm Troopers known as 'Great Germany,' belonging to a division of special SS (Hitler Elite Guard) detachments.

"Lost 2,000 Men"

"The Storm Troops lost 2,000 men and officers in killed and wounded, several hundred prisoners, 30 submachine guns, 12 heavy machine guns, 11 field guns of various calibers, 14 antitank guns, many cars and considerable ammunition."

Appearance of Hitler's handpicked Schutzstafel troops, cream of his army, on the central front was declared in Moscow to signify a desperate effort to bolster wavering Nazi forces and stem a mounting Soviet counteroffensive that is said already to have hurled some German spearheads back as much as 100 miles.

The latest Soviet communique's assertion that Russian troops "continued to engage" the Germans in the Nevel and Novorzhev sectors, northwest of Smolensk, indicated the Red troops in that region also were counterattacking to eliminate a threat to the Moscow-Leningrad railroad.

In all other sectors, the bulletin related, "no important engagements occurred."

German claims about Nazi artillery shelling the outskirts of Leningrad and German-Finnish troops driving close to the gates of Russia's second city were flatly denied in Moscow, where they were termed "propaganda."

Soviet planes, according to the communique, continued to act "in collaboration" with the ground forces, "dealing blows to enemy tanks, infantry and airdromes."

Russian bombers, it was announced, delivered a new assault on the German-operated oil fields of Ploesti in Rumania and the oil port of Sulina where large fires resulted.

Nine German planes were said to have been destroyed Tuesday as compared with five Soviet machines lost.

Although German hopes of a lightning victory were declared shattered, the Soviet people were warned against premature optimism.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said it was "still too early" to assay the results of the tremendous battles being waged on the fronts west of Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev, but stated that Adolf Hitler's legions in some sectors are now being "compelled to revert to the defensive."

Rumanian Oil Fields Bombed

Supplied with "several thousands of tanks and planes," the main bodies of the Red army have been thrown into the field "step by step," said the editorial, hinting that Russia's defenders are just beginning to approach the peak of their mobilized striking power.

Pronouncing Germany's "highly vaunted blitzkrieg" a distinct failure, Pravda said Hitler's generals today are "as far from realization of their eventual strategic objectives" as they were at the beginning of the conflict on June 22.

While Germany's plans for quick capture of Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev have been "foiled," the editorial asserted, he Red army in five weeks of violent battle "has been able to achieve results of no minor consequence."

"The finest divisions of the Fascist army have been annihilated," Pravda said, "and enormous quantities of German tanks, planes and other equipment have been destroyed."

The paper declared that time has favored Russia, with Soviet resistance "steadily growing stronger," whereas "the forward striking strength of the German forces has been gradually weakened."

All other official Russian accounts of the fighting portrayed multiplying Red counterattacks in virtually every important area after German troops in the vital Smolensk sector on the road to Moscow were stated to have been "driven from their trenches.

Guerilla resistance within areas already overrun by the invaders was once more credited with causing heavy inroads in German concentrations, supplies and communication lines.

Declaring that guerilla activities were growing in "audacity and extent," the communique told of one detachment behind the German lines, commanded by a collective farmer, discovering a camouflaged Nazi tank column in a dense woods. The guerillas were said to have kindled a "ring of fire" in the forest, within which the German tanks and trucks were "destroyed in flames."

In another district guerilla scouts, the account related, discovered a "carefully camouflaged" German airdrome and then went through the Nazi lines to report their discovery to regular Red army officers. At dawn the next day three Soviet air formations were said to have smashed the hidden airfield, destroying 13 parked planes.

CONFLICT OF CLAIMS—German sources said last night that Leningrad is threatened by a pincer movement (dark arrow) resulting from a Finnish-German drive from the north and a twin Nazi thrust which is sweeping around Lake Peipus, blocking the retreat of Russians west of the lake. On the central front before Moscow, Russian and German reports conflict. Germans said they were progressing according to plan and that an advance unit had broken through the Russian defense to Vyazma, 100 miles east of Smolensk and 130 miles from Moscow. Russians said they had stalled Hitler's legions all the way from the Baltic to the Black Sea

Armies Closing In On Russia's Second City, Berlin Asserts

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Thursday) July 31.—Germans reported early today that more than 2,000 Russians had been slain in one day's fighting about a bridgehead on the Leningrad front and declared Russia's second city now is in a precarious position.

The Nazi armies in this sector, the informants said, are fighting their way to "a fast approaching important decision."

East of Smolensk on the central front the Germans are smashing at encircled Russian forces and causing "very bloody losses" among them, informed sources declared.

The Russians were said by the Germans to be throwing whatever troops are available into the fight in the hope of relieving hard-pressed units, but "their destruction is proceeding," it was stated.

On one sector of the Smolensk front, in two days of fighting, the Russians lost 230 tanks, which the official news agency, D. N. B., declared was more than half of one month's production of the Soviet tank industry.

Two Divisions Claimed Destroyed

Two Russian divisions have been destroyed west of Lake Peipus in Estonia, on Legingrad's southwestern front, dispatches said, and the Germans there were declared to have poured in between Leningrad and large Russian units in Estonia which formed part of the outer defenses of the Leningrad area.

Fighting was at close quarters with hand grenades and pistols. The Russians' retreat apparently was cut off, and the Germans asserted that these units were doomed to certain annihiliation.

The Germans also continued to express complete satisfaction with the progress of German-Finnish forces pushing down on Leningrad from the north across the Karelian Isthmus, completing the Leningrad squeeze. The German radio said these German-Finnish uits carried out attacks successfully despite the fact that retreating Russian forces poured oil in their forests and set them afire.

The Germans also predicted important decisions soon on the Smolensk front, along the path of the main westward drive on Moscow.

They called attention again today, however, to the extensive nature of the engagements on the eastern front and declared that because of the distances involved even a blitz offensive cannot be expected to produce sensational results daily. But they insisted that the high command's almost daily phrase of "progress according to plan" means steady, satisfactory developments.

In the great engagement generally known as the Battle of Smolensk, on the central front along the main highway to Moscow, most of the fighting is considerably east of the city, German dispatches said today, asserting that even the German rear guard now had reached that battle area. German advance units were said to be in the vicinity of Vyazma, 100 miles east of Smolensk and 130 miles from Moscow.

This was the only sector given attention in today's high command communique, which devoted three sentences to the Russian war:

"Renewed attempts by the opponent to liberate his forces encircled east of Smolensk by means of relief attacks have been repulsed. The enemy has suffered severe losses.

"On other parts of the eastern front operations continued according to plan."

The latest tabulation of air war figures sets the total of Russian planes which the Germans say they have destroyed at 9,120.

Tens of thousands of German road builders, it was stated, are working under Germany's creator of fortifications and elaborate highway systems, Dr. Fritz Todt, east of Minsk on the road to Smolensk and Moscow. Their job is to prepare the Smolensk-Moscow road to withstand the heavy traffic it would have to carry for a direct smash at the capital.

British Lose 28 Planes Aiding Reds in North, Berlin Claims

By the United Press

Berlin, July 30.—British torpedo planes, launched from an aircraft carrier off the Russian Arctic coast, today joined the Soviet air force in a battle against the German air force and naval guns which shot down 28 British planes, according to informed German quarters.

Britain's first reported support of her new ally "failed completely," these quarters said, when the torpedo-carrying planes were turned back from an attack on the Nazi-held Norwegian harbor of Kirkenes.

Kirkenes is at the northern point of Norway, sightly west of Petsamo and about 40 miles from the Russian frontier. It lies about 90 miles west of Russia's Arctic port of Murmansk, which is under attack by German and Finnish forces.

The British planes were said to have attacked "in waves," supported by a number of Russian fighter planes which appeared simultaneously.

Of the 28 British planes shot down, 23 fell in fierce air battles, two were downed by antiaircraft fire and three were brought down by the guns of German naval units, it was stated. Two German planes were lost, but their crews were rescued.

The British torpedo planes were heavily escorted by Hurricane fighters which accounted for most of the destroyed planes.

On the western front, meanwhile, at least five British planes were said to have been shot down over Helgoland Bight, when a squadron of about eight British Bristol-Blenheim bombers attempted a daylight attack on western Germany and were intercepted by fighter planes.

ZIZZ: The White House zizzed with activity yesterday, beginning immediately after the President's second cup of coffee early in the morning and winding up long after the rest of the governmental employes had gone home to slippers, dinner and bridge. Speaker Sam Rayburn was summoned early to the upstairs study to talk over the draft extension bill now before Congress. Even before huddling with Rayburn, the President was on the phone giving Acting Secretary of State Welles instructions which later blossomed into an official protest to Japan over the bombing of a United States gunboat.

PACE: The day with the President was a killer for the White House staffers as well as the energetic, buoyant President. The mimeographing machines and the girls who operate them were worn out by early afternoon as the President (1) sent a message to Congress re price control; (2) issued two unimportant votes; (3) signed four bills; (4) an Executive order on overtime for field employes of the Government; (5) appointed 50 postmasters; (6) accepted Guy J. Swope's resignation as Governor of Puerto Rico; (7) appointed original brain-truster and recent New Deal exile Rex Tugwell to fill Swope's huarachas.

MEET THE PEOPLE: Mr. Roosevelt's appointment schedule grew with the day, boasted three last-minute additions after lunchtime—an almost unheard-of move First in were Senator John Overton and Congressman William Whittington, who talked over the flood control bill with the big boss for a half hour. They were uprooted by the arrival of Ecuador Ambassador Alfaro and Special Envoy Lafronte, who were scratched Tuesday, were given 15 minutes yesterday.

OVERLAND: Again the ever-present Mayor LaGuardia had ten minutes of Presidential time. The Little Flower revealed as he scooted out some 40 minutes later that the President was in favor of an immediate start on surveying land for the long-touted Washington State-Alaska Highway in view of recent international developments and the need of a land connection with our most northerly territory.

SERGEANT YORK: Another appointment brought in hero Sergt. York, Mrs. York, Woodrow Wilson York, the Tennessee Congressional delegation and Governor. As the sergeant et al. entered, Congressman Lyndon Johnson, defeated Presidential preference for Texas senatorship, exited.

SERIOUS BUSINESS: After a hastily grabbed lunch, a brief game of toss with delighted scottie Fala, the President plunged into long hours of serious, tedious work. Harold Smith and Uncle Frederic Delano came in about the proposed new 35 million dollar War Department Building—an hour later the Treasury trio of David Bell, John L. Sullivan and Edward Foley marched in, "discussed a little bit of everything with the President," actually probably bent their erasers on the new tax bill.

JAPAN AGAIN: A last-minute phone call brought Gen. George Marshall and Admiral Harold Stark to the President's office—for talk on recent events in the Pacific. They came out smiling—and uncommunicative an hour later.

'Reflect While Time,' Eden Warns Japan

By the Associated Press

London, July 30.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden called on the Japanese today to "reflect, while there still is time, whither their present policy is leading them."

In a major British diplomatic attempt to steer Japan off a course of military expansion which may lead to a collision of the world powers in the Orient, Eden told Commons:

"I cannot believe that statesmanship in Japan is entirely dead or blind."

He did not compromise. It was no fault of Britain, Eden said, that Japan now finds great nations united against her.

Brought It on Herself

"Japan," he said, "complains of encirclement, but it is Japan herself who, by successive acts of aggression, has drawn closer and closer in self-defense the countries which lie in her path and whose territories and interests are ever more sharply threatened."

Eden went at some lengths into British efforts to avert Japanese military occupation of Indo-China, which now is proceedng, and charged that the Japanese vice minister of foreign affairs had categorically denied any such intention as late as July 5.

The foreign secretary said Britain acted to freeze Japanese assets as soon as the government learned of the United States decision to do so and, subsequently, other parts of the British Empire fell into line.

Indefinite Answer

However, officials of the British ministry of economic warfare said they could not give a definite answer to the question of whether Britain's economic blockade of Japan would be enforced 100 per cent.

They did say that American measures of economic defense had greatly strengthened the British blockade of the Axis. The present United States system of export licenses reached maximum effectiveness when it was extended to the Philippines, they said, although they suggested that cotton and tanning materials should be placed under the system to prevent their reexport from the Philippines to Japan.

Russians Don't Fight 'Fairly,' Germans Cry

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, July 30.—The Germans continue to insist that the Russians do not fight "fairly," that they engage in strategems which are "illegal" 'and that they refuse to surrender even when there is no possibility of escaping.

Informed quarters asserted, for example, that Russian units have surrendered and marched as a body toward the German lines. When they arrived in the immediate vicinity of the German troops the Russians suddenly dropped on the ground and from somewhere in the middle of the group machine gun and pistol fire was unleashed on the unsuspecting Germans. In this and similar fashion, it is said here, "hundreds and still hundreds" of Germans have been killed.

Nazis Order Serbs To Give Up Arms

Bern, Switzerland, July 30 (AP).—The Bulgarian radio reported today that German authorities in occupied Serbia had ordered the Serb population to surrender all arms after the slaying of a German soldier and a Serb policeman at Belgrade.

Russia Signs Treaty With Poland-in-Exile; 300,000 to Be Freed to Fight Against Hitler

By the Associated Press

London, July 30.—The Soviet government today scrapped the Russian-German treaties of 1939 partitioning Poland and signed with the Polish government in exile a new agreement freeing approximately 300,000 Polish prisoners in Russia and pledging mutual Russian-Polish "aid and support of all kinds in the present war against Hitlerite Germany."

Thus Russia, whose armies marched into eastern Poland after Germany had invaded the western part of the country two years ago, now accepts the Poles as allies in a common fight against Hitler. Germany, meanwhile, has occupied all of the former Polish territory which Russia took over and now has renounced.

Today's agreement provides for formation in Russia of a Polish army under a Polish commander to be "subordinated in an operational sense" to the Soviet command, upon which the Polish army is to be represented.

Polish Minister Quits

Polish Foreign Minister August Zaleski resigned as a result of the agreement, and it was learned that some other ministers were expected to do likewise.

Zaleski and others were known to have opposed persistently any steps for bringing Russia and Poland into agreement, and a London source said Zaleski's views in recent conferences had been so outspoken as to be unacceptable to both the Polish and British governments.

The Polish army will be formed from among the war prisoners freed under the agreement.

The agreement was signed by Polish Premier Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski and the Soviet Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, in the office of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in a ceremony at which Prime Minister Churchill presided.

Ends Historic Quarrel

Churchill concluded a general exchange of assurances by predicting that the new "pact of friendship" would bring the turning point toward a comradeship between Russians and Poles after their long history of quarreling.

Eden gave Gen. Sikorski an official note assuring the Polish government that Britain had "entered into no undertakings toward the U. S. S. R. which would affect relations between that country and Poland."

The note added assurance that the British government does not recognize any territorial changes which have been effected in Poland since August, 1939."

Maisky stated Poland and Russia fighting together would pave the way to a future solid friendship when the time comes to reconstitute Europe after the war on the principle of self-deermination of nations.

Announced in Commons

Informed quarters predicted the agreement would open the way for formal Russian adherence to the pledge of inter-allied governments of June 12 not to make a separate peace. Russia already is bound in such a pact with Britain. Among the Allies the Netherlands alone never has recognized the Russian government nor exchanged diplomatic representatives with it since the 1917 revolution.

Eden announced the agreement in the House of Commons just before its adjournment, drawing prolonged cheers and personal congratulations. Former War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha, a frequent critic of the government, congratulated Eden "on the part he has played in mediating this agreement" and remarked that "it is of good augury for a new order in Europe."

Nazi Might Gains 5-Fold, Senate Told

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, challenged Thomas to "get down to brass tacks" and "enlighten the Senate and the country as to why the situation is so dangerous." He indicated he believed Germany to be weaker than ever through lossses and its Russian invasion, and that the United States therefore was in considerably less danger today than a year or more ago.

"Relations in the Far East are more dangerous now than even day before yesterday," Thomas replied, refering to the bombing of the American gunboat and embassy in China by Japanese planes. "And if Hitler was a threat in 1939 he is more of a threat today."

He read the following data as to Germany's army strength today and in September, 1939. In 1939, he said, the Nazis had 55 divisions composed of 35 infantry, four motorized, three fortress divisions (in the West Wall), three mountain, one cavalry and nine armored units. Today, he said the Nazis have 192 infantry, 40 motorized, seven mountain, one cavalry and 20 armored divisions.

"And they are better trained, equipped and seasoned by battle," Thomas added.

Opponents frequently interrupted the Western Senator, with questions indicating the trend of their arguments to come.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, cited a recent War Department order limiting reenlistments of three-year regulars to men who have shown leadership or other special ability. Declaring he had received an "unresponsive reply" to a request for an explanation, Vandenberg added:

"I can't understand why we must retain one-year conscripts and discourage three-year reenlistments."

Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, asked whether there was any limit at all on the time the citizen-soldiers can be kept under the measure. Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont, said the President would be empowered to extend the 12-month period of service from the anniversary of a man's induction to the next.

"And then from anniversary to anniversary?" Walsh asked. Austin agreed.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, objected that the extension would enable the President to draft every man between 21 and 35 and keep him in service indefinitely.

The Senate whip, Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, pointed out that legislation was now nearing passage exempting men 28 or older from service in peace-time.

From Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, came a demand that Congress make it mandatory for the Army to discharge selectees and Guardsmen whose retention would be a hardship on them or their families. The bill contains permissive language to this effect.

Senator Taft remarked that the Army would be "flooded" with requests for discharge based on hardship if the bill passes.

The Ohio Senator presented a modification of his compromise proposal for retention of the troops. The new version would hold in selectees 18 months and Guardsmen and Reserves two years, and offer selectees a bonus of $200 for volunteering for further service.

demnification as in the sinking of the Panay. The Japanese government, at American insistence, paid $2,214,007.36 for property damage and personal casualties in the Panay incident.

Japan was quick to apologize for the bombing of the Panay, even though some American officials privately believe that the attack was a deliberate attempt to test American reaction.

President Roosevelt expressed "deep shock" at the Panay bombing and requested that the Emperor of Japan be personally informed of his reaction.

The Nipponese complied with American requests for full guarantees against a repetition of the incident, claiming the sinking of the Panay was "entirely unintentional."

Roosevelt Sees Advisers

These other developments during the day emphasized American readiness to deal with any new Pacific crisis:

1. President Roosevelt held a lengthy late afternoon conference with his top military advisers, Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations.

2. Mr. Roosevelt also received a report on strengthening of the West Coast defenses of the United States and Canada from Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, American chairman of the United States-Canadian Joint Defense Board. LaGuardia would say merely that the President was anxious to see the start soon of a real survey to determine the route of a proposed highway from the American Northwest to Alaska to facilitate movement of defense forces and equipment.

In Congress, meanwhile, there were calls for action against Japan.

House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Massachusetts), branded the bombing an "act of hostility," accusing Japan of being "for the time being a front for Hitler in his aggressive moves against the United States."

House Speaker Sam Rayburn, who conferred with the President early in the morning, used the incident as a strong argument for bills authorizing extension of military service for trainees.

'Incident' Is Forecast

Senator Elbert Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, warned in debate on the extension program that "this very day or tomorrow an incident may occur which may change the feelings of the people and especially the feelings of those responsible for the Government. Let's keep our house in order."

The Tutuila had been damaged once before by Japanese air action. The flat-bottomed boat, sister ship of the ill-fated Panay, was damaged last June when a boulder dislodged by a Japanese bomb, crashed down the river bank and hit it.

As waves of Japanese bombers came over Chunking yesterday in their fierce attack, bombs damaging the Tutuila also had their effect on a motor dory tied astern the ship. (Shanghai advices said the small boat was sunk.)

In Shanghai unofficial circles, according to the United Press, it was said that bombs were dropped around the Tutuila in a manner that counld not have been accidental. One big bomb hit within 8 yards of the American warship, caved in its fantail stern and blew some loose equipment off the deck.

40-Cent Pay Minimum Set in Jewelry Industry

A minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for the jewelry manufacturing industry was announced yesterday by Gen. Philip B. Fleming, administrator of the wage and hour division, of the Department of Labor.

The 40-cent minimum will increase the wage rate of about 11,500 of the 35,000 employed in the industry.

"In order to prevent circumvention of the minimum, the wage order will ban home work except in the case of bona fide handicapped workers," Gen. Fleming said.

3 Honolulu Fish Companies and 71 Japanese Indicted

Seizure of 19 Japanese fishing boats last March in Hawaiian waters, where they have been many reports of "spy boats" operating in the guise of fishing craft, was revealed by the Treasury Department yesterday.

Six of the vessels already have been forfeited to the United States, and 71 Japanese and three Honolulu fishing companies have been indicted, it was disclosed in a report by Elmer L. Irey, coordinator of Treasury law enforcement activities.

"In view of world conditions this is regarded as the most momentous case developed by any of the enforcement agencies of the Treasury during the fiscal year ended June 30," the Treasury announcement said.

While the seizures were made on technical false registry charges, several officials here told the Associated Press that the ships had actually been engaged in espionage work. Informed sources were said to have reported that the craft had carried expensive radio and photographic equipment and navigational charts of a type unconnected with fishermen's work. It was further alleged that most of the ships involved had at least one member of the Japanese naval reserve in each crew.

Boats Japanese Owned

Irey explained that a 1793 law prohibits anyone but an American from owning an American flag ship. Investigation, he said, showed that the real owners of the boats were Japanese citizens.

A Treasury Department statement said:

"The Japanese fishing boats operating out of Honolulu, and the three fishing companies which buy and sell their 'catch', handle their finances and do their buying, have long been under suspicion by United States Government agencies. Acting for the Department of Commerce, the Customs Agency Service, which does all of its investigatory work, the intelligence unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and the Coast Guard, supporting both agencies with its service when needed, worked for many months on this case. Many of the Japanese involved in this conspiracy had American-born Japanese wives and American-born Japanese children and other relatives. Placing the registry of their boats under the names of such relatives they thus sought to evade the United States Navigation laws. In some instances, these Japanese lived in Japan, in others they made regular trips to Japan, ostensibly to get medical treatment or to take baths.

"Some of the 19 fishing boats were covered by mortgages which had been financed through the fishing companies under indictment, mortgages said to be too heavy for the individual Japanese owners to carry. The financing of these boats was one of the suspicious threads in the conspiracy."

Russia Seized Nazi Cargoes Prior to War

By Douglas Robertson

Copyright by New York Times

Shanghai, July 30.—German commercial firms in Shanghai which have been supplying Germany with much-needed war materials assembled from practically all Far Eastern countries are now facing virtual bankruptcy.

It is learned here that at least a month before the outbreak of the Russo-German war considerable German cargoes, valued in excess of 60 million dollars in American money, were sidetracked by the Soviet railway administration and confiscated.

The German Chamber of Commerce, representing German firms all over the Far East, requested Berlin's ministry of finance to refund such an amount, claiming they shipped the materials in good faith and therefore they should not be penalized for the loss in transit. It is understood no reply from Berlin so far has been received. All indications are that Berlin will not assume a sympathetic attitude, in which case the result would probably be the greatest debacle of German trading concerns in Far East history.

Before the outbreak of the Russo-German war a German commercial firm ordered from Chinese factories between 30,000 and 40,000 pairs of infantry military boots. The outbreak of the war rendered shipment to Germany impossible. It was impossible to sell them to Japan because Japanese feet are too small, and impossible to sell them to China because Chinese soldiers do not wear such footgear, so an enterprising German salesman sold the entire stock to Russia for the Siberian army.

Another large German firm in Shanghai was discovered selling highly technical electrical apparatus, especially large powered electric bulbs necessary for marine workshops and vital to the machineries of naval warships. The machinery was dispatched to the British Singapore naval base and presumably used there by the British. It is understood the German firm, from manager to the lowest office boy, is now being subjected to the severest reorganization.

Meanwhile, Shanghai fears Japanese occupation or blockade. Provision and commodity shops are stormed daily by housewives laying in supplies of food and other necessities, especially American and British imported goods.

Milch Reported In Goering's Job

London, July 30.—The Daily Express tomorrow will say Field Marshal Eberhardt Milch has succeeded Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering as commander of the Luftwaffe.

The Express, quoting "reports from neutrals," will say:

"Goering is in disgrace for opposing the Russian campaign and Hitler has sacked him to make room for the state secretary for air and inspector general of the Luftwaffe, titles Milch held as Goering's right-hand man.

Konoye Says Japan Is Pointed On a New 'Fateful Program'

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, July 30.—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye declared Japan's resolve today "to proceed on a historic renovation of its policies from an entirely new standpoint," and said the execution of this fateful program must be swift and determined.

These policies—of which he spoke while Japanese convoys continued to land troops for occupation of bases in southern French Indo-China—were not described, but he connected them with a warning that Japan "must always be prepared to meet the worst."

He said, too, again without elaboration, that the German-Russian war "is bringing serious effects on Japan."

Soviet Held Threatened

(This reference to the Nazi invasion was heard with the greatest interest in view of the expressed conviction of informed Chinese quarters in Peiping that Japan is making ready for an assault on Soviet Siberia if and when the Red armiest of the west are smashed by the Germans.)

The premier spoke before the general mobilization inquiry commission.

During the day, the British Ambassador, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, conferred for an hour and a half with Vice Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, the Japanese foreign minister, but the subject of their long talk was not disclosed.

The Japanese press went on denouncing the United States and Britain, calling them the masters of the Dutch East Indies and blaming what they called American meddling for the suspension by the islands of the oil shipment agreement with Japan.

As to the possibility of a full oil embargo by the United States, which already has frozen Japanese assets in that country, newspaper discussion was to the effect that Japan had in reserve enough oil for several years.

Economic Threat Admitted

But on heavy industry, the newspaper Nichi Nichi acknowledged that such an embargo might have an adverse effect.

The Standard Oil Co. was permitted, after a 24-hour suspension, to resume domestic deliveries of oil and gasoline. From Dairen it was reported that the authorities, after having taken brief control of the Standard, Texas and Shell Oil companies and detained their employes, had withdrawn.

Japan's movement into Indo-China was thus justified by the authoritative new agency Domei:

"Japan was forced to reinforce her troops in southern Indo-China with the objective of collapsing Chungking (the center of Chinese resistance against the Japanese) on the one hand and on the other to check the scheme of the United States and Britain, which are now pulling wires behind the scene at Chungking."

Japanese Troops Pour Into Saigon

Saigon, French Indo-China, July 30 (AP).—Japanese troops poured by the thousands into congested Saigon Harbor and into Cap St. Jacques at the mouth of the Saigon River today.

In the first light of day, a Japanese destroyer brought in a slow parade of 14 naval vessels carrying 13,000 soldiers and later in the day 30 additional transports arrived at Cap St. Jacques to disembark their men there.

The transports had "blisters" like those of air bombers on their sides fore and aft to accommodate machine guns. Some were delayed by a shortage of river pilots.

Japanese officers moved into requisitioned hotel rooms and private homes and the former occupants were put up in idle French passenger ships in the harbor.

The occupying forces brought many American-made automobiles which had been converted into armored military vehicles, and enough food to last for a few days.

Direct reports from Nhatrang, 200 miles northeast of here, told of the arrival there, in eight transports, of 7,000 Japanese soldiers and 250 Japanese bombers and pursuit planes.

In Hanoi, capital of Indo-China, it was understood that the Japanese were using newly acquired air fields and landing troops in Cochin-China, across the mouth of the Gulf of Siam from Malaya, which stands above the British base at Singapore.

In Thailand, to which it has been reported Japan might try to offer the same sort of "protection" extended to Indo-China, large forces of the Thai army, with fully equipped mechanized and aerial units, moved into the Araya Predes army post near the Indo-China border.

Japan to Play Waiting Game, Experts Assert

Expectations that Japan will follow an opportunistic, waiting policy in the Far East, with its next move dependent upon developments in the European war, were expressed yesterday in official circles.

Authoritative officials assayed the relative military power of Tokyo, the Soviets, the British and Dutch colonials, and predicted that Japan would have a hard time in any attack against Russia or Malaya.

Because of heavy commitments of land and air power in China, the Nipponese are heavily outnumbered by the Red armies in the north and would run into difficulties in any move toward the Dutch Indies, it was stated.

These government officials, who would not permit their names to be used, pictured Japan as a war-weary nation that must keep on fighting or face collapse. Faced with two choices, each of which is a gamble, Tokyo wants to await a possible Soviet collapse or British defeat before moving, it was said.

Japan was estimated to have not more than 57 divisions. Thirty-seven of these are tied down in China, with but 1 in Manchuria and Korea and the remainder at home or in Formosa and Hainan. Against this force, Russia is believed to have some 40 divisions in the Far East, despite withdrawals to fight the Germans in the west.

Only Navy Free to Act

By mobilization of reserves, the Japanese may establish an additional eight or nine divisions, but lack of equipment and supplies will limit its expansion beyond 66 divisions or a total of 1,800,000 men, it is believed.

The Japanese air force is estimated at 3,600 planes, not counting reserves or trainers, but large units could not be freed for an attack in the north or south. Its navy is free to act, but an attack on the Indies could not hope to succeed without strong land and air support. The British stronghold at Singapore, it is believed, would be a "hard nut" to crack, while British and Dutch planes and submarines could make it hot for Japanese warships and transports, it was said.

The Dutch East Indies are understood to have an army of 80,000 men, 200 modern warplanes and some 25 warships to combat any attack. No estimate was made of the British strength in the Indies.

These sources also believe that the Philippines could put up a good defense. They doubted that Japan would be able to conquer the islands and then successfully attack the Dutch Indies.

Peruvians Seize Town, Foes Claim

Guayaquil, Ecuador, July 30 (AP).—Dispatches from Loja Province tonight said 2,000 Peruvian troops had captured the frontier town of Macara after annihilating the garrison of 50 Ecuadorean soldiers.

Infantry and artillery supported the Peruvian attack on Macara, the dispatches said. They added that the Peruvians had sacked private homes and commercial establishments and then set fire to many buildings.

Air Plant Agrees To Train Women

San Diego, Calif., July 30 (AP).—The Consolidated Aircraft Corporation announced today it would train and employ 400 women for bomber manufacture in response to a request from Sidney Hillman, co-director of the Office of Production Management.

Maj. R. H. Fleet, Consolidated president, said the women would be trained in lighter mechanical operations.

Sen. Connally Heads Foreign Relations Group as George Becomes Finance Chairman

Texan Succeeds Georgian as Latter Swaps Positions

Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, caustic-tongued orator and 100 per cent advocate of the Administration's foreign policy, yesterday was named chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by the Senate Democratic Steering Committee.

Connally was nominated to succeed Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, when George relinquished his foreign relations chairmanship to become chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

A major reorganization of committees followed, all subject to Senate approval.

In the reshuffling, Senator-elect O'Daniel, former radio-crooning Governor of Texas, who will arrive in Washington Monday, was named to the Senate District Committee. O'Daniel's other committees will be commerce, claims, irrigation and reclamation.

Jokes About Spats

Greeting reporters after his elevation, Connally jokingly said he would have to "order some spats and attend a few more teas though I'm not much on this social life." Then in a serious vein, he discussed his aims as head of the Senate's "Council of State."

Chief of these is a desire to maintain closer contact with the State Department and through the department with its foreign sources of information, so as to be in a better position to defend "a vigorous and firm foreign policy."

Connally, a veteran of the Spanish-American War and of the first World War, led the Senate's floor defense of the President's action in dispatching troops to Iceland, worked closely with Senator George in enacting the lend-lease law and with George's predecessor, the late Senator Pittman, in repeal of the arms embargo.

Sixty-one, his long black hair graying slightly, the Texan's first act when he came to the Capitol as a member of the House was to vote for a declaration of war against Germany. He doesn't want war today, but thinks the world should know America will fight if it has to for its rights and possessions.

Big Job Ahead for George

Reluctantly retiring as Foreign Relations chairman to succeed the late Senator Harrison as Finance Committee chairman, Senator George will direct Senate preparation of the defense tax bill now nearing action in the House.

Designated by the Steering Committee for two vacancies on the Foreign Relations Committee were Senators Lee, of Oklahoma, and Tunnell, of Delaware, young stalwart Administration Democrats.

A Steering Committee tie developed over chairmanship of the Senate Committee on Audit and Control, recently held by Byrnes, now Supreme Court justice. Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, and Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, received eight votes each. The post was left open pending a deciding vote by Senator Brown (Democrat), of Michigan, who was not present yesterday.

Other Steering Committee assignments:

Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, to be chairman of the Privileges and Elections Committee.

Senator Lumpkin (Democrat), of South Carolina, to the Judiciary, Appropriations and Immigration Committees.

Senator Spencer (Democrat), of Arkansas, to the Banking and Currency Committee.

Senator Smathers (Democrat), of New Jersey, to the Finance Committee.

Senator Eastland (Democrat), of Mississippi, to the Education and Labor, Manufactures, Printing and Public Buildings and Grounds Committees.

TALK OVER SHIFT—Senators Walter F. George (left), of Georgia, and Tom Connally (right), of Texas, stopped in a Senate corridor yesterday to discuss a change in committee line-ups which resulted in changes on two of the body's most important groups. George became chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, while Connally became chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, succeeding George

Nazis Hit Upon Effective Defense Against Panzers

An effective defense against tanks, something every army of the world has sought since Germany demonstrated their fearful power last year, apparently has been found—by the Nazis themselves.

Reports from the Russian war indicate that Reach troops, employing large numbers of trucks mounting artillery pieces, have stood off superior Red armored forces in Bessarabia and the Ukraine. The Germans, it was learned by authoritative sources here, are using captured French, British and Belgian trucks as mounts for the antitank guns.

The Red army also claims to have had some considerable success in stopping Nazi panzer attacks by counterattacking with their own tanks.

Soviet Condemns Four in Sabotage

Moscow, July 30 (AP).—Four men were condemned to death today and another to ten years imprisonment for sabotage leading to a fire which destroyed the blackout in one district of Moscow and caused damage of 3,500,000 rubles.

A military tribunal which tried the men on charges of counterrevolutionary wrecking was reported to have heard confessions that they sabotaged fire prevention work in a huge automobile supply warehouse. Fire broke out during the night of July 14 as a result of their activities, the court found. There was no air raid that night.

Valiant Monkey Wins Ovation

them from the bushes. One man had seen him up a tree and told police a baboon was loose. Metropolitan police had denied jurisdiction. The Zoo said it wasn't interested. Park police said they weren't paid to hunt monkeys up trees. And the Pound said it would accept the monkey only if somebody else caught it.

Now the Public Health Service had it treed, and then was after it in the river.

It was worth $50. One of 1,000 monkeys from a laboratory, it wasn't a rarity, but it was valuable. Besides, you can't leave a monkey in the river as casually as that.

When the monkey came up swimming, and threw a look, and a fighting one, over its shoulder for pursuers, the crowd gave one of those long audible sighs that's nearly a cheer.

Then, for the next half hour, if the monkey hadn't been so supremely brave everybody would have laughed. But it was hard to laugh at that monkey.

It would come, about every five minutes, swimming against the choppy water, to the seawall's edge, grip the concrete with its paws, cough, and look around.

Wiseman, Wilson and Price would creep like cats with their nets and the monkey would dive.

After a time people speculated on where it would reappear. Then the storm struck, visibly moving straight down the river until one felt it was out to harass nothing in creation but the monkey.

Now the crowd was all for the monkey and science could climb a tree. The waves looked three feet high and on them the monkey's head was a cork, rising and falling. The wind blew so hard it wasn't pleasant standing on the seawall and it carried a blowing spray.

Motorboat Joins Chase

Then the monkey was lost to sight and all were sorry about it, because if a boat had chanced along everything would have been all right.

An old tug was poking near the other shore but too far to call. Then they saw the monkey, halfway across the river, riding the waves, trying to make the Virginia shore.

A motorboat came along too, and a hundred people started whistling and yelling, "Come on, come on quick." And then, strangely, the monkey started swimming back to the crowd. It could have made the Virginia shore just as easily. It had incredible courage, but mighty little sense.

The boat, with outboard motor, driven by Kenneth Phillips, 2325 North Utah Street, Arlington, took aboard a monkey-catcher with his net. Phillips took a paddle, stopped his motor, the monkey-catcher made a swipe, the monkey dived and reappeared 50 feet on the other side of the boat. This went on for 15 minutes. Then the waves, hitting the boat, swirled it 1,000 yards downstream. It showed what the monkey had been fighting against.

The boat returned, under power, and the monkey was there, still fighting. Then, of a resigned moment, it swam to the seawall and took firm hold of a fishing pole one of the catchers extended. Price threw the net and lying in it the monkey just looked at him like a person saying "but you didn't do it in a minute fellow. Not by a hell-of-a-lot."

Shortage of Oil May Stall Entire Blitz in Russia

London, July 30 (INS).—Russia's stubborn resistance along the Eastern Front is causing Adolf Hitler's panzer divisions extreme worry and has forced Germany to dip deeply into her precious reserve supplies of oil. According to the Oxford Institute of Statistics, the entire blitz may stall for lack of oil, should Russia hold out until late fall.

The institute issued a bulletin stating that the monthly oil production of German-controlled Europe is only about one million metric tons. At least one-third of this production must be earmarked for civil and defense use and one-sixth for military use.

Assuming that 180 Nazi divisions are engaged on the Eastern Front, they would consume about 1,500,000 tons per month—more than the current German output.

Hopkins Offers Immediate War Aid to Stalin

pressed his sincere appreciation to the President for his offer of assistance and declared that he is certain that the President and the American people are not mistaken in expressing their conviction that the Soviet people will play their role in crushing Hitler."

Hopkins said he would see Stalin at noon today and perhaps several times more before leaving Moscow.

He said he did not expect any difficulties regarding Russian payment for U. S. supplies, nor any delay in their delivery.

Stalin also was told by the President's emissary that whatever nation "fights against Hitler is on the right side in this conflict," and "we intend to accord aid to them."

Vyacheslav Molotov, Soviet foreign commissar, and U. S. Ambassador Steinhardt were present at the meeting.

[Hopkins' surprise overnight flight to the Soviet capital was made in the company of two American Army officers, International News Service reported. They are Brig. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, veteran military observer, and First Lieut. John R. Allison, of the Air Corps. Brig. Gen. McNarney is the highest ranking American military observer currently abroad.

[In London it was understood Hopkins had at the last moment canceled several appointments to fly to Moscow. There was speculation as to whether he would continue to the Far East for a survey of the tense situation there, including possible visits to Chungking, Singapore and Manila.]

Hopkins to Speed U. S. Help to Russia

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles said yesterday that lend-lease Administrator Harry L. Hopkins flew to Moscow at the request of President Roosevelt to speed the flow of American war materials to Russia's armies.

Welles explained Hopkins was the American official best informed on all phases of arms production and most able to coordinate Soviet buying with the purchases of other nations.

Welles compared Hopkin's mission to that of Gen. F. M. Golikov, head of the Russian military group here working to obtain materials needed for the Soviet war effort.

R.A.F. 'Will Blow Lid Off' Sept. 1

Sabre, "probably Britain's greatest invention of the war." It is very small, he said, but it develops in excess of 2,400 horsepower.

He quoted Sidney Camm, designer of the Hurricane fighter, who designed the Typhoon around the Sabre engine, as saying that he would spend the rest of the war trying to improve on the plane and probably would not be able to. Construction of the Typhoon requires 7,000 separate blueprints, Monks said.

While such air progress has thrust planes which a short time ago were in England's first line toward obsolescence, he asserted there was no evidence that the Germans were producing any startling new plane or doing other than improving old models.

Front Line Pushed Back

The British already have pushed the "front line" back from Dover to Lille, in France, he continued, and that line is now in from the French coast all the way down to Brest. Air bases near the coast are untenable for the Germans because the British have air superiority there, he said, adding that in the two weeks before he left England not one British bomber had been shot down over France by fighters and that only a few had been lost by antiaircraft fire.

Monks predicted an attempted German invasion would be unsuccessful because the invader would be defeated in the air. "He outnumbered our planes five to one last year and lost," he said. "What can he do now that we are equal?"

Pointing out there has not been a daylight air raid in great force over England for four months, he asserted that if the German planes ever attacked in mass daylight raids again as they did last year "they will be absolutely decimated. Goering knows that. That is probably why he is in disgrace now."

Electric Output Unhurt

He estimated that because of good defense and decentralization of industry, war industries have been stopped only 5 per cent. He added that no electric power production had been lost through raids in England.

The German claim that they have destroyed the Russian air force was called "fantastic" by Monks. "If they had they would be in Moscow today," he said, because air power is the key to every action in this war—including naval action."

Monks is here for about a month to do a series of articles for his newspaper on America's war strength. He is the author of 'Squadrons Up."

President Backs Modified War Building

gestion would be so "impossible" that they would gladly assent to abandonment of the entire project.

A conference of Park and Planning, Federal and District highway and Congressional officials was held Tuesday, it was learned, at which some of the problems were discussed.

The conference decided, among other things, that at least 600 buses would have to cross the Potomac River every day to provide mass transportation for those War Department employes who do not own automobiles.

Furthermore, it was suggested that it would be necessary for the District to begin at once construction of the Georgetown by-pass, a multi-million-dollar project proposed in the $44,500,000 highway development program of Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director. The by-pass, projected to be built in the line of K Street Northwest, would be essential, it was believed, to enable approximately 10,000 auto-owning employes to get to their offices.

Only 12 per cent of War Department employes, it was pointed out, live in Virginia. A large percentage of the remainder are low-salaried workers who now live in apartments within walking distance of their offices. Each of these workers, it was cited, would be compelled to buy cars or move into Virginia.

If they move, it was pointed out, they are faced with a similar problem. The site of the proposed building is surrounded by Government-owned land, so that whatever housing accomodations they might find in Virginia would be approximately a mile from the office. In Virginia, these employes would have either to buy cars or rely on bus lines. Neither existing roads nor bus facilities are adequate to meet the mass transportation demand, it was said.

County Increase Foreseen

Federal officials estimate that every Government worker added to the population of a locality brings with him four additional persons, merchants and the like. Assuming that a large percentage of War Department personnel would ultimately live in nearby Virginia, they foresee a swift increase in Arlington County's population of nearly 200,000 persons. In addition, they point out that a building to house nearly 5,000 workers already is being built in the vicinity of the projected structure.

"Arlington County may be interested on paper in this development," said one official, "but I believe if county residents properly understood the situation they would not only be cautious, but alarmed.

"This projected building will have early five million square feet of floor space. I don't know of such a building in the world."

The Public Roads Administration, it was learned, has under consideration construction of an elaborate system of approaches to the three Potomac River bridges and access roads to the projected building without which the traffic problem is foreseen as "hopeless."

Officials foresee a time when the defense emergency will be over. If a huge new building goes up, they foresee the possibility of the Government abandoning at once thousands of square feet of rental space and moving into structures of its own.

Bill Now in Senate

Funds for the building were voted by the House Monday in conjunction with the eight billion dollar supplemental defense appropriation bill. The bill is now in the Senate where an appropriations subcommittee headed by Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, has started executive hearings. Representatives of the Park and Planning Commission are to appear before the subcommittee today or tomorrow, when a plea for modification of plans for the building will be made.

When he left the White House yesterday, Smith told reporters that plans for the building were submitted by the War Department without study either by his office or the commission.

Only brief hearings on the project were conducted by a House appropriations subcommittee, headed by Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, before the appropriation was recommended to the House.

Venezuelan Envoy Denies 'Neighbor Policy' a Failure

New York, July 30 (AP).—Dr. Diogenes Escalante, Venezuelan Ambassador to the United States, said today on his arrival from a two and a half months' home leave that relations between the United States and South merican countries had never been more friendly.

Asked to comment on United States Senator D. Worth Clark's proposal that this country take over Latin America because the good neighbor policy had failed, the Ambassador said:

"I see no reason to change the good neighbor policy, but it has to be improved. We need closer cooperation and better mutual understanding."

He urged increased purchases by the United States from South America, which, he claimed, was buying more here.

PRICES OF LIQUOR GOING UP

"New York, July 18.—Several leading distillers of domestic whiskies are expected to announce increases of 50 to 75 cents a case within the next week or two, it was reliably reported today. The new prices, which are being brought about by higher production costs alone, are to become effective August 1, according to the reports. Some of the country's best known brands will be affected by the new advance, which does not take into consideration the prospective rise in Federal taxes.
One leading company, in discussing the possibilities of an early price increase, disclosed some results of a survey it had conducted. It brought out that virtually all ingredients used in the production of distilled beverages and nearly all items involved in packaging as well as labor costs, had risen during the last six months.
Some of the increases have been substantial; others not so large. Corn was reported up 29 per cent; rye, 1 per cent, and barley malt, 4 per cent. Certain imported items, like juniper berries, used principally for gin, have skyrocketed, rising 1,775 per cent owing to stoppage of Italian supplies. Miscellaneous imported blending materials, such as angelica root, coriander seed orange peel, orris root and calamus root have gone up about 215 per cent."

armies began overrunning Europe.

Government circles assert that the assets of the Union Banking Corporation and its subsidiaries were frozen because capital and control came from a Netherlands institution called the Bank Voor Handel en Scheepvaart (Bank for Trade and Shipping)) in Rotterdam, one of the Thyssen string of banking houses on the continent. It was subject to the freezing order, however, as a Dutch corporation, and not as a German-owned property.

As the custodian of all Dutch property outside the Netherlands, the Netherlands government in exile represents that it, too, would seem to have some rights in the matter. Nevertheless all of Thyssen's properties were confiscated by the Nazi regime back in 1939, and thus it might appear that the assets here are legally a part of the German government's assets in the United States.

The Thyssen bank in Rotterdam which nominally owned the New York corporation was bombed out of existence by the invading Nazis in May, 1940. No one in New York professes to know what has happened to the officers of the Rotterdam institution. Not a word of instruction or advice has come from abroad.

Rift Believed Not Genuine

Perhaps it wasn't Thyssen's money at all. Some persons suggest maybe he sent it here for safekeeping for some of the Nazi bigwigs—perhaps for Hermann Wilhelm Goering, for Paul Joseph Goebbels, for Heinrich Himmler, or even Hitler himself.

No matter how the story comes out, the United States Government has the situation in hand. Every penny of known Thyssen assets is frozen, under the strictest control.

There are many Americans in responsible positions who do not think that the rift between Thyssen and the Nazis was genuine at all, preferring to believe that Thyssen was in reality a sort of economic advance agent of the Hitler forces, a financial surveyor and softener-up posing as a refugee.

Reliable private information is that Thyssen has been wandering about Switzerland, France and other European countries before and after the Nazi armies arrived without much hindrance from the Hitler government. Thyssen is now in Germany—not under confinement, free to move about but closely watched—perhaps a willing prisoner, perhaps a hostage for his wealth throughout the world.

Thyssen's adventure in the American business world dates back to August, 1924, when without flourishes or ruffles the Union Banking Corporation was incorporated with a capital stock of $400,000, the money coming from the Bank Voor Handel en Scheepvaart, it was licensed under the New York State banking laws as an investment corporation.

Tugwell Named For Governorship Of Puerto Rico

Rexford G. Tugwell, of New York, one of the original New Deal advisers in the Agriculture Administration, was nominated by President Roosevelt yesterday to be Governor of Puerto Rico.

Tugwell will succeed Guy J. Swope, of Harrisburg, Pa., who resigned yesterday to become director of the division of territories and island possessions in the Interior Department.

Appointment of Tugwell as chancellor of the University of Puerto Rico was announced last week in New York, and a spokesman for the Interior Department, which supervises insular affairs, said today he could hold both jobs. It was explained that the governorship was by executive appointment, subject to confirmation by the Senate, while the chancellor is selected by the university trustees.

U. S. Citizenship Prospect Thrills Dancer

Nina Strogonova, pretty, 22-year-old ballerina, who was born in Denmark but took a Russian name for art's sake, shyly divided her enthusiasm yesterday between her progress toward American citizenship and her prospective first appearance on a Washington stage tonight.

Miss Strogonova, who will appear as soloist on the final Sunset Symphony at the Watergate, was late for a press conference at the Harrington Hotel yesterday because e ran afoul of unexpected traffic en route here by car from New York.

But her spirits were not dampened.

"It's wonderful to think of becoming a citizen," said the dancer, who has taken out her first papers. "It's not just the idea of freedom. This country is so much like Denmark. The people are about the same.

"In Denmark," she continued, "the Germans gave orders not to smile on the streets. Nobody stopped smiling, but they have more reason to here."

The dancer has not been in Europe since 1938, but her family keeps her abreast of life in her native land. Her father is an official of an American tobacco company in Copenhagen.

Miss Strogonova likes America also because, as far as her dancing is concerned, the continent of Europe is "very small." That is because of war financing, which makes it difficult for people to spend money on such things as watching ballet dancing.

Not so in England, however, according to the ballerina. English audiences are still enthusiastic about music and dancing although, she said, their appreciation is not as spontaneous as that of Americans.

NINA STROGANOVA unpacks, tries on her ballet slippers

"In this country people want to show they like a thing immediately. They don't wait for the end of the number but applaud right away. And that's fine—it makes you feel wonderful. No, it doesn't disturb me. In England they are more reserved, but you can sense they like a performance."

Miss Strogonova, a slim girl with light brown hair and dark brown eyes, spoke almost faultless English despite the fact that she took up the language only two years ago. Her mastering of the language is due in part to her friend, John Masefield, the poet laureate, who is a ballet enthusiast. Masefield helped her to learn the language by writing her letters in English, demanding she reply in the same tongue.

The dancer who gives an impression of extreme shyness, laughing embarrassedly as she discusses her career, told of plans to open a dancing school somewhere in America in the future.

Asked about more personal matters, she said she is engaged "unofficially," but does not intend to marry until she has given up dancing. "Marriage and dancing don't combine," she said.

She said her art requires practicing at least four or five hours a day, and devoting her whole mind to it when she is not dancing.

Miss Strogonova's chief diversion is the movies. Her favorite actor is Jimmy Stewart. She weighs 116 pounds but doesn't have to diet to keep her slimness.

The dancer was enthusiastic about Washington because "there are so many trees." And she is determined to begin a sightseeing tour today with the White House and Capitol as objectives No. 1 and No. 2.

Network Expected To Resume ASCAP Tunes Tomorrow

New York, July 30 (AP).—Return to the National Broadcasting Company's airlanes of hundreds of America's best-loved songs appeared near tonight as N. B. C. and the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers studied a compromise contract designed to end a seven-months' old controversy over rates for ASCAP music.

Ratification, both sides announced, awaited agreement on only a few minor legal technicalities. ASCAP announced that its songs would in all likelihood be available to N. B. C. on Friday, or not later than Monday.

ASCAP said the agreement represented concessions on both sides under which N. B. C. would pay 2¾ per cent of network commercial receipts, compared with 5 per cent previously paid by local stations to ASCAP on their respective share of network receipts. The new agreement, ASCAP said, would specify payment of 2¼ per cent by individual stations on their local receipts.

Dewey Won't Run Again for Prosecutor Job

By the Associated Press

New York, July 30.—Manhattan's district attorney, Thomas E. Dewey, whose reputation as a racket-buster carried him almost to the Republican Presidential nomination last year, announced today he would forsake the career which made him famous.

He declared in a seven-word statement, "I shall not run for district attorney," when his first four-year term in that office expires December 31.

Dewey said he hoped by his refusal to run to establish a precedent for single-term office occupancy that would tend to make the job nonpolitical.

Asked whether he intended to return to private practice in January, he said merely, "I am a lawyer by profession."

There appeared little doubt that Dewey intended to remain in politics. He has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor next year—a post he sought unsuccessfully in 1938, when Gov. Lehman defeated him by 68,000 votes.

Dewey's campaign against crime extends back 11 years, to the era of prohibition gangs and the widespread terrorism that went with them. As a special Federal prosecutor, Dewey, then only 30, broke the biggest beer baron of them all, Waxey Gordon, whom he prosecuted successfully for income tax evasion.

In 1935, Lehman appointed Dewey to clean up Manhattan's vice and rackets. Within two years Dewey had jailed Charles (Lucky) Luciano, whom he described as overlord of a ring controlling Manhattan's vice.

In quick succession, Dewey and his aides cracked down upon extorters in the restaurant, bakery and other industries.

Dewey ran for district attorney in 1937 on the charge that there had been "an alliance of long standing between crime and certain elements of Tammany Hall," and won his only political victory.

'Alive and Well,' Missing Girl Writes Parents

Parents of Margaret Draley, 16-year-old Takoma Park (Md.) girl, who disappeared Sunday, received a letter from her Tuesday saying she was alive and well, but her whereabouts are still unknown.

According to the girl's father, Francis E. Draley, his daughter said she has been living with a girl friend named "Ellen." The postmark on the letter was illegible.

"A girl has to get out on her own sometime," Margaret said in the letter, and added that she had gotten a job. "I'll see you in a day or so," she concluded.

The attractive brunette disappeared after going swimming at the Takoma Park swimming pool. She has lived with her parents at 101 Westmoreland Avenue.

Don't Expect Selectees to Be Gleeful About It, Says Miss Glass, at Education-Defense Parley

"I don't lament the lack of enthusiasm on the part of our new soldiers, and nobody should expect them to romanticize their tasks," said Miss Meta Glass, president of Sweet Briar College, and sister of Senator Carter Glass, who arrived here yesterday to attend a meeting of the National Committee on Education and Defense.

"This continuing discussion on whether or not young men are eager to serve in the armed forces should be stopped," the Virginia women's college president said. "If young men want to preserve this way of life, they must give their service. But we cannot expect them to shout with glee about it."

Miss Glass refused to give an opinion as to whether the United States should enter the war, and countered, "I think we should enter the war when the decision is recahed by those who know more than I do about it. And I mean President Roosevelt, his advisers, and others in the Government who do know the facts," she added.

Six Degrees Trail Name

The woman president is here representing the Association of American Colleges. She has been head of Sweet Briar College since 1925, and is former president of the American Association of University Women. Six degrees trail after her name.

That colleges and universities can do much to help the national defense is the firm belief of Miss Glass. "There is an enormous interest on the part of colleges to see where they fit into the defense scheme," she says.

Miss Glass is against exemption of men from service just because they are attending college. "There can be no blanket exemptions for anyone. We must make an all-out effort to save this country, no matter what the costs," is her opinion.

"I think that women will play a much greater part in the effort than they did in the last war," she states. "More of them are trained, and more of them are needed. They can fill clerical and administrative jobs, and leave men for the more immediate work."

A keen student on foreign affairs, Miss Glass thinks that the importance of propaganda is overemphasized. "Propaganda did not get us into the last war, and it won't get us into this one. It is a varied combination of bad forces and conditions which makes nations fight one another."

"As far as the effect of war on education," she continued, "It will be a setback, no doubt. But in war, everything is damaged, and after all, education is just one phase of life.

"I believe there are even compensating factors to war," Miss Glass went on. "At least, it brings moral and mental peace. Whatever the costs of our defense effort, it is something that must be done," she concluded.

Yesterday, Miss Glass attended a closed meeting of the national committee on education and defense at the Mayflower Hotel. She and 28 other representatives of American colleges and universities heard addresses by Paul V. McNutt, of the Federal Security Agency; Dr. John W. Sudebaker, of the United States Office of Education; high Army and Navy officers, and various Government officials.

The two-day educational defense conference will close today after talks by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, director of civilian defense; Charles P. Taft, of the Federal Security Agency; Lowell Mellett, of the Office of Government Reports, and Dr. James Conant, president of Harvard University.

Most Soviet Wheat Believed In

By Cyrus L. Sulzberger

Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, July 30.—After an eight-day journey through the Armenian, Georgian, Azerabaijanian and Daghestan Republics, across the northern Caucasus, along the Don River basin and into the western Ukraine and central Russia, this correspondent is convinced that the great part of the Soviet wheat crop has already been harvested while the remainder is ripe and ready for the reaper.

All the way from the Turkish frontier to Rostov, the writer received the impression that the wheat crop was already largely gathered from the fields. Men and women were laboring long hours. Tractors and horses were drawing all available harvesting machinery. A bread factory at Leninakan was working hard. The Caucasian railroad system was jammed with boxcars carrying loaves of bread and flatcars loaded with sacks of white flour as well as tremendous quantities of oil, machinery and other essentials of war.

This year is a bumper crop year in most parts of the Soviet Union. The corn crop has not yet been harvested, even in the south, but in a relatively short time this will have begun.

From the viewpoint of importance to the present conflict this is perhaps the most striking impression the correspondent got in traversing the central Soviets. In most parts of the immense area, there were no signs of war. For example, the large Georgian Republic and the City of Tiflis enjoy absolutely normal life. Not a single air-raid alert was encountered by the writer until Moscow was reached.

This was the first sight the writer ever had of men of the Red Army and he was especially impressed by the good quality of their uniforms and their excellent black leather boots, after hearing considerable disparaging reports in such countries as Rumania. Of thousands of soldiers seen since, 90 per cent had these sturdy boots and with the exception of the wounded or those just returning from the front most uniforms were in good condition.

At Leninakan recruits were being marched around the main square, truckloads of singing soldiers were bumping out of the town and some 25 planes took off from a nearby airfield and hummed over the town.

Hazen Estate Is Appraised At $43,000

The estate of the late District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen was appraised at more than $43,000 in a petition for probate of his will filed yesterday in the District Court.

Mr. Hazen's will, filed last week, made a number of small individual bequests and directed that the remainder be divided equally among Roy Hazen Herring, a grandnephew, and two nieces, Hazel Morrison and Margaret Hazen Davis, secretary of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Attorney Julius Aronoff filed the petition for probate, which listed securities, cash and other personal property at $25,500. Mr. Hazen's real estate included a half interest in an apartment house at 1829 Sixteenth Street Northwest, appraised at about $30,000, but subject to a mortgage of $14,000.

Mr. Hazen had three farms in Virginia, appraised at $7,460. These were the Susan Place, 50 acres in Fauquier County; Bell Place, 150 acres in Prince William County, and Pilgrim Rest, 250 acres, also in Prince William County.

Army Circular Describes Air Base Defense

Plans for using aircraft warning systems, parachute alarm devices, artificial fog, smoke and a variety of other methods to ward off enemy attacks on military air fields were explained yesterday in a new Army training circular issued by the War Department.

Air base defense, the circular pointed out, is part of the larger problem of protection for an entire area.

Active ground defense against an enemy attacking an air field would bring into action first the ground defense forces, whose sole mission is protection of the air base. Other troops available for coordinated defense would be engineer troops, Chemical Warfare Service decontamination troops, air corps troops, and reserve troops within supporting distance.

Weapons and equipment used against the invading force would include antiaircraft machine guns, 37-MM antiaircraft and antitank guns, .30 caliber automatic and semi-automatic weapons, antiaircraft artillery, searchlights, decontamination equipment, motorized field artillery, armored vehicles and a motorized counterattack force.

Two rings of defenses surrounding the air field are provided for by the Army, they include pill boxes, redoubts and trenches.

Particular attention is paid in the circular to measures in defense of sabotage. This is the responsibility of the commander of the Air Corps ground installation.

Dummy landing fields may be used to simulate the fields in actual operation. Recognition is made of the fact that camouflage of permanent installations on existing air fields will be difficult if not impossible. To conceal weapon emplacements, field fortifications and shelters for personnel and vital installations, full use of camouflage is urged on the Army commanders. In some cases artificial fog or smoke might be used to decrease the accuracy of enemy bombing.

Fences, road blocks, mines and the placing of unused vehicles on fields to prevent landings by enemy aircraft are other aids in local defense of air bases.

V-Shaped Fires Light Austrian Mountainsides

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, July 29.—The "V"-for-victory campaign has made good progress in Austria and the anti-Nazi Austrians are lighting in the mountains huge V-shaped fires, just as the Nazi Austrians used to light Swastika fires before the anschluss, Count Ferdinand Czernin, chairman of the anti-Nazi Austrian action, said yesterday.

Count Czernin said that the Austrians were now calling Der Fuehrer "Verfuehrer," meaning "the one who leads astray;" that floats illuminated with a V have been seen on the Danube, that a "V" sign was displayed on the Kahlenberg, the hill overlooking Vienna; that the factory siren at Wiener-Neustadt, 40 miles from Vienna, hooted the first bars of Beethoven's fifth symphony and that "V" signs were displayed on various public buildings in Austria.

OPM Pledges To Ease Farm Labor Shortage

OPM Directors William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman yesterday promised immediate action to assist the Department of Agriculture in remedying shortages in farm labor, farm machinery and food processing machinery, in order to meet the food requirements of the British and other nations included in lend-lease benefits.

The shortages were reported at a conference yesterday with Agriculture Secretary Claude R. Wickard, the department's director of agriculture defense relations, M. Clifford Townsend; Office of Emergency Management Director Wayne Coy and top OPM officials.

Wickard was understood to have declared that although American farms were producing surpluses of wheat and cotton, the requirements of the belligerent democracies also included high protein foods, particularly eggs and dairy products.

An OPM spokesman said that Priority Director E. R. Stettinius, jr., promised to delegate a member of his staff to work with Agriculture Department groups on obtaining priorities for the building of farm and food machinery, and that Hillman announced his labor division would undertake the training and transportation of farm workers in areas where shortages existed.

The spokesman said that there also was discussion on the enormous food supply which would be expected from the United States at the end of the war, when unparalleled famines are expected.

Consideration also was given to shortages of food storage facilities and reports were heard that in the Dakotas, grain was rotting on the ground through lack of sufficient warehouses and elevators.

To meet this problem, meantime, the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply yesterday announced an increase in the allocation of sheet steel to builders of grain bins.

Blast Threatens New Powder Plant At Radford, Va.

Radford, Va., July 30 (U.P.).—Flames shot 50 feet into the air from a mixing house at the recently completed Hercules smokeless powder plant here today when 500 pounds of nitro-cotton exploded and burned.

The $2,000,000 plant was threatened for a time after the specially designed topping was blown out in the blast, but the company fire department put out the flames and production was resumed late in the afternoon.

The mixing house operators, Dennis Doss, 28, and Moses Lovern, 26, both of Roanoke, had left the house to get ether and alcohol to complete the powder mixing process when the explosion occurred.

Stills captured since the imposition of higher State and Federal taxes July 1, 1940, numbered 1,771; arrests totaled 4,953 and liquor seized 140,505 gallons.

Five men were added to the force during the period, bringing the personnel of the division to 60.

Bill to Retire Unfit Army Officers Signed

President Roosevelt signed yesterday a measure giving the Secretary of War full authority to retire unfit officers from active duty on the recommendation of a board of five officers.

The measure is expected to affect between 100 and 150 officers, or approximately 1 per cent of the total officer corps of 14,000 in the Regular Army. It is expected that many of the officers who would be sent before the boards will not wait for the Army to take this step, but will retire voluntarily instead.

Murray Asks Roosevelt To Rename Edwin Smith

President Roosevelt was urged by Philip Murrray, head of the C. I. O., last night to reappoint Edwin S. Smith to the Labor Relations Board when his term expires on August 27.

Murray wrote the President that "in the face of the most vicious attacks from antilabor groups" against the board, Smith "has refused to engage in any appeasement at the expense of the workers, but has courageously continued to enforce the mandate of Congress."

August Draft Calls 151 Here Tomorrow

The August Selective Service tomorrow will induct 151 Negro registrants of the District at Baltimore.

Local boards will supply a total of 271 white and 565 Negro draft candidates from induction tomorrow and on succeeding dates of call in the first requisition, August 4, 5, 6, and 7.

On August 29, the Washington selection organization must supply approximately 100 additional selectees, not available at present. The present shortage is due to delay in classification because of complications arising from the new policy to defer men 28 and over.

Walter M. Bastian, Washington attorney with offices in the National Press Building, yesterday was named by the Commissioners to the appeals board of the District Selective Service Board.

He replaces William Leahy, also an attorney, who recently was named director of the city's selective service program. Leahy succeeded Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, who was made commander of the Washington Provisional Brigade.

Meanwhile the Navy Department disclosed that it had made an arrangement with Selective Service officials to make available to Selective Service registrants information on "the advantages of enlistment in the Navy."

The Navy has consistently refused to take selectees as such on the grounds that sailors need more than a year's training to be of real value. The regular Navy term is four years. Unless Congress changes the laws selectees serve for only one year.

The Navy recruiting service divisions in this area are in New York City and Baltimore.

At the War Department it was announced that Lanny Ross, singing star, will make a guest appearance tomorrow night at the weekly concert of the United States Army Band on the steps of the National Capitol, to aid in the Army recruiting program. He will sing two songs which he composed to aid the national defense effort: "Keep 'Em Flying!" and "Pots and Pans."

Cabbies to Ask 10-Cent Rise In 20-Cent Zone

Presidents of the nine major taxicab companies here will ask the Public Utilities Commission for a 10-cent increase in the minimum 20-cent taxi rate, it was announced yesterday.

Living in the first taxi zone—the only one affected by the taximen's move—are 182,919 persons—28 per cent of the city's population.

Increases in costs of gasoline, tires, parts and rents were said to have prompted the action by the District of Columbia Taxi Owners Association. Another aspect, it was contended, is the increasing congestion in taxi zone No. 1, requiring drivers to lose more and more time on each trip.

The 40, 60 and 80 cent fares would not be affected.

"Several companies wished a lower rate, several wished a higher rate, but the rate adopted, in the opinion of the association, would be the most satisfactory rate to the driver and to the riding public," said Jack Royer, association president.

The decision for the 30-cent minimum was reached following the circulation of 10,000 questionnaires among taxi drivers. The taximen also want to remedy the so-called free zone, encountered when a cab has to cross a second zone in going from one place to another in the same zone.

Czech Government In Exile Wins Full U. S. Recognition

The United States yesterday pledged its continued support to the Czecho-Slovakian people in their struggle to regain their freedom from Nazi conquest by according full recognition to the refugee provisional government of the republic of Czecho-Slovakia in London.

This country has now recognized all of the fugitive governments which have established temporary capitals outside German-occupied territory. Full recognition had previously been accorded Poland, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway, Yugoslavia and Greece, which have set up governments in London, and Luxembourg, which has established its government in Canada.

Yesterday's action raised the possibility that the United States might grant the provisional Czecho-Slovak government aid under the Lend-Lease Act, to arm and maintain military units. Such Czecho-Slovak units are now fighting with the British and others are being organized to fight with the Russians against Germany.

Tatuta Maru Docks, But Won't Stay Long

Unable to Land Silk Cargo, Fast Dash to Japan Planned

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, July 30.—The 15 million dollar Japanese liner Tatuta Maru finally risked coming into port today—six days behind schedule—but the vessel's stay will be a short one.

Obviously concerned over the tense international situation, Nyk Line officials said the prized ship would take on fuel and supplies hastily and pull out for Japan about noon Friday.

The Tatut 's original schedule would have taken her to Los Angeles to discharge passengers and refuel but all passengers are being put off here. It appeared certain the ship's 12,500,000 silk cargo would not be unloaded.

[The New York Times pointed out that refusal of permission to unload the valuable and perishable raw silk cargo of the Tatuta Maru is the first policy-defining action taken by the official committee administering the fund-freezing order. It consists of Edward Foley, chief counsel of the Treasury; Dean Acheson, Assistant Secretary of State, and Francis Shea, an Assistant Attorney General representing the Justice Department.

[The decision indicates that other Japanese ships which have been hovering off the coasts of the United States uncertain whether to land probably will be given the same facilities as the Tatuta Maru.—Editor's note.]

All kinds of stories of anxiety of planned escapes by rowboats, of demands that the ship dock, and of consternation over reports of a possible return to Japan were told by the 243 passengers who streamed ashore.

100 Americans Aboard

The ship was due in last Thursday, but because of the grave situation had waited outside the Golden Gate until today. About 100 American citizens were aboard.

Passengers said there had been no shortage of food and that they had been treated well, but that for a 24-hour period last Thursday they had not been allowed to hear radio reports. Later they said they could hear all manner of broadcasts regarding the ship and efforts to have it land.

The first passenger down the gangplank exclaimed fervently, "My goodness, I can't wait to get off this ship even if they did treat us fine."

She was Mrs. E. A. Sommer, Berkeley, Calif., young evacuee from Kobe where her husband is in the steel business.

All Greatly Relieved

The passengers all evinced great relief at the ship's arrival. Some said they had been apprehensive that they were returning to Japan.

They related that the greatest shock of the disrupted voyage came early today when scores of them gathered around a ship's bulletin board and jubilantly read an announcement that they were headed for the American shore.

Then a member of the ship's crew suddenly removed the sign by mistake but soon replaced it.

Carroll Lunt, publisher of a periodical magazine in Shanghai, said a number of American citizens aboard the Tatuta became so worried during the ship's halt that they discussed the advisability of commandeering a lifeboat and rowing to shore.

Fantastic But Desperate

"After all, I suppose it was a fantastic idea but we had nearly arrived at the stage of desperation," Lunt said. "All day Thursday we were cut off from the outside world. We were denied the privilege of listening to broadcasts, or sending messages from the ship. That notice was given a week ago Tuesday. We heard rumors from all sides.

"There was talk that if war was declared we would be returned to Japan to probably be put in detention camps.

"We also heard reports the ship might make a dash to Mexican waters."

"There was great mental strain, especially so far as the Americans were concerned. When the ship stopped Wednesday night, all of us felt there was something wrong. The engine had stopped previous to that time but we were told it was mechanical trouble.

"About this time disquieting news began coming over the radio. Wednesday night the ship turned west to practically reverse its course. At that time everyone became worried. We were scheduled to arrive in San Francisco the next day.

Personnel Acted Admirably

"During all this time the personnel of the ship acted admirably. They sought to allay any fear and were highly solicitous."

Ariadne Tollefsen, 25, pretty wife of a member of the Shanghai city council, said she never played so much bridge in her life as she did while waiting for the liner to dock.

"There was just nothing else to do. Of course, there were dances, but that last few nights nobody attended them. We just sat around and played bridge. We were worried."

Mrs. Tollefsen and her husband, T. Tollefsen, boarded the Tatuta Maru for a six-month vacation.

The Rev. R. F. Kepler, born in China and long a missionary there, said he was told there was engine trouble aboard the Tatuta Maru last Wednesday night, "but we were certain it was diplomatic engine trouble all the time.

He is en route to Richmond, Va., to visit his wife and four children who went there previously to stay with Mrs. Kepler's mother.

Assaulted in Mongolia

S. B. Beller, of Sherman Oaks, Calif., said he had been a teacher in Japanese government schools for several years and that he had been assaulted by Japanese in Mongolia.

"I was there two months ago, and when I tried to show who I was, I was struck in the stomach. Later, when I got back to Japan, I was taken to the police, my passport was taken away, and I was accused of having knowledge which shouldn't be imparted in Japan.

"The police searched my rooms thoroughly while I was gone. Later, I got my passport back and here I am. And I'm glad."

At Los Angeles, the Nyk line said it was sending 116 Japanese citizens, who had bookings for Japan on the Tatuta Maru, to San Francisco tonight by bus and train to board her before she departs. This move eliminated any need for the Tatuta Maru to put in at Los Angeles.

Japanese Liner To Dock in Seattle

Seattle, July 30 (AP).—The big Japanese passenger liner Heian Maru, overdue 24 hours and unreported several days during the strained United States-Japanese relations, will dock some time after 10:30 a. m., tomorrow, NYK headquarters said today.

Eighty-two passengers and a large cargo of Oriental products are aboard.

U. S. Approves 5% Increase In Tire Prices

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

A general increase of about 5 per cent in the retail price of automobile tires, led off yesterday by announced advances by four major manufacturers and expected to be followed shortly by the rest of the industry, has been approved as justifiable by the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, Administrator Leon Henderson announced yesterday.

He added that OPACS was "instituting a full investigation" preliminary to the establishment of a "permanent" price basis—presumably a ceiling on maximum prices—for the tire industry.

Henderson said that conferences between OPACS and industry representatives had shown that material costs during recent months had risen by as much as 10 per cent in some cases, and that, although in the past manufacturers had been able to absorb some of the higher material costs through "exceptionally large volume of business," this volume was now being curtailed by restriction in crude rubber consumption.

Result of OPM's Curb

This restriction derives from recent OPM orders limiting crude rubber consumption to conserve supplies and build up stockpiles against the threat of disturbed transportation from the Far East rubber sources.

The companies announcing increases in list prices of tires and tubes yesterday are the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., General Tire & Rubber Co., B. F. Goodrich Co. and the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. They nnounced 2.4 per cent increases, expected to result in about 5 per cent boosts in dealers' prices.

Meantime, the OPM yesterday received a proposal from its labor defense advisory committee for the rubber industry to change its allocation of rubber supplies from the present company-to-company basis to a plant-to-plant basis.

Committee Gives Reasons

The reason, the committee explained, is that some parent companies may allot supplies to plants in areas where labor displacement and unemployment is not a problem, whereas other plants in "one-industry towns," where the shutdown would have a serious social and economic effect, might be the ones to receive the full brunt of the curtailment.

The labor advisory committee, the first to be created under the OPM labor division plan for labor consultants in each defense industry, also asked cooperation in giving preference to the reemployment of workers displaced from their jobs by material shortages.

U. S. Settles Two Strikes In Defense

Two of the defense program's three major strikes were terminated yesterday and the third appeared on the verge of settlement last night following intensive mediation efforts by Federal agencies.

The two stoppages which were ended involved 2,700 A. F. of L. construction workers who last week walked off an 89 million dollars ammunition plant job in St. Louis, and 1,400 A. F. of L. laborers and carpenters who had conducted a six-day strike on two million dollars of naval construction at Key West, Fla.

Meantime, OPM officials were hopeful that the remaining major defense strike—that of 8,000 New York A. F. of L. electricians whose two-day walkout has impeded 70 million dollars expansion program at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, as well as work on two battleships—would end today.

Their confidence was based on assurances reportedly given to OPM Co-director Sidney Hillman by Harry Van Arsdale, business manager of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers local involved, who conferred here with OPM labor officials yesterday.

Following the meeting, Hillman sent Van Arsdale a telegram asking that work be resumed immediately in defense plants, pending an investigation to be made today by Eli Oliver, a member of Hillman's staff.

The strikers, who are engaged in a dispute with the Consolidated Edison Co., and have stopped all work having to do with current installations in manufacturing plants, were joined yesterday by 286 employes of private contractors working in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

The original strike was called Sunday after the union failed to induce the New York utility company to employ union members in constructing a new power plant in Manhattan. The union claimed "company union" workers were receiving $1 an hour for work which carried a union wage of $2.

Floyd B. Carlisle, chairman of the board of Consolidated Edison, had previously explained that his company had contracts with an independent union, certified by the National Labor Relations Board as collective bargaining agency.

Radio Station Income Data Challenged

By the Associated Press

Statistics on the income and profits of newspaper-affiliated and nonnewspaper radio stations were presented yesterday to the Federal Communications Commission, and immediately challenged.

De Quincy Sutton, FCC accountant, offered comparisons between 282 stations with newspaper connections and 452 nonnewspaper stations, but conceded "other factors" might be necessary to reach fair conclusions.

Louis G. Caldwell, attorney for W. G. N., the Chicago Tribune's station, criticized the data because it did not include 31 stations owned and operated by networks among the nonnewspaper stations.

Contending the network stations were the "largest and biggest money-makers," Caldwell said that if their profits and income on time sales were included among the nonnewspaper stations, the figures would be equalized and would not indicate the newspaper stations had larger profits and income.

Sutton's statistical study indicated that the 282 newspaper-affiliated stations in 1940 had an average broadcast service income of $31,043, compared with $22,941 for the 452 stations without newspaper connections, and $182,614 for 31 stations operated and owned by the networks. The average for stations in all three groups was $32,399.

Replying to a question by Caldwell, Sutton said his tables were not an attempt to show the effect of newspaper affiliation.

Sidney M. Kaye, counsel for the newspaper-radio committee, challenged FCC data listing 282 newspaper-affiliated stations. He asserted that at least 17 of these stations had been sold, or that newspaper interest was so slight as to raise serious questions.

"Until these basic questions are cleared up, the tables may create misconception," he said.

While conceding "probability of error," Chairman James Lawrence Fly declined to reject the studies and told Kaye:

"You can offer your old night shirt as an exhibit here and we'll have to take it and mark it an exhibit."

The commission is making an investigation to determine "what policy or rules, if any" it should promulgate for dealing with future newspaper applications to acquire radio stations.

Roosevelt Asks Price Curb Bill

$6.15 a bale, in the sharpest break in six years, with final prices from $2.90 to $3.65 a bale under the preceding day's close.

Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, bitter foe of Federal price control, said the effect of the White House message on the commodity market should give pause to supporters of the President's recommendations.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, a member of the Banking Committee, called a price control bill "the lesser of two evils," adding that "without some type of control we are certainly faced with inflation."

Senator Taft, of Ohio, another committee member, was one of several Republicans who supported price control legislation, but he urged creation of a five-man control board and machinery for hearings before fixing of price ceilings.

Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, said the bill "probably will need a bit of softening" and suggested that the control power be vested in at least three men.

House Minority Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, announced that he will appoint a special study committee to advise G. O. P. members on price control policy.

Indies Will Fight if Attacked, Queen Says

By International News Service

London, July 30.—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, driven from her homeland and the seat of the vast Dutch empire by German bombs, told the world tonight in a speech from this island of her exile that Dutch troops in the East Indies would "accept the fight" if they are attacked by Germany's Axis partner, Japan.

Carefully the ageing Queen stressed the fact that she and her advisers are "constantly in consultation and collaborating closely with the British and American governments."

She gave unstinting praise to East Indies officials and all those "in the greater Holland of the tropics."

But above all she stressed this conviction—Holland is determined to fight if Japan attacks the East Indies.

And that determination, she said, is closely allied with the fight for freedom everywhere, in all Europe and in Holland itself. The symbol of that freedom, Queen Wilhelmina told her subjects is the "V" that is spreading all over Europe.

"Await the signal of victory," she said, "which naturally will come from here.

"After the religious persecutions which the enemy instituted and after the suppression of free expression of religious life, he now tries to make you believe that his attack on Russia is a crusade.

"In reality, he is only bent on the conquest of Russia. Now that he sees how widespread the 'V' demonstration has become, he tries to make the oppressed people of Europe believe that 'V' stands for a German victory. I do not know which of the two falsehoods is the biggest, but I do know one thing for certain, and that is that the double liar deceives himself and not his listeners.

"With great joy, I read in the British papers about the courage of the Netherlanders who, on 'V' day, succeeded in hoisting a large white flag with a 'V' sign on my palace.

"May this symbol of freedom soon become a reality."

Silk Aides Will Talk to Hillman

Associate OPM Director Sidney Hillman last night called a meeting for tomorrow of representatives of the silk industry and 175,000 silk workers whose jobs "are endangered by the Pacific crisis," to discuss industry problems.

The call was issued after Japan took steps to control all silk sales and exports in reprisal for United States freezing of Japanese assets in this country.

Officials would not admit that a silk "famine" impends, but they said one of the problems to be considered is development of a program to switch industry operations to other textiles or to processing fibers for defense purposes.

District to Mail $76,000 In Relief Checks Today

The Commissioners late yesterday approved an opinion of Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech which will release today approximately $76,000 in municipal funds for August relief payments to the city's aged and blind and dependent children.

The District's coffer will be reimbursed by Federal money authorized by the Social Security Board, which earlier had withheld the funds because of a controversy with the Board of Public Welfare over administrative policies which fail to meet Federal requirements.

In a blunt, unsigned statement, the Welfare Board yesterday defended its stand, explaining that two legislative measures already have passed the House and if enacted by the Senate would bring the local welfare set-up within compliance of Federal regulations, at least in part.

One of the bills, the statement reported, would provide safeguards for confidential welfare matters and the other would bring the aid-to-dependent-children program in line with Federal policies—both of which were issues involved in the District-Federal controversy.

Answering complaints from the CSB that welfare staff workers are not now appointed through competitive examinations, as are Federal workers of this type, the welfare board declared:

"This matter is one which is complicated by many factors, chief among which is the fact that the United States Civil Service Commission is prevented by executive order from making additional expenses in extending provisions of the Civil Service Act to the District of Columbia.

"Since Federal registers," the statement continued, "do not contain suitable lists for positions in the public assistance division, the only way in which the requirements of the Social Security Board could be met is by giving examinations specifically for these positions."

The statement pointed out that on April 16 of this year, the Civil Service Commission was asked to consider holding competitive tests for these workers, but no answer has been received.

The welfare group said it long had been dissatisfied with the present method of selecting personnel and legislation to provide competitive examinations is being prepared.

Under the Commissioners' approval of Keech's opinion, checks to some 4,795 relief cases will be mailed out today, it was announced.

Swift Justice

Our law-enforcement system has struck back with a severe blow at the criminal element which has been running riot here in recent months. Only five weeks after Mrs. Vada K. Abarca was robbed and raped in a Washington laundry agency a Negro youth has been convicted of the crime. And the jury was so deeply aroused by the character of the offense and the prevalence of lawlessness in Washington that it prescribed the death penalty. That swift and terrible retribution will make many a criminal think twice before continuing his depredations in the District.

Electrocution is a horrible punishment to inflict upon any human being, but resort to it is justified in dealing with criminals of the worst type. Even more significant than the nature of the penalty prescribed in this case is the fact that the police, prosecutors and courts have cooperated to bring a felon to justice in the shortest possible time. That is a factor of the greatest importance in fighting criminals who are willing to take a chance on "beating the rap." In arguing this case District Attorney Curran asked for a verdict "that will make the streets of Washington safe for women." But no one verdict is likely to have that effect. Many felons will probably wait to see whether this exceptional performance is to become routine practice before shaking the dust of Washington from their feet. The District Attorney's office, the court and the police are to be congratulated on the handling of this case, but none should forget that it is day-to-day performance which counts most heavily in law enforcement.

Loyal Americans

De Tocqueville commented on the extraordinary American predilection for membership on this or that committee. We are congenital "joiners." Hardly a day passes without the formation of half a dozen new committees, impressively sponsored, the social aims of which are uniformly laudable. It is just possible that the country could get along with fewer committees and still survive. But the other day a committee, the Loyal Americans of German Descent, was formed, which is to serve so useful a purpose that one wonders why its creation was so long delayed. It hopes, ambitiously, to be able to speak and act "for the 10 million Americans of German descent, on whom the Nazis have been working for the past eight years." Backed by community leaders throughout the country, the organization has set up headquarters in New York and will undertake a vigorous pro-America, prodemocracy campaign, particularly among German-born residents of this country.

There is no doubt that many of these have been favorably impressed by Nazi accomplishments, and have been willing to accept the Nazi claim that every person of German blood, wherever he may be, belongs to Hitler. Indeed, their acceptance of the Nazi philosophy and their occasional outbursts of sentiment have made vastly more difficult the position not only of their fellows in this country but of the millions of Americans of German descent who consider Hitler to represent the foulest perversion of the German spirit. The Loyal Americans of German Descent will endeavor to guide the misled back to the American way of life from which they may have strayed through ignorance or misinformation and to convince them that their own well-being, this country and democracy are worth fighting for to the finish.

This is a considerable undertaking, even though its soundness is painfully obvious. Most Bundists and their supporters are doubtless beyond redemption—not that this is a matter of serious concern, since key Nazi sympathizers in this country are now more or less under official surveillance. But the committee, through its membership in some 18 States, should at least be able to do important missionary work among German-American communities. Best of all, perhaps, it should give Americans of German ancestry, many of whom have felt the need for organized means of combating Nazi propaganda in German-American communities, a chance to help answer the Nazi ideology with the irrefutable logic of democracy.

Inflation Specter

President Roosevelt, in his request to Congress yesterday for price control legislation, flatly told our legislators that we face inflation "unless we act decisively and without delay." Inflation is, indeed, what the President calls a "frightening" prospect. An unseen toll is taken out of all wage-earners and savers in the experience of seeing their pay checks or savings buy less and less of life's necessities. There are no winners except speculators in an inflationary regime. Wage increases, for example, always lag behind the rising cost of of living till the end of the process arrives in the squeezing of all value out of money.

The country faces inflation because there has not been the comprehensive economic policy which was demanded by the emergency. Inflation is capable of a simple definition: It is the competition of more money for fewer consumption goods. These goods, in consequence, become more valuable, or increase in price. Now the defense effort has meant that more and more of the national productive energy has been directed toward the production of military goods at the expense of civilian goods. But in the process we have ladled out the wages and profits available for buying civilian goods. Thus, on the one hand, fewer civilian goods can be produced; on the other, more money has been made available to bid for them at rising prices. A sound economic policy should have been evolved at the start of the defense effort which would have prevented this competition and its upward pressure on prices.

Actually such competition, potential in the nature of this emergency, has been fomented by Government policy. Take, for instance, taxes. The present tax bill, which should have been an anti-inflation bill, leaves altogether out of its orbit the recipients of defense wages. This may be considered good politics. But the worker who purchases respite today from a tax bill only to be caught in a future wage-price spiral of inflation may not feel grateful when the accounting arrives.

The price policy so far has been even more shortsighted from the standpoint of stopping money-goods competition. Actually we have been boosting wage rates as well as vastly increasing the number of jobs which yield high wages. High overtime wages, moreover, add fuel to the flames. The consequent upward pressure on prices has been twofold: first, the manufacturer cannot recoup himself for his wage costs except out of prices, and, secondly, the extra money in circulation has itself been bidding up prices. For, as the President says, "there cannot be price stability if labor costs rise abnormally."

Mr. Henderson, with his informal powers over prices, has sought to be Canute-like in stopping this logical process, but he has not been very successful. In fact, he has been ill-advised to make the attempt. If we allow wages to continue to rise, we must not, let alone cannot, stop prices from rising. Otherwise we increase the price-boosting competition for civilian goods by allowing more goods to be bought out of the enlarged pay envelopes. If the excess money cannot be reclaimed along the tax route, it must be mopped up by charging more for civilian goods, and so keeping down their production.

Axiomatically this war effort cannot be successfully conducted with largely increased civilian consumption. We simply cannot keep on turning more and more of our energies into defense and expect to live better. The two things don't jibe. If this idea—a very simple one—is acknowledged, then there will be a wise price policy; not otherwise. The bill that the President asks is a belated request for economic powers which Congress should pass promptly as its contribution to staving off inflation. But this is only part of the battle. Congress must stop its own spending on nondefense projects, and it must curb a passion for farm aid which has been the most potent factor in the inflationary price rise so far. Even then a wise economic policy aimed at avoiding inflation will depend a great deal upon the economic statesmanship of our administrators.

Aggressive Ignorance

Gov. Talmadge's case against the educators of his State makes just about as much sense as Jack Cade's indictment of Lord Say, as Shakespeare reports it:

. . . I am the besom that must sweep the court clean of such filth as thou art. Thou hast most traitorously corrupted the youth of realm in erecting a grammar school: and whereas before our forefathers had no books, but the score and the tally, thou hast caused printing to be used . . . It will be proved to thy face that thou hast men about thee that usually talk of a noun and a verb and such abominable words as no Christian ear can endure to hear.

On charges quite similar in temper Gov. Talmadge has at last succeeded in obtaining the dismissal of Dr. Walter D. Cocking, dean of the school of education of the University of Georgia, and Dr. Marvin S. Pittman, president of the South Georgia State Teachers' College, by the State Board of Regents recently packed with the Governor's stooges. The previous board had dismissed as wholly unfounded Talmadge's charges that Dr. Cocking favored social equality of whites and Negroes. But the other day the Governor blurted out what was probably his real objection to the Messrs. Cocking and Pittman. They are, it seems, nothing but dirty furriners, the one having been born in Iowa and the other in Mississippi. No doubt the one-gallus electorate of the Georgia backwoods is thoroughly agreed that for a furriner to hold any State job which may be desired by a native 200 proof Georgian is an offense against nature.

Gov. Talmadge is an example of one of the several varieties of tyrant with which the modern world is infested and blighted. We have, for example, a tyranny of race, as represented by the Nazis; we have the tyranny of class, as represented by the Communists; we have the tyranny of mediocrity as represented by more than one modern parliamentary statesman; finally we have the tyranny of aggressive ignorance as represented by the late Huey Long and the unfortunately present Gene Talmadge.

Irresponsible Senator

For sheer irresponsibility of utterance it is difficult to top the remark of Senator D. Worth Clark of Idaho that the time has come for the United States "to take over control" of Latin America and Canada and establish "puppet governments" in those areas. "It probably would not be necessary to fire a single shot to take control of this whole hemisphere," he said, the implication being that Senator Clark would be willing to approve such action even if fighting were necessary. As it happens few, if any, Americans will take the Idaho solon seriously. But our neighbors to the north and south may not realize, as citizens of this Nation do, that D. Worth Clark does not by any means speak for all the 500,000 inhabitants of Idaho, let alone the 130 million inhabitants of the United States.

Particularly in Latin America will his words, given ample publicity we may be sure by the Nazis, revive ancient fears of the "Colossus of the North." These fears the Good Neighbor policy so earnestly and brilliantly pursued by the Roosevelt Administration have done much to eliminate. Senator Clark could not have done better had he been acting under orders from Hitler with words provided for him by Dr. Goebbels. Actually he was only striking an attitude, though his attitude toward America's neighbors is, incidentally, no different from the attitude Germany has displayed toward the nations adjoining her border. Fortunately both President Roosevelt and Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles have promptly repudiated Senator Clark's egregious utterance. But the casual and ill-considered remarks of the Senator—the equivalent of a cry of "Fire" in a crowded theater—shows one of the difficulties facing the United States in working out a coherent policy of hemisphere defense.

Reich Rumors

Ever since Rudolf Hess landed in Scotland in what is still the war's greatest mystery, rumors of dissidence in the Nazi hierarchy have gained currency in the outside world. To all of these rumors there clings, of course, the inescapable aura of wishful thinking. Such internal dissension is precisely what the enemies of the Reich want to believe is going on behind the wall of censorship and suppression surrounding that country. This is why the reports must be taken with a grain of salt. Yet their persistence, despite denials by German authorities, suggests that there probably is some fire behind all this smoke.

After the Hess affair there was the story of the alleged imprisonment of Field Marshal Goering, creator of the Luftwaffe, because of a difference of opinion he had had with Hitler over the Russian war. Goering, it is said, was opposed to the attack on Russia because this would result in shifting the balance in the air in favor of Great Britain. Now, via London, comes the report of the suicide of Gen. Ernst Udet, one of Goering's principal aides, following his imprisonment by order of the Fuehrer.

It is the counsel of wisdom to treat this as well as earlier reports of internal friction in the Nazi government with reserve. Nonetheless, the attack on Russia constituted so violent an about face on the part of the Third Reich that it was bound to lead to sharp differences of opinion. And should the anticipated victory over the Soviet Union fail to materialize, or be too long postponed, it is certain that these clashes among Nazi leaders will increase. Even the monolithic unity of a totalitarian state is no proof against defeat.

FIREFLIES

Where summer leaves so thickly are
That even stars are hid from sight
The golden lamps of fireflies light
Brief avenues upon the dark,

Brief avenues and sudden alleys,
Twinkling bridges, minute spanned,
Airy roofs and steeples blown:
And though the dark be foreign dark,
And though the land be other's land
This city is my own.

Vichy Government

Mr. Norris, the distinguished Senator from Nebraska, is juridically and practically right in his contention that the Vichy conspiracy is not the sovereign government of France, and should no longer be recognized as such by the United States of America. The highest form of national government is one that governs rightfully, de jure; and actually, de facto. The so-called French government at Vichy is neither de jure nor de facto. It is simply a German governmental agency with "We, Henri-Philippe Petain," as Hitler's gauleiter.

Instead of planning for the rehabilitation of the French Republic this pro-Axis agent has had the hardihood to declare that France shall not have a government founded upon the consent of its people, but "an aristocratic hierarchy" under his personal rule. Such nonsensical pomposity on the part of the old gentleman must make even Hitler and Goebbels scream with merriment.

France cannot carry on two governments, even if one is but a silly sham, and the French people cannot conveniently get rid of the Vichy conspiracy while their ancient friend and sister republic of the United States treats Petain and Co. as the French government. It is evidently plain to "everybody's Senator," Mr. Norris, that sooner or later the French people must revolt from the Nazi tyranny which now enslaves them, and the first move in that necessary and glorious effort is to get rid of the group of Hitler agents now resident in the spa of Vichy. Let no one be affrighted by the suggestion of a new French revolution, for there is no other path open to freedom. We in the United States found a revolution unavoidable in order to build our present Republic, and we may be certain the French are not too cowardly or selfish to revolt.

All of which is submitted with a respectful admiration of the wisdom and experience of our Department of State, which I feel sure will before long consider the suggestion of Senator Norris.

A Letter Answered

The experience of an octogenarian veteran may help you to seal that room.

He may have been the one who sat in your seat 30 years ago, thinking how he was going to maintain a wife and five small children, soon coming down to join him and be provided for, on his 15 bucks a week draw.

His solution of the problem was the purchase of a few acres in a suburb with a cabin thereon, sufficient for summer shelter, at a cost of one-fourth of that draw.

By putting in his leave days and hours before and after work in improving the cabin, acres, garden, orchard and patches, while wife and children attended poultry, pigs and calves, the inner needs of all were supplied bountifully and healthfully. Some of the produce was sold.

The draw finally grew to $35 a week by the time of retirement. The cost payment ceased and clear title was recorded after ten years.

Now that veteran, after years of toil, sits under a comfortable roof with white painted walls. Those five children and two more have all passed through high school, and by individual effort have secured homes and families of their own. They phone out daily to "Mom" and send kisses to "Dad" and drive out most weekends to sit in the shade, smoke, chat and eat the fruit of the land.

No worry or care to pester our time. Believing and trusting in the Lord our Saviour that "all things will work together for good" because we love Him; we await His summons and call to that eternal home where we will be with Him forever.

Sir, to sum the matter up, "trust in the Lord and do good." "So shalt thou dwell in the land of the living, and verily thou shalt be fed."

Answer To Critics

Inasmuch as the reference in my letter in The Post to the activities of Senator Wheeler has been somewhat misinterpreted, judging from letters I have received, permit me a word of explanation by way of clarification of the point at issue.

I did not charge the Senator with treason, and for the very good reason that his statements and acts, while giving aid and comfort to those whom we regard as our enemies by inciting insubordination and mutiny in the armed forces of the Nation, could not constitute treason unless and until the Congress recognized them as enemies either by a declaration of war or recognition of the existence of a state of war. While he is not guilty of treason as defined in the Constitution the fact that we have recognized the Axis powers as potential enemies and are taking measures to meet their aggressions it was a fair statement to say, as I did, that his utterances and acts were "treasonable in their effect."

For the benefit of the many who appear not to be familiar with the Constitution I quote the definition therein of treason from Section 3, Article 3, as follows:

"Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort."

I am also criticized for having apparently changed my position regarding our participation in the war. I have not changed in my abhorrence of war or in my desire for our country to keep out of war if possible. I have not approved of the steps and acts of the Administration that have resulted in our becoming nonbelligerent participants in the war so far, and that must inevitably lead to active belligerency ere long, but I am a realist and recognize a fact when I see it. It is a fact that we are now and have been for some time past in the war by acts that would long ago have justified the Axis powers in declaring war upon us, but which they have not done so far for reasons best known to themselves. We cannot now reverse our position without disastrous consequences and advertising to the world that we are a nation of cravens and unworthy of survivorship as a sovereign and independent nation. Wise men sometimes change their opinions, but the unwise never do.

ALEXANDER S. LANIER.
Washington, July 25.

George E. Sullivan's letter criticizing Maj. A. S. Lanier for his candid recognition of a state of war between the United States and the dictatorships and his belief that the "time for criticism and opposition is past," reflects more credit upon the major than Mr. Sullivan probably intended. He bewails the major's apparent reversal as "quite a jar to his many friends" and ridicules it as "advocacy of unity behind those who are unconstitutionally leading us into war."

Most unfortunately there are many like Mr. Sullivan, who label those who change their minds after conscientious deliberation—or who synchronize an impractical point of view with equally idealistic realism—as renegades or as intellectually dishonest. The major must be convinced that the President's action conforms with his constitutional powers and prerogatives and, secondly, his accolade of public approval and fealty is not the Judas kiss of a renegade, but the generous gesture of a dutiful dissenter who is willing to admit the proven virtues of one with whom he has conscientiously disagreed. We believe that there is both precedent and constitutional authority for delegating broad discretionary powers to Mr. Roosevelt as Commander in Chief.

Today's Confusion

America, in common with England, seems to be the home of strange contradictions: Senator Reynolds, of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, a nonintervention-ist and member of the American Cliveden set, informs us that it is an unimportant foreign war and we should keep out. Senator Reynolds and the Wheelberghs offer no solution to keep Hitler out of America. Indeed, the isolationists appear to be a welcoming committee for Adolf and Benito, those two charming political gangsters who feel that all's fair in politics and war.

The President is in favor of all aid to the democracies (or so he says); the State Department is in favor of all aid to the Axis, with special love for Gen. Franco, Hitler's stooge in Spain, and for Gen. Mannerheim, stooge of the Third Reich in Finland.

Russia appears to be the only nation in Europe that makes any serious attempt to fight back against Nazi invasion. In spite of a few good jobs by the R. A. F., many Americans feel that England is still able to pull another Munich; otherwise the R. A. F. would have bombed Berlin and Rome before this. The twin capitals of Axis propaganda and power are seemingly immune from attack, although the Vatican's tacit approval of Fascist aggression would seem to make Rome a more Godless city than Moscow.

If this is a war in defense of democracy against totalitarianism, the democratic peoples of the world would like better proof than the armchair drivel of leaders who have never been noted for their honesty. Dictatorships under English, Finnish or Spanish rulers can be just as bad as dictatorships under Italian and German direction—the difference between Adolf Hitler and Eugene Talmadge is too small to worry about. What we want to know is, who are we fighting, and why?

Arlington County

In my opinion, Virginia will never consent to the retrocession of the territory returned to her jurisdiction in 1846, and I sincerely trust that my opinion is correct.

Virginia has been receiving many thousands of new residents of the most substantial type, who find themselves disturbed by the social confusion of the City of Washington. When coming to Virginia, they become citizens or residents of a State where the principles upon which this country was founded are still living, vital throughout the entire society, a State which is certainly, despite its faults, among the first six or seven of the Union in the purity and efficiency of its government and in the stability of its social institutions. To ask these people to become citizens of the Nation's Capital, where rape and murder are appallingly common, where the customs and vital interests of the people are constantly subject to attack motivated by the desire to please far-distant groups, is to issue an invitation which is unwelcome under the circumstances. Nor will enfranchisement of the District, permitting the exploitation of ignorant and vicious people by typical city political bosses, remedy the situation.

The true policy of northern Virginia is to seek the widest possible cooperation with the City of Washington, as well as with the Federal Government. While there may be some newcomers to these communities who do not appreciate the danger to their families and their homes involved in political union with the District, they will not have to remain long in this vicinity until they are aware of it.

The Post Impressionist

Career

My abbreviated musical career has probably been the cause of more little sorrows to my immediate family than that of many an artist whose fame grew to full stature instead of being terminated ingloriously by a few minor incidents as in my case.

When I reached the approximate age of 8, my parents decided that I should begin to master the piano. All of my older brothers and sisters had at one time or another studied this instrument with varying degrees of success, but although I held out stubbornly for the violin, this ambition was pooh-poohed by my parents and especially by my father who steadfastly maintained that there is nothing more acutely painful to the human ear than the efforts of a bad violinist or even a potentially good one in his formative stages.

Despite my protestations that there were already at least five capable or certainly passable pianists within the four walls of our home, I was shunted off one day to a teacher of the piano-forte whose love of music, I am sure, has never been quite untainted since those hectic struggles with my ten unmanageable fingers.

I remember her well. She was young and rather pretty but also very practical. She immediately discouraged my puerile efforts to defer the awful moment and steadfastly led me to the drab keyboard of an upright piano, exactly like many I had seen before.

I shall dwell upon those awful first three months of study only long enough to say that my teacher's pulchritude was exceeded only by her naive trust in mankind.

She gave me a little practice book and under each day of the week there appeared a little space in which I was supposed to mark an X when I had practiced 45 minutes. My practice sessions were probably not supervised as strictly as they might have been and the teacher, guileless soul, never seemed to realize that it was not much of a trick to wait until the day of a lesson, mark an X in each square hastily, and proceed proudly to her studio.

Dishonest, yes. But I was still inclined to sulk a bit at being deprived a chance to master the violin, so I had few compunctions.

I did practice enough to be able to play a few simple tunes. Never shall I forget the selection she chose for students' recital from my admittedly limited repertoire. It was called "Spooks."

Now, "Spooks," in itself, was not a bad piece. It ended very effectively with a grace note followed by an abrupt chord which I supposed was to connote the spook hollering "Boo!" but unfortunately the recital was so arranged as to depict in music a day in the life of a little girl.

Naturally, "Spooks" entered the scheme of things about the time the mythical little girl was going upstairs to bed and its immediate predecessor was a ponderous, pretentious opus, something about "Eventide," which was played by a self-assured, buck-toothed girl, an advanced student who gave it everything. Frankly, "Eventide" was a honey and when its last crashing chords had died out amid the enthusiastic plaudits of the audience, I recalled with apprehension the general pattern of "Spooks" which was limited to a few inoffensive and thoroughly trite chords.

I got through "Spooks" in great shape and as I left the stage, I glowered defiantly at four smug girls in stiff starched dresses who were about to play an intricate piano quartet which I knew would even further dim my modest little effort to contribute to the day in the life of a little girl, who by this time, I wished were long since dead.

With all sense of values shattered by unexpected feat of playing my piece without a really obvious breakdown, my teacher began to assign me much more difficult works and as spring rolled along, she started to groom me for the final recital of the year.

In all justice, she first introduced me to "Soldiers March" away back in March thinking that I certainly could play it by June, but it was simply no go. "Soldiers March" was tough. Very tough.

As the date for the recital approached and I still could not play the first movement, even with the music before me, she became desperate. I observed that she was cracking fast and there were harried conferences with my mother until the issue finally narrowed down to whether or not I could play any part of "Soldiers March" by June, rather than any long view as to my future possibilities as a pianist.

The morning before the recital, my poor teacher, now almost wild with desperation and frustration, tried me on each of about six passages, including the comparatively simple "trio" which she seemed to think up to the last minute I could master, but I failed to come through.

I did learn to play the introduction—with music—but even I could see that this left much to be desired and left the thing in midair when I stopped. My sympathies were finally touched and I remember saying gently, "I shall be glad to play "Spooks" again tonight, if you would like me to." But she seemed to think that it was "Soldiers March" or nothing, and as things transpired, it was the latter. I did not play in the recital.

That night, the teacher came forward to meet my parents who had gamely come to hear the more talented children and there were very genuine tears in her eyes as with shaking voice, she expressed her deep sorrow at their backward son's plight. My parents appeared to reflect more resignation than humiliation.

Perhaps my teacher thought me singularly cold as I stood there, unashamed, unmoved and with a mysterious smile playing about my lips.

After a lapse of several years I began a serious study of the tenor banjo. W. W. MAGRUDER, JR.

The Colliding Opinions

IF FREE SPEECH is not to degenerate into mere shouting and name-calling, we shall have to define this issue and debate it.

LIPPMANN

For the right of everyone to say anything he pleases is only the beginning, and it is not the end of freedom of speech. The end and purpose of free speech is to arrive at the truth by a meeting of minds in open debate. If experience had not shown that by freedom men get at more of the truth and are able to reach truer conclusions for their actions than under despotism, the case for freedom of speech would not be impressive.

That is why, as a matter of fact, a certain underlying disgust with liberty had developed in those countries—for example, in pre-Vichy France and in pre-Fascist Italy—where the press was corrupt, the Parliament irresponsible and demagogic, public utterance malicious, tricky and cunning. The right to freedom of speech did not produce honest debate which ended in practical decisions, and this failure of liberty, this spectacle of corruption, insanity and paralysis, caused men to lose faith in liberty and to defend it weakly, and wearily to surrender it. There is no lasting vigor in freedom of speech unless men insist upon the virtue of free speech: unless mere loud speaking, mere public uttering, mere broadcasting and declaiming are brought down to truth and reality by cross-examination and debate. Issuing statements, delivering speeches, writing articles and then taking Gallup Polls are not the whole of free speech: the fulfilment of freedom of speech is debate which compels the speaker to prove his case or change his position.

On the great question before us in America we are not having a debate: we are having a collision of vehemently uttered opinions. This collision arises from two diametrically opposed assumptions as to the reason why America is nearer and nearer to war. The one view is that the victories of Germany and Japan, their alliances and their intrigues and their penetration into various parts of the world, are compelling the United States to take increasingly strong measures for the defense of its vital interests. This is the view of the President and of his Cabinet, which includes Mr. Stimson, who was the last Republican Secretary of State, and of Mr. Knox, who was the Republican candidate for Vice President in 1936, and it is the view also of Mr. Willkie, who was the Republican candidate for President in 1940.

The other view is that America is coming nearer to war, not because of what is being done in Europe, in Asia, in Africa and in South America by Germany and Japan, but because of what Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Stimson, Mr. Knox and Mr. Willkie are doing in the United States. This is the burden of Senator Wheeler's argument and of Mr. Landon's, and, to some degree, of Mr. Hoover's. The real question at issue, therefore, is whether the United States is on the verge of war because of the acts of foreign governments, or because of the acts of the United States Government.

THAT is the question on which the people, as the final judges, must deliver a verdict. They must decide whether the peril of war originates in Berlin and Tokyo or in Washington. For the whole collision of opinions between isolationists and interventionists, between the America First Committee and the Fight For Freedom Committee, between Senator Wheeler and President Roosevelt, between Mr. Landon and his former running mate, Mr. Knox, between Mr. Hoover and Mr. Stimson, between Col. Lindbergh and Mr. Willkie, is a controversy between those who say that the real warmongers are in Berlin and in Tokyo.

This is the issue, and the verdict is of supreme practical importance. If, as the isolationists argue, the real warmongers are in Washington and not in Berlin and Tokyo, then it is not only right but necessary to obstruct and weaken the Administration in all possible ways. The more completely Congress can tie the President's hands, the more it can reduce his power, the more it can persuade the rest of the world that the United States will never intervene, will never take strong measures, the more goodwill we shall arouse in Tokyo and in the heart of Adolf Hitler. If the real warmongers are in Washington then the way to have peace is for Americans to paralyze their own Government.

BUT if the verdict of the people is that the real warmongers are in Berlin and Tokyo, then what we need for our security is not a weak American Government, but the strongest possible American Government. Then it is a very dangerous business to weaken the American Government and to reduce its influence and to tie its hands. For if the warmongers are not in Washington but in Berlin and Tokyo, then the way to serve this country is to take measures which will, if and when it comes to a showdown, provide us with the strongest forces, the best allies and the more favorable positions. If the breeding place of the war is abroad, then what we need is power, and the strongest allies we can enlist, and the strategic places, and all the other ingredients of victory.

For if the peril of war originates not here at home but in the capitals of the great aggressor states, then we must lead from strength and not from weakness. For only by strength can the peril of full war conceivably be averted at all and, if it cannot be averted, then ended quickly and decisively.

Hitler Rules Japan

By Charles N. Spinks

Nazis Promote Rightist Revolt

(This is the first of a series of five articles depicting in documented detail the strangle hold the Nazis have obtained on Japan. The author, an authority on the Far East, was until recently managing editor of Japan News-Week, American weekly published in Tokyo, and on the faculty of the Tokyo University of Commerce.)

A FULL-DRESS Nazi Fifth Column, conducting undercover campaigns to promote a Rightist revolution in Tokyo and to drive Japan into war with the United States, has gained a powerful hold on the Japanese government.

Gen. Eugen Ott, Berlin's Ambassador to Tokyo, is the spark plug of the Nazi machine. He has a well-trained army of some 3,000 German agents at his command, the largest foreign group in Japan today.

Of this total, no less than 250 are on the staff of the German Embassy, an astounding personnel, far in excess of legitimate diplomatic requirements and at least six times the size of the American or British Embassy staffs.

ANOTHER delegation of 150 is stationed in Japan as "press representatives," although newsmen from the United States total about six.

Nazi propagandists, working as teachers in Japanese schools and colleges, total around 100, with about the same number listed as students of the Japanese language.

Other skilled manipulators, working behind the scenes as information agents, technical advisers and military and naval liaison officers, influence the policies of various government departments through key Japanese officials.

In the vital Japanese war industries, there are about 240 German technicians and experts, while this spring 24 or more Nazi airmen were stationed with the Japanese air force as instructors in the art of live bombing and night location.

THE REST of Gen. Ott's force falls into the category of businessmen (with little or no business to do these days), stooges, contact men and political tourists who have the effrontery to write the word "secret" for their occupation when registering at hotels and inns, an offense which would land any other foreigner in jail.

And, as will be later explained, the enormous working capital for this fifth column is supplied by the smuggling of cheaply purchased yen, which are brought into Japan from Shanghai, under seal, in the official diplomatic pouches of the German Embassy.

C. J. Hambro, former president of the Norwegian parliament, in his recent book, "I Saw It Happen in Norway," states that "the most dangerous fifth column is to be found behind the bars of diplomatic immunity; every German embassy is a potential center of fifth column mobilization; every German consulate is an armory, a danger spot, a privileged stable of a Trojan Horse."

NO MORE accurate charge could be leveled at the German embassy in Tokyo, which today is a beehive of fifth column activity.

Here the steady stream of information gathered by industrious fifth columnists is collated, for transmission to Berlin. Here Gen. Ott directs the subversive operations of his invisible army. Here trained specialists in this work spawn their plots.

The embassy is equipped with a powerful short-wave transmitter and is provided with an espionage laboratory with photographic, engraving and printing apparatus for the production of forged Japanese documents, credentials and passes which enable fifth columnists to operate with impunity.

THE Japanese authorities would twitch with horror and indignation if they knew what goes on in this GHQ of the Nazi fifth column at Miyakezaka, right at the back door of the Japanese war ministry.

It is for this reason that the German embassy is guarded by picked Nazis armed with hand grenades, who patrol the grounds at night. Japanese authorities could not officially raid this citadel of intrigue without causing a break in diplomatic relations. But, as has frequently happened in Shanghai and other parts of China, there is nothing to prevent a beef-squad of gorotsuki (gangsters) from assaulting the place. The Japanese government would then offer profound apologies and arrest (and later release) a few of its storm stroopers.

Taking into account this possibility, the Nazis keep their embassy carefully guarded. A well-placed hand grenade would discourage the most determined gorotsuki.

THROUGH the "young officers" and other military malcontents, Gen. Ott, when only military attache, obtained access to the war ministry under which operates the Kempeitai, or military police, the gestapo of Japan.

Later, as ambassador and with the coming of the pro-Axis Konoye cabinet in July, 1940, Gen. Ott was able to exercise powerful and sinister influence over the Japanese foreign office. Toshio Shiratori, former Foreign Minister Matsuoka's high adviser on Axis affairs, is virtually a stooge of the German ambassador.

Until recent times the Japanese navy, unlike the army, has not indulged in political intrigue on a large scale. But today there is a pro-Axis Fascist clique in the navy. The fifth column's chief contact man is Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu, former home minister and now a leading light in the movement to give Japan a totalitarian government.

THROUGH the education ministry, the fifth column disseminates a flood of propaganda material to Japanese schools and colleges and has brought about the adoption of such Nazi institutions as Arbeit Dienst, and a youth movement. Another deluge of Nazi propaganda reaches the Japanese public via the Japan-German Cultural Institute under the direction of Dr. Walther Donat.

Through a bewildering assortment of go-betweens, the Germans cooperate with various patriotic and expansionist societies which foment antiforeignism and campaign for southward expansion—a movement which the fifth columnists encourage in the belief that it will bring war with the United States.

BY appeals to Japanese vanity, such as bowing before the Imperial Palace and Shinto shrines associated with Japan's military and national power, the Germans also posed as the true friends of Nippon.

Moreover, by a skillfully formulated entertainment program (entertaining them in the right way), the fifth column has built up important contacts with those elements in Japan most susceptible to Nazi intrigue—the so-called "young officers" of the army, leaders of patriotic societies and political malcontents of every variety.

The most subtle work, however, is done by the Cultural Institute in providing the German "scholar" with a working knowledge of Japanese. The scholar is the stalking horse for the fifth column. His presence at entertainments and other functions does much to melt the ice of Japanese reserve when sake, geisha or other devices fail.

Japanese are always impressed with foreigners who know their language, who have a real or professed appreciation of things Japanese. Exploiting this failing, the German "scholar" provides a most effective cultural approach through which valuable political contacts can be established.

The Japan-German Cultural Institute has thus become a stud-farm for the production of fifth column stalking horses.

Fair Enough

Private Life Of Joseph Lash

AS SOME may remember, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, recently entertained at the summer home of the President of the United States on Campobello Island something called the Summer Student Leadership Institute. Among those prominently present along with Justice Felix Frankfurter of the United States Supreme Court and dear old Dr. William Allan Neilson, president emeritus of Smith College, was a veteran member of the younger generation and career man of the youth business, Joseph Lash. The frequent presence of Mr. Lash in the White House surely may be taken as evidence that Mrs. Roosevelt regards him as a pretty nice sample of and for American youth and his presence at the Student Leadership Institute at Campobello seems equally indicative that she regards him as one who is equipped, intellectually and morally, for leadership among American students.

PEGLER

With this preamble, let us now cast aside the bigoted record of the Dies Committee which discovered Mrs. Roosevelt's young friend often in the company of Communist youth. Let us consider something else in order to obtain a fair impression.

Let us frisk the files of Liberty Magazine and the Communist publication, The New Masses, to the autumn of 1935.

IN THE issue of The New Masses dated September 3, 1935, the lead story is a charming expression of an American daughter's devotion, entitled "My Father Is a Liar!" written by Nancy Bedford-Jones whose age at the time was 17. This work, breathing the very spirit of high-spirited, advanced American youth, was a reply to a piece published in Liberty by someone who wrote under the name of Shaw.

Miss Bedford-Jones declared that this was a pen name adopted for this special occasion by her father, H. Bedford-Jones, a professional fictioner. Nancy said Shaw's article in Liberty was a pack of lies about her, although her name was not mentioned and she was not otherwise identified.

The Liberty article created an impression that young communist agents infested American college campuses and mixed politics with something which we in the writing trade and the movies have agreed to describe as romance. Mr. Shaw, whoever he may have been, alleged that young girls were seduced not only from the political and religious faith of their parents but from their chastity as well, wherein he was anticipating the revelations set down by the backslid Comrade Benjamin Gitlow, late boss-Communist of the United States of America, in his book entitled "I Confess."

MISS Nancy Bedford-Jones exclaimed, in effect, "That's my pop!" And tore into him to the exulting applause of the Communists in the pages of The New Masses. Incidentally, lest it be said that The New Masses, like Mrs. Roosevelt's model youth, Mr. Lash, was not communistic, note should be made of the fact that the paper listed as its Business Manager William Browder, the brother of Earl Browder. Earl Browder succeeded Gitlow as chief of the Communist Party here, but is now in prison for fraud.

"The author of these slanderous lies is my father, H. Bedford-Jones," was the way this lively example of American youth saluted her daddy. "Why did my father write these cold-blooded lies about his daughter?" She then demanded and proceeded to tell you why, according to her view of the matter. Her view was that he was a dirty old liar who was slandering American youth and the editor's blurb said Nancy had been "forced by her father's lies to denounce him."

SOON AFTER, on November 28, 1935, The Daily Worker, Muscovite house organ, which does not go in very heavily for marriage stuff outside the party circle, reported that Nancy had married in Yuma, Ariz., none other than Joseph P. Lash, whom we now discover sometimes in the White House and then again at Campobello as a guest of Mrs. Roosevelt in something called a Student Leadership Institute.

The worker's marriage notice mentioned Miss Nancy's father as "a Red-baiting pulp magazine writer," and said the marriage "culminated a friendship which grew out of their participation in student antiwar and anti-Fascist activities."

MR. LASH is still a youth after a dozen years in the business, still employed and hustling, first with one youth or student council, service or institute, then with another, and he is still in there, or thereabouts, with his patroness, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, when the pictures are being taken.

The Institute at Campobello, of course, would have no wish to conceal from the youth of the American campus, or the parents of that youth, this pretty little story from the political and love-life of one whom Mrs. Roosevelt entertains as a candidate for student leadership.

Plenty of Room In D. C. Hotels, Survey Shows

"One-fifth of Washington's hotel capacity is yet untouched," was the conclusion reached yesterday by the District Hotel Association, after conducting a survey of hotel rooming conditions for the last 12 months.

"That there is no acute shortage of hotel rooms here is proved by the fact that 25 hotels here had 508,330 vacant room days," stated the report.

The survey also showed that since the spring influx of visitors there have been more hotel vacancies, and that at present ample accommodations are available.

At the same time, it was revealed by Russell Schneider, manager of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade, that 1940 broke all records for the number of conventions held in Washington. The District was host to 208 separate meetings, attracting 82,500 visitors during the year, he said.

U. S. Construction Men Reach Ireland

London, July 30 (AP).—A corps of 460 trained United States construction men arrived today at a port in northern Ireland and were greeted aboard ship by Capt. H. D. R. Margesson, British war secretary. The port was not identified.

E. A. V. MacPherson, of New York, second in command of the group, told Margesson he understood their work was to be in connection with certain harbor facilities and the war secretary answered that "we are mighty glad to see you fellows here."

Pnompenh, Cambodia's Capital Is Modern City of 95,000

Pnompenh, where it is reported Japanese troops will be garrisoned, is the Capital of Cambodia and a leading strategic site for control of southwestern French Indo-China, points out a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"The capital lies 170 miles up the Mekong River, important trade artery of Cambodia," says the bulletin. "River steamers ascend to Pnompenh. The city has communication by steam launches over Mekong's tributaries with many important centers.

"Before the coming of the French, Pnompenh was just a large riverside trading center, with one Venetian thoroughfare. It has since become a modern city of some 95,000 mixed population. Unlike Saigon and other well-known Asiatic ports, Pnompenh has retained the external appearances of an Oriental city.

"A broad boulevard stretches along the right bank of the sluggish Mekong River, which at this point is about half a mile wide. Palms, bamboo, banyan and other trees, some fernlike, others like tufted wool, border the river. The buildings are gleaming white, with the ornate spires of the temples topping them.

"At one end of the boulevard is the palace of the king, surrounded by the capital's administrative buildings and temples, all touched with the architecture of ancient Angkor. At the other end is a great public garden. Between, in addition to hotels, are many native shops of the open-front, Oriental type. Shopless merchants trade actively along the wide, shaded streets and parkways selling bananas roasted over charcoal braziers, rice ladled from steam pots, or coffee, to gossiping natives.

"Buddhist priests in their flowing yellow robes mingle in the street throng. The dress of both men and women is usually of brilliant hues.

"The palace, with its hundred and more dancing girls, strikes a note of gayety for the capital. Normally the colorful market place is open until after midnight. With tomtoms and bamboo xylophones playing in the streets, the effect is that of a daily carnival. Jarring Occidental notes are injected by the jazz orchestras of the hotels, by motor buses, automobiles, trolley cars, electric lights and radios.

"Surrounding Pnompenh are the rice fields providing the country's principal product. The city continues to be an important trading center, cluttered with rickety buffalo carts of the natives which, with the sampans, junks and other river boats, bring in dried fish, rice, indigo, cotton and the many products of Cambodia's rich hinterlands."

Roosevelt Thanks O'Conor for State's Pledge of Loyalty

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., July 30.—President Roosevelt today thanked Gov. O'Conor for Maryland's "most encouraging pledge of loyalty and cooperation" to the national defense program.

The State's pledge was wired to the President at the instance of those attending the defense production meeting in the State House last Friday.

In a letter to the Governor today, President Roosevelt said:

"It is most encouraging to have the pledge of loyalty and cooperation conveyed in behalf of the Maryland citizens in your telegram of July 25. This wholehearted assurance has added force because the meeting whose sentiment it expresses was held in the historic State House at Annapolis.

"I want you to know that your message strengthens my faith in national unity which will alone guarantee national defense."

Italian Warships Being Repaired

Alexandria, Egypt, July 30 (AP).—British naval officers said today they believed the crack 35,000-ton Italian battleship Vittorio Veneto, torpedoed March 28 in the Battle of Matapan, now was undergoing repairs at an Italian naval base.

Many officers thought the battleship had sunk after initial reconnaissance failed to disclose a trace of her after the March sea fight. Now, however, they said they believed she had succeeded in reaching port.

Ty Is Hard to Tie

Hollywood, July 30 (INS).—Such glowing reports from the East on Tyrone Power and Annabella, who took Westport by storm and whose entire two weeks of "Liliom" have been sold out. First, King Kennedy wrote that their arrival in Wesport brought a large crowd who were thrilled at seeing Ty in person. Then I heard from Ty that he is going to West Point on August 17, directly after the Saturday night performance at Westport, with his whole company in Army trucks to put on "Liliom" for the cadets and officers at the academy.

KAY FRANCIS

Ty is expected, in late August, to start "Benjamin Blake" and I was interested to hear Maureen O'Hara is to play opposite him. The O'Hara girl is one of the most attractive actresses on the screen. Now that she has such an important role in "How Green Was My Valley," Darryl Zanuck, who has half of her contract, plans to do important things for her. John Cromwell directs "Benjamin Blake."

Francis Gifford's boy friend (and I'm not telling his name) calls her "Perilous Frances," on account of she's the new serial queen. But Frances doesn't mind any ribbing because the Republic bosses told her that she had been borrowed from Paramount because her first serial, "Jungle Queen," had gone over so well they're starting another immediately—"The Perils of Nyoka." Not since the days of Pearl White and Ruth Roland has there been a girl serial queen—and it begins to look as if the Gifford gal is falling heir to their mantle. Those of us who see pictures only in metropolitan theaters don't stop to realize the small town fans love these thrillers.

The civic-minded Bette Davis is taking an active part in the Laguna festival. You've never heard anything like the Laguna raves over Bette and the way she's contributing to this gala occasion. I doubt if she'll have much time and be able to be there herself, for she's in the midst of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and when she finishes that there is still another assignment for her. She's never wanted to do "The Gay Sisters," so I reckon, in deference to her, Jack Warner will hand her "The Corn is Green," the Emlyn Williams play Ethel Barrymore brought to the stage this last year. That's the play she wants to do and that's what she'll probably get.

Judy Garland's church wedding with the veil, the bridal cake and all the trimmings, went right out the window when she eloped to Las Vegas with David Rose. But Judy's elopement wasn't the traditional run-away marriage, for her mother, Mrs. Ethel Gilmore, and her stepfather were with them. Judy was married by Las Vegas' Marrying Judge Mahlon Brown and she wore white with pink accessories. After the ceremony, the bride and groom went to the El Rancho Vegas where they will spend several days. Not Even Judy's bosses, or her closest friend, had an inkling of her elopement plans. My first knowledge came at the crack of dawn Monday with a telephone call.

Chatter in Hollywood: The guests at Woody Van Dyke's house Saturday were aghast to hear loud words and to see Kay Francis throw a glass at Rosalind Russell. The buzzing that followed it and the excitement was terrific. What the Van Dyke guests didn't know was that the girls were playing a scene from their picture, "Female of the Species," egged on by Woody, who said it would be fun to make the guests think they were really having a fight. Today my phones started buzzing. "Did you know that Rosalind Russell called Kay Francis names and Kay threw a whole glass of water in her face? It's another George Raft-Eddie Robinson fight! And so on and so on. After the tenth call I started checking, only to find it was all in the interest of good clean fun.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: June Travis, who married an Arizona Biggie, welcomes the stork in a few months; Virginia Gilmore, Fritz Lang's heartbeat, and Laird Cregar, a Beverly Brown Derby duet; Otto Kruger, who had planned to go fishing with Howard Jones next week, terribly upset over Jones' tragic passing. Many of the film folk knew him and liked him.

John Sutton had four stitches taken in his chin after a fight scene with Dan Dailey, jr.; Jimmy Stewart with Frances Robinson at the Duke Ellington show "Jump For Joy." Jimmy, who works hard all week, generally gets the weekend off from camp; Olivia de Havilland and Richard Travis, the new Warner actor, find much to talk about these days; now it's Fay McKenzie Edgar Bergen is taking places; Ruby Keeler and John Lowe are very much that way again. They were at Charley Foy's night spot.

Seven-year-old Jackie Horner, M-G-M's juvenile find, can play classical numbers on the piano including the Mozart concerto. She also has a singing voice. In fact, she is so good that the grown-ups stand up on the "Panama Hattie" set watching and listening to her; Billy Seman, grocer and Phyllis Haver's husband, is in town for a few days.

Barrymore Melody Recorded for Film

Lionel Barrymore's composition, "Tableau Russe," was recorded by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer recording orchestra under direction of Nat Finston. The number will be heard in the current "Dr. Kildare" picture, directed by Harold S. Bucquet.

Barrymore's talent as a musican was, until recently, known only to his intimate friends. A deep student of the technique of Moussorgski, Rimsky Korsakov, and other Russian composers whom he admires, Barrymore was inspired some years ago to compose "Tableau Russe," purely for his own amusement.

'Red' Skelton On His Way As Film Star

Washington's own favorite comedian—"Red" Skelton—comes to Loew's Capitol Thursday, August 7 in his first Hollywood starring role.

"Red" heads the cast in "Whistling in the Dark," fast-paced, fun-filled comedy about a timid author who writes radio script about a quick-witted, superclever detective. A group of blase gangsters, seeking a new high in murder methods, kidnap Red and demand that he prepare a script for them. Only problem is—they intend really to commit the murder.

From then on, of course, Red runs wild. Ann Rutherford, as his leading lady, is much involved (she is kidnaped, too) and the leader of the villains is that suave gentleman, Conrad Veidt.

Hollywood is convinced that "Red" is going places. Best proof of this is the office billing issued by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for theaters playing "Whistling in the Dark."

It gives "Red's" name almost twice the size letters of those devoted to Veidt, and more than that—in fact, three times the size—devoted to Miss Rutherford, Virginia Grey, "Rags" Ragland, Henry O'Neill and Eve Arden, the supporting cast.

With the Skelton picture, the Capitol will present Tony Pastor and his orchestra on the stage.

Eddy Boosts Boy As News Reporter

Nelson Eddy introduced the glamorous world of Hollywood to "tomorrow's most promising newspaperman and the brightest boy I've ever met."

The boy is 16-year-old George Ludowitz of Bend, Oreg., who visited Eddy on the set of "The Chocolate Soldier" with Rise Stevens.

Eddy first met the youth when he and Mrs. Eddy stopped overnight at Bend. The boy interviewed Eddy for both a daily and his school paper.

Ann Rutherford Is Titled by Pilots

Pilots of a Royal Canadian Air Force squadron somewhere in England have bestowed a new title upon Ann Rutherford after a unanimous vote. She was notified of her selection recently while on the set of her latest Hardy picture at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. They wrote:

"We Canadian pilots stationed in England have chosen you as 'The Girl we would like to come back to.'"

She Turns Tables Into Ready Money

Sylvia Brecher has turned the tables—and other assorted furniture—into a neat profit.

When she was given permission to leave Germany, she was allowed to take nothing with her but her 20-year-old furniture—heavy, massive pieces.

For two years she stored the misfit furniture in the home of her uncle, Egon Brecher, former German actor, who is featured in "Underground."

Now, at last, the furniture has come in handy. Miss Brecher rented it to the studio to furnish the home of Jeffrey Lynn in "Underground," the action of which takes place in Germany.

Only Governments Can Afford Luxurious Yachts These Days

In the fourth of a series of special articles, Inez Robb, International News Service staff writer, reveals more details of the "bloodless revolution" American society is undergoing as a result of war, high taxes, and their attendant economic upheavals.

By Inez Robb

International News Service Staff Writer

New York, July 30 (INS).—It's an ill wind, indeed, that blows nobody good. The wind, which was removed from the sails of the yachting world by the depression, has been returned—in gale force—by World War No. 2.

It took nothing less dramatic and drastic than a war to provide a yachting market once more, after one of the most terrible doldrums in which the sport has ever been becalmed.

But it is symptomatic of the world in which we live that it is not the rich who are buying yachts once more: It is the rich who are selling them and selling to the only prospects rich enough to afford yachts—the Governments of the United States, Canada and Great Britain!

Many of the largest and most luxurious yachts afloat have long since been turned into sleek, swift war craft, their sparkling white hulls painted a dingy war-gray. In every instance, the governments of the democracies have bought them for a fraction of their cost. 'In many instances, no more than a token payment exchanged hands.

Even the Czar of all the Russians in the hey-day of the czars never made a more munificent or princely gesture than that of the St. Louis pharmaceutical magnate, Gerard B. Lambert, who presented his private armada of yachts as a gift to the American and British governments.

Two of his fast, ocean-going flotilla have been given by Lambert to the United States Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn. They are the Utilitie and the Atlantic, both equally famous in yachting circles.

The third and most famous of all, the old Yankee, often contender, runner-up and tuner-up for the America's Cup races, was broken up on instructions from Lambert. The money thus obtained from her salvage was presented to the British government to build a fighting Spitfire plane.

One of the largest and most famous yachts afloat, J. P. Morgan's swift, ocean-going Corsair, on which he was wont to cruise the Mediterranean with the Archbishop of Canterbury in better days, is now under British registry, refitted for service as a war vessel.

It is only a matter of days since Morgan quietly presented the beautiful and luxurious furnishings of the Corsair, whose shining black hull was an exception to the white rule, to Bundles for Britain. The fittings are to be sold at auction by this organization, and the money used to further its war relief woek.

Two equally large and luxurious yachts, the Alder and the Hi-Esmaro, which used to roam the seven seas in happier times, are now the property of the United States Navy. The first has been rechristened the U. S. S. St. James and the second the U. S. S. Niagara.

The Alder was for many years the property of Mrs. William Boyce Thompson, widow of the famous mining engineer and mother-in-law of dashing Tony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., former American Ambassador to Poland and now American Ambassador to the numerous governments in exile in London.

The Hi-Esmaro, which was built just about the time the depression hit the Nation, was owned by H. Edward Manville, head of the great asbestos firm.

These three vessels, the Corsair, Alder and Hi-Esmaro, were among the finest private yachts afloat. Like Vincent Astor's Nourmahal, each required a crew of at least 50 men. Only financiers such as Morgan, Astor and Manville and a woman of multimillions such as Mrs. Thompson could keep such yachts in commission in a day when a sailor's wages are three and four times what they were at the turn of the century.

During the decade just ended, yachting—the most costly sport in the world—has simply outdistanced the means of even New York's most affluent men and women.

Producer of 'Wings' Presents 'Sergeant York;' A Convention Divulges Its Super-Specials; News and Notes of the Amusement World

YESTERDAY'S HIGHLIGHT, of course, was the quiz game between the press and Sergt. York, Mrs. York, Jesse L. Lasky, coproducer with the Warner Brothers of "Sergeant York," having its Washington premiere in the Earle Theater tonight; Maj. Gen. George B. Duncan, United States Army, retired; Gov. Prentice Cooper, of Tennessee, and numerous others of importance, in the Carlton Hotel just as the rains came.

GENE TIERNEY

Report of the questions and answers popped at and by Sergt. York thicker than bullets in the Argonne, will be found in other columns of today's Post. On the purely personal side, it was a pleasure to renew acquaintanceship with Jesse Lasky, whose last official visit to the Capital was in the capacity of head-man, with Adolph Zukor, of the Paramount convention held in the same hotel back in 1928.

"When we showed 'Wings' in preview at that time," Mr. Lasky recalled, "you may remember that I boasted that it was the last word in aviation pictures and never in the history of the cinema would be matched. The funny part of it was that at the time I really believed it—and so did you."

Mr. Lasky was entirely right. He had with him on that junket, the youthful "Buddy" Rogers, star of the film; the late John Monk Saunders, its author; George Putnam, Charles McCarthy, director of publicity; George Britt and a host of other luminaries. It was quite a week the boys put in here. Herbert Hoover, not yet President; Mr. Zukor and the late Otto H. Kahn were among those who addressed that convention at its banquet in the Carlton.

And now, a baker's dozen of years later, here comes Mr. Lasky again, as an associate of Warner Brothers, having in tow one of the great heroes of American history. There seems to be some pith in that old one about what you can't do to a good man. "Sergeant York" is a better picture than "Wings" and Mr. Lasky is not unaware of that fact.

"I hope it won't be another 13 years until I'm back with another one," is what he said after the quiz game had been tuned out.

The subcommittee on entertainment of the District Council of Defense makes definite announcement that the second evening of auditions of the volunteers to tour the Army training camps in this territory will be held in the auditorium of Central High School this Saturday night at 8. From these hearings, it is expected enough talent will emerge to recruit the unit to be directed by Gene Ford, of Loew's Capitol. It would be nice if all of the remaining registrants could be there promptly.

Super-Supers in the Offing

That bulky bundle that we thought at first might be a complete set of the Encyclopedia Brittanica, turned out to be merely the complete printed record of the recent Twentieth Century-Fox annual convention held in Hollywood. It will take fully as long to read it all as it would have if we had guessed right the first time.

However, we've got far enough along to discover that there were a lot of Washingtonians, past and present, prominent enough in the doings to have their pictures taken and printed in "Dynamo," the company's house organ. Among those bobbing up in print as decorative art are Sam Wheeler, Twentieth Century-Fox manager in the Washington territory; Arthur De Titta, formerly local representative of Movietone News; Tony Muto, present incumbent; Truman Talley, their boss; George Fuller, formerly Metro manager in this city, and Roger Ferri, veteran publicist, who used to be more or less prevalent hereabouts when the Capitol Theater was the Fox. The boys seemed to be having themselves a time.

In case anyone is interested in what it was the lads were celebrating, the answer would seem to be the list of Twentieth Century superspecials and their dates of release. They will be coming along something like this: August 1, Jack Benny in "Charley's Aunt;" August 15, "Wild Geese Calling"—and this does not refer to the delegates; August 29, "Sun Valley Serenade;" September 12, Gene Tierney in "Belle Starr," in Technicolor; September 26, Tyrone Power in "A Yank in the R. A. F.;" October 10, "Weekend in Havana;" October 17, "Swamp Waters," with Walter Houston; October 30, "Hot Spot;" November 13, "How Green Was My Valley;" November 28, "Confirm or Deny" and, December 5, "Remember the Day." Or can't you wait?

Tonight's-the-Night Note

Columbia

Hollywood's Technicolor, musical impression of Florida's Miami Beach returns to F Street this morning with the opening of "Moon Over Miami" at the Columbia. Probably because it's leagues removed from reality, it's got what it takes to make Johnny Q. Public jump to the boxoffice.

Technicolor, plus a typically sleek Twentieth Century-Fox production and cast, doubtless explains "Moon Over Miami's" unequivocal success in its strange metier. Betty Grable, as Miss Parsons would say, "never looked lovelier;" Don Ameche is generous with his smiles and Robert Cummings is much to the fore as the fun-loving, exuberant fellow whose wealth attracts the three blind mice of the plot.

Comedy in this story of gold-diggers and their prey is handled mainly by Charlotte Greenwood and Jack Haley, with song and dance playing a helpful role in the proceedings. Carole Landis and Cobina Wright, jr., are the more celebrated glamour girls on view and altogether you'll find "Moon Over Miami" just the way it is in those alluring midwinter travel folders.

CHARLES BUTTERWORTH: You weren't aware of it, but you made a broadcast, while you were flying from Hollywood to New York. At the Nashville stop-off, a broadcast was made from the airport, in which all the passengers described their reactions. The announcer put the microphone into your berth, and said: "And now we'll hear from Charles Butterworth, that famous movie actor." Those sleeping pills had worked. Your snore was broadcast.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WICKARD: Yesterday Lucille Watson, of "Watch on the Rhine," met Dorothy Parker and said: "I've heard so much about your wonderful farm in Pennsylvania. You must tell me all about it." Dorothy told her all about it, in two words—"Want it?" . . . VINTON FREEDLEY: Danny Kaye, who will appear in your new musical, met Garson Kanin, the movie director who now is in the Army. Kaye told him of his plans to go to a health resort next month. "We get up at 6," said Kaye, "and hike 5 miles. Then a cold shower—breakfast—then hike 5 miles, cold shower, lunch; then more hiking, another cold shower, then supper—all simple, healthful meals. And it only costs me $100 a week" . . . "I do the same thing," said Kanin, "and get paid $21 amonth."

HEDDA HOPPER

Hitched to the Stars

Hollywood, Calif., July 30. It was certainly lucky for Margaret Hayes, Paramount's newcomer, to have Ned Griffith stroll by when she was in the midst of having her name revamped. 'Twas Ned suggested Margaret Hayes, after his two favorite actresses, Margaret Sullavan and Helen Hayes.

MADELEINE CARROLL

Ned tells me the color scenes he took in the Bahamas are the most beautiful he's ever seen. There's something in the clearness of the atmosphere that gives depth, and are Stirling Hayden and Madeleine Carroll lucky? Their last two pictures have been in color. His next will be "Into The Frying Pan," which will give the young hopefuls at Paramount a much needed opportunity. After all, it didn't do Stirling Hayden, or Myrna Loy, any harm to be discovered by him.

The other day while I was driving out to Metro, at a stop signal a car pulled up beside me and from the driver's smiling face, done up in grease paint, came a greeting, saying, "Hello, Hedda . . . bet you don't know me, do you?" I owned up and he said . . . "Harry Langdon, and gee! Am I happy I'm going to work again!"

There's nothing new in the fact that most sons shun the professions of their fathers, but studio officials were set right back on their heels when Mike Brennan, son of Walter, turned down a role in "Swamp Water" on the grounds that movies aren't "lucrative."

"What do you mean, not 'lucrative?' There's your own father with three Oscars and averaging $100,000 a year!" "Well," said Mike, "that's all just luck. I'm making $30 a month on the ranch. I like the work, it's sure pay and I don't depend on a good box office from the cows. You can take the movies, I don't want any part of 'em!"

Tigers, being of the cat family, are traditionally leery of water, but not during a heat wave. On the jungle set for Dorothy Lamour there was Satan, our famous tiger, stalking Dotty for a scene. Just as he was supposed to charge Dotty, Satan turned and dove into the pool.

Nils Asther was interviewed yesterday in Paramount Commissary by a young out-of-town girl reporter, who kept plying him with questions long after the room had emptied. Suddenly she glanced up at the wall clock and gasped, "Oh! Is that clock RUNNING?" "No, my dear young lady," said Nils, "it's just standing there wringing its hands!"

The Governor General of Canada and his lady were interested spectators watching Mike Curtis direct Jimmy Cagney, Alan Hale, George Tobias and Dennis Morgan in scenes for "Captains of the Clouds." They made a big hit with the entire company who were impressed with their friendliness and keen humor.

Bogart Reforms; Becomes Detective

The last of the bad men has joined the forces of law and order.

Humphrey Bogart, the famed killer, from Duke Mantee in "The Petrified Forest" to Roy Earle in "High Sierra," has ratted on the mob.

He plays a detective in "The Maltese Falcon," now before cameras.

Bogey's quick-change will not be too much of a shock to his fans, however, because Sam Spade, hero of the Dashiell Hammett story, is a tight-lipped dick who keeps things pretty much to himself and is suspected by the cops of pretty nearly everything in the book.

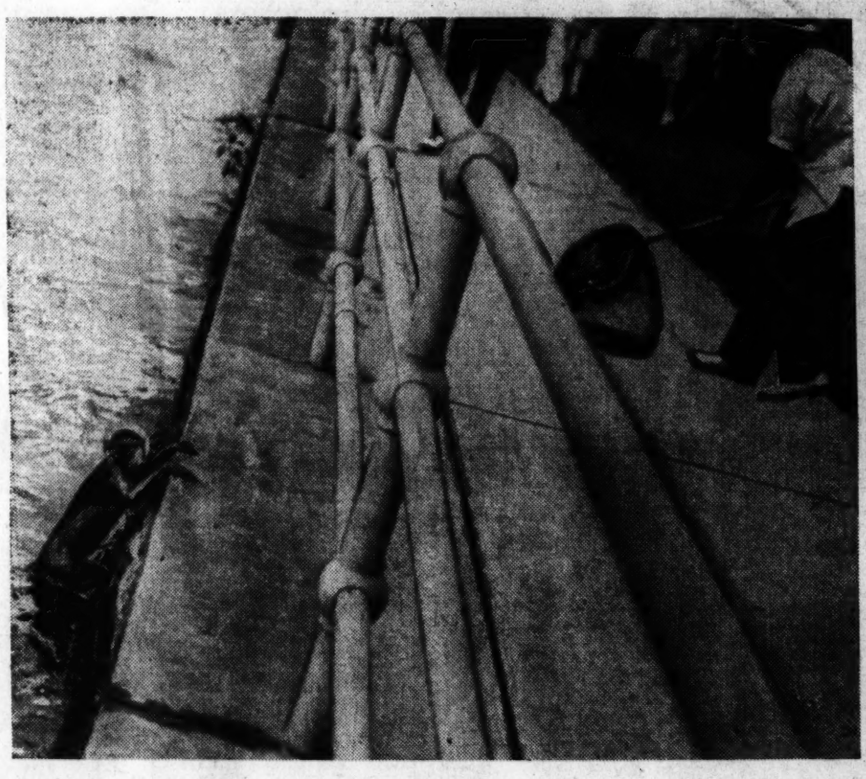
Fugitive Monk Loses Battle for Freedom in Storm-Swept Potomac

1. NAMELESS MONK, a fugitive from the National Institute of Health, retains his perch high in a willow on Hains Point. He leered at pursuers who approached with nets and poles, then . . .

2. WITH PAWS FLASHING too fast to see, the monkey bounded to the ground, ran between the legs of the crowd, dashed to the seawall, dived into the Potomac with a leap of 20 feet

3. THE SEA-GOING SIMIAN was under water 20 seconds before his head appeared 15 feet from the place it submerged. With a long lead over the nets, he stroked for the Virginia shore

4. A SPEEDBOAT entered the race, but the courageous monk always led by several lengths. When the monkey chasers made swipes at him with their nets and paddles, our hero dived under the boat, came up on the other side



5. IN THE LAST LAP, after a 15-minute chase by the boat, the monkey came up to the seawall to get his second wind and look around. The money by now was all on the monk and the crowd was wild

6. THE END came suddenly. In a resigned moment, the nameless simian took a firm hold of a fishing pole extended by one of the catchers. Seconds, and the monkey was in a net, then stuffed into a bag. The bag, though, was never still. (Story on Page 1.)

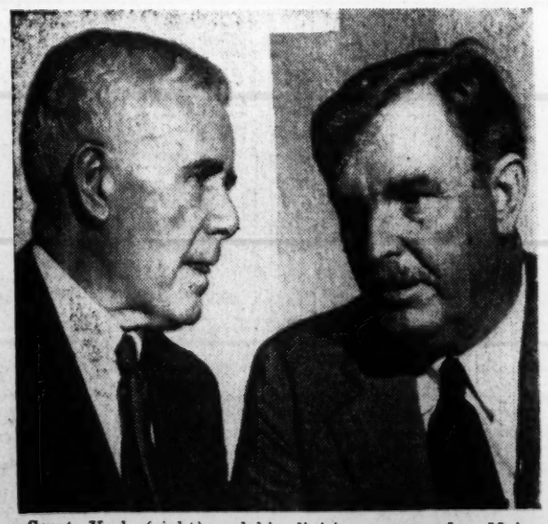
Sergt. York Here for Film Premiere



Sergt. York (right) and his division commander, Maj. Gen. George B. Duncan

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Russia, by holding the Germans, may yet keep the United States out of the war, according to a red-haired Tennessean who knows a thing or two about shootin'.

Having reluctantly left his 395-acre farm in the Valley of Three Forks of the Wolf to come here for a movie premiere, Sergt. Alvin C. York yesterday unburdened himself of that observation. And another one, too.

"The Japanese," volunteered the man called by Gen. Pershing "the greatest civilian soldier of the war"—"why, the Japanese are just—just going in for propaganda."

Sergt. York—the middle initial stands for Cullum—was holding a press conference at the Carlton Hotel. Mrs. York, seated near him, seemed a little ill at ease amid the swanky appointments of a suite, so much more pretentious than their simple farm home near Jamestown, Tenn. Only down there they call it Jimtown.

Little more than an hour earlier they had reached the Capital by train. It was Mrs. York's first visit here. For Woodrow Wilson York, 15, the only one of the seven children to make the trip, it was his first train ride.

Their reception at Union Station was one such as Washington sees only too seldom. The lower level crawled with members of Congress, Boy Scouts, uniformed war veterans, representatives of Warner Bros. (makers of "Sergt. York," which opens at the Earle tonight), the press and just plain onlookers.

When the 270-pound former soldier, who is now chairman of his local draft board, marched through the Boy Scout guard of honor, a huge banner proclaiming "Welcome Sergt. York" burst full into his view. After speaking a few words into a microphone, he and Mrs. York got into a limousine with Senator McKellar to be speeded to the White House.

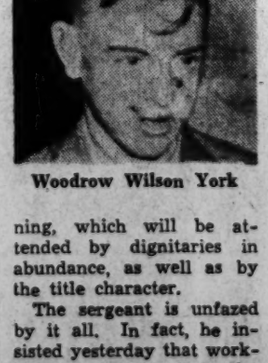
President Roosevelt told the visitor he saw the biographical picture about 10 days ago and enjoyed it. He added, lightly, that one sequence may have been a bit gory.

Sergt. York just smiled, refraining from an explanation that the decommissioning of more than 25 Germans by gunfire and the capturing of 132 more can hardly be achieved without something of a mess.

From the White House, to lunch at the Carlton, then to the War Department to finger the new Garand rifle, which York describes as "a big improvement" over the Enfield he used 23 years ago, not to mention the old-fashioned "cap and ball" antique which he still employs at turkey shoots.

Thence to the press conference, following which the schedule called for radio interviews and a spell of autographing defense bond albums at Treasury House last night. Today he will speak at a luncheon of the American War Mothers at the Carlton and at a dinner of the Tennessee State Society at the Willard. This noon Sergt. York will give the invocation when the Senate reconvenes.

Then, of course, there is the film premiere this evening, which will be attended by dignitaries in abundance, as well as by the title character.



Woodrow Wilson York

The sergeant is unfazed by it all. In fact, he insisted yesterday that working the farm is a harder job than all this dashing from train to White House to hotel to War Department to radio stations and back to hotels and to theaters and all.

He weighs about 100 pounds more than he did on that day—October 8, 1918—of his fabulous exploit in taking 132 prisoners, including the machine gun battalion's commander. He still has the mustache and it is still red, though perhaps a less militant red.

In Hollywood as a technical adviser to Producer Jesse L. Lasky in the making of the film, Sergt. York had himself a time comparing his gun collection with that of Gary Cooper, his movie prototype. One of the York relics is a pistol more than 150 years old which did business for an ancestor of Mrs. York's.

Mrs. York is the former Gracie Williams, childhood sweetheart of this man whose World War glory is being revived because of the times. The names of their seven children are as American as the Cumberland Mountains: Alvin, jr., George Edward Buxton, Woodrow Wilson, Andrew Jackson, Thomas Jefferson, Betsy Ross and Mary Alice.

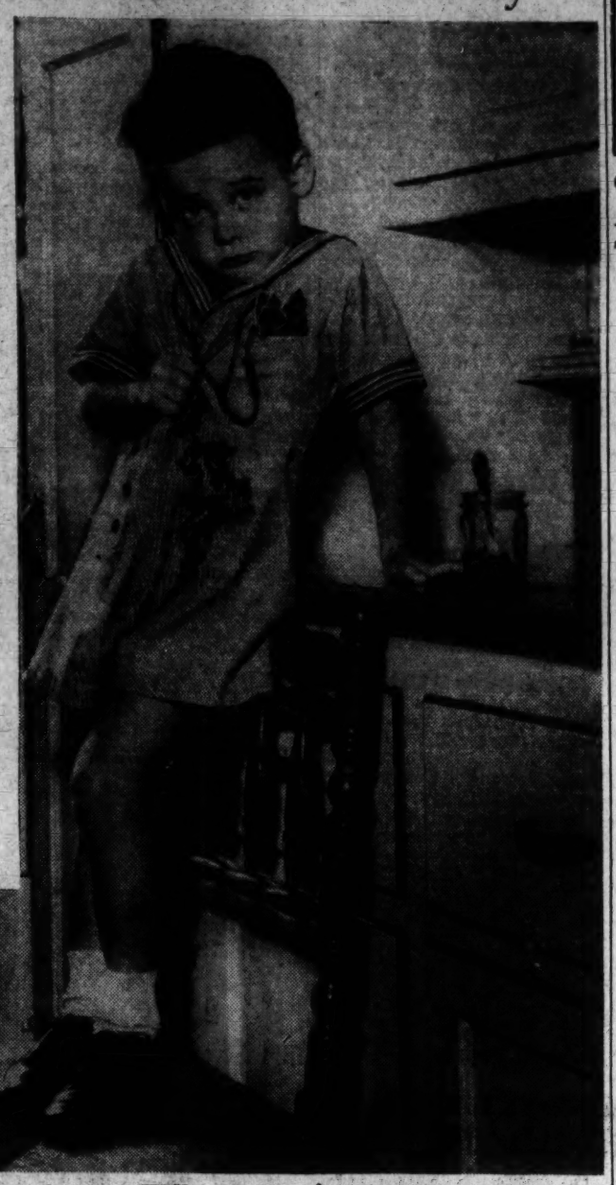
Junior, the eldest, will be 21 in March. Pa says he wanted to join the Navy at the age of 18 but got married instead. He is the father of a 4-month-old son, which makes the sergeant a grandfather and very proud of it.

George Edward Buxton York is named for his father's battalion commander, who brought the deed of valor to the attention of Maj. Gen. George B. Duncan, commander of the Eighty-second Division. The latter personally covered the battle ground before recommending York—then a corporal—for the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Gen. Duncan, now retired but still hale, came up from Lexington, Ky., for tonight's premiere and seldom left his friend's side yesterday.

Immediately after his return from France, Sergt. York was married to "the girl he left behind"

Science Now Has Cure for Every Dress Spot, But Dry Cleaner Must Have the 'Case History'



Vivacious Mac Nations, aged 4, is in no mood to come smiling through the tragedy that overtook him when he boarded a chair, climbed to his mother's cupboard, obtained a glass of his favorite blackberry jelly, and straightway spilled it down his new sailor suit. Mac is usually impeccable in his grooming and this mishap brought a life-sized frown. However, he need not be so unhappy, for when his mother sends his suit to a reliable dry cleaner, and explains the stain, the suit will come home looking just like new. Dry cleaning experts today make a study of weaves and textures of garments manufactured and know the procedure to use without damaging the fabric.

Weave and Texture of Garment Will Determine Method of Erasing Soil; Testing Laboratories Provide Aid

By Martha Ellyn.
Post Household Editor

INTO everyone's wardrobe some spots must fall. These minor tragedies usually happen just when a woman is ready to go to a luncheon, tea or dinner where she wants to look her best. In her hurried effort to restore the "best dress," she tries a home remedy—usually with anything but satisfactory results.

Martha Ellyn

Almost daily some one calls the Household Editor greatly concerned about spots on clothing. The first thing one must know about a spot is what caused it, for spots from different sources need different treatment.

Too often soap and water have been tried with disheartening results. While these are indispensable in our lives, they are not necessarily the cure for all spots on all types of materials.

Take It to Cleaner

My advice to most inquirers is to take the garment to a reliable dry cleaner, explain what the spot or stain is and let the cleaner do the work. Dry cleaning today is a personalized type of service. Although we are living in the machine age, a dry cleaning plant cannot be operated like some other huge factory. There is such a vast variety of weaves and textures on the market today that garments cannot all be treated alike. Fibers are identified under such headings as acetate rayon, viscose rayon, Nylon, Vinyon, silk, wool or cotton. Removing spots, for example, without damaging fabrics means that it must be done by an expert who positively identifies the new weaves.

Those who have had sad experiences with their dry cleaning, had a favorite dress returned by the cleaner two sizes too small or one too big—may ask whether cleaner or manufacturer is to blame. The answer may be "it is your own fault." That means that the garment has not been taken to a reliable cleaner who has technicians trained to know materials and the substance needed to eradicate dirt, soil, grease and stains.

Questions and Answers

Here are some questions and answers given me by authorities on dyeing and cleaning that many homemakers may like to know:

Q.—If my dress comes back from the cleaner several times too small, can a reliable cleaner undo the damage?

A.—Yes, the chances are he can. There is a possibility, that the material may be at fault, but if there is the slightest doubt, members of the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners have available for research the testing laboratories at Silver Spring.

Q.—My young son went to a party. He spilled grape juice on his new ice cream pants. Will dry-cleaning remove the stain?

A.—Probably, but don't try any first-aid remedies. You may make the stain worse. Get his party pants to a good dry cleaner immediately. Grape juice is a very tenacious stain, and if it is spilled on white flannel and if the garment does not get to the cleaner immediately, chances are he will not be able to get the entire stain out. White flannel can't stand too severe treatment because of its tendency to felt.

Q.—My child spilled a bottle of iron glue on her breadspread. What shall I do?

A.—Get the spread off to a dry cleaner without delay. Technically the answer is: Glue is an animal extract, a protein. It is soluble in hot water, but after coming in contact with fabric and drying, it adheres. Your dry cleaner has special spotting agents, which in his parlance will "digest" glue, so just show him the tragedy and he will take care of it.

It's About Time

IT'S ABOUT TIME to use bordered material in a new way. Borders are generally used at hem . . . place yours at top of skirt. Do not use the border elsewhere on the dress. This idea is good for day dresses or dinner dresses.

Practical Tips For Home Nurse

A VITAL part of our defense program is the campaign to build up our national health. You, the home nurse, have an important role—to take care of your family's ills more competently than ever.

That isn't a frightening task when you know the simple efficient methods used by trained nurses. You can learn to care for an almost helpless patient.

Perhaps you will have to lift her in bed, to adjust her pillows. Have her put her right hand around your neck and hold on to your shoulder. Put your right hand over her left shoulder with your palm on her back—then straighten up, lifting your patient with you and turning the pillow with your free hand.

Girl Questions Value of Attractive Home Set-Up As Beau-Catching Device; Finds It Induces Men To 'Sponge,' Rather Than to Pay Gallant Court

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The impulse to make answer to your reply (of July 21) to "Jean," at last overwhelms me. Her problem was how to win men friends—of whom she has had none since coming here two years ago, despite the fact that she is young, good looking, well-dressed and socially versatile. You tell her the fault is not in herself, but in her set-up; that a girl must establish herself in an attractive domestic set-up, in order to take her place, "socially," in a new community.

Last year, I would have agreed whole-heartedly with your remarks. But now I am beginning to wonder. When I arrived here last year, I went to the Y. W. C. A. to live, until I had made friends. Later, with three other girls, I went to live in a lovely furnished apartment—the costs of which were to be (and are) shared among us. Our ages range from 22 to 28. On occasion, we have slight differences such as would occur in any "family" group; but, in general, we get along splendidly.

Oddly enough, we have given to the apartment all those "home-like," finishing touches which you suggested to Jean—with the sole exception of family portraits in the living room! But to make up for that, we have a very fine radio-victrola combination and an excellent collection of phonograph records (thanks to the kindness of a friend who was drafted). Our library is diversified and our meals, we are told, are the equal of mother's or Aunt Jemima's.

Soon after we had settled in, we gave a party and invited a number of our friends. Everyone had a marvelous time. However, very few of the men guests called us later for dates. (We know, of course, that a certain percentage of men on-the-loose like to go where they can find congenial company and good food at no cost to themselves; and we are not eager to see such as these again. And perhaps we just didn't happen to "click" with the others).

Then, several months later, we gave a birthday surprise party for one of the girls and invited only those whom we had good reason to think of as friends. Meanwhile, each of us had been having dates, intermittently. And all of us were friendly and hospitable to the others' acquaintances. (We have always kept "open house" for our friends, and go out of our way to make them comfortable.) On occasion, we would invite our men friends to dinner or for Sunday night supper. And here is the rub! After a while, they seemed to expect it; they came again and again, and stopped taking us out.

But it was not until they started bringing new girl friends around—for us to pass judgment on—that we got annoyed. We are not gold diggers; but we didn't want them to treat our home as a place to park, whenever they felt the urge. (And one of the men actually was so bold as to bring a girl to our apartment one evening as a means of entertainment for her, when he happened to be short of funds to take her out).

Then, one of my roommates met a man from out of town, who came to see her very often thereafter. And whenever he was here, we allowed him to sleep on the studio couch in the living room. After a while, this privilege was taken by him as a matter of course, although I must say he was always a most thoughtful guest, bringing flowers, candy, etc. He proposed marriage to my roommate, who was very fond of him (as all of us were), but it later came to light that, all during this time, he was engaged to a girl in his home town—a girl to whom he is now married. He never mentioned her existence to my roommate until three weeks before the wedding took place. Now, we feel that he abused our friendship and faith in him by keeping this information a secret while using our home as local headquarters for "playing the field."

I could go on and on, enumerating the different types of men we have met, who have called at our home in the guise of "friend"—but whose behavior raises the question of whether they regarded us as friends or "suckers." Like your correspondent "Jean," we, too, want to know men who will take us dining and dancing occasionally. But for some unknown reason, such an idea never seems to occur to the men we know. When pay day comes around, our telephone never rings. But it rings regularly during the week before pay day. We are forced to conclude that the good meals we serve have something to do with this "coincidence."

Therefore, my advice to "Jean" is as follows: "Never let any man treat your home as a club house; nor let him take advantage of your good natured inclination to be friendly and hospitable to all callers. Judging from our experiences, it appears that, for a man, the things he has to pay for are much more desirable and more appreciated than those that are given graciously, out of friendliness and sheer generosity. But correct me if I am wrong. Sincerely, TWENTY-FOUR.

Author Warns Women Not to Be Easy Marks

DEAR TWENTY-FOUR: Your advice to "Jean" is excellent. It is a grave mistake for a woman to try to win a man's heart by smothering him with hospitality—as John Bleeckman points out in his book, "The Way to His Heart," a book written for the purpose of giving women 'the low-down on how to corral a husband and, also, how to keep suitors gallantly attentive.

Mr. Bleeckman explicitly says (as reported in this column before now), that a girl loses value in a man's eyes, when she lets him take up her time by loading in her parlor. He says, in effect, that it is death to romance, if habitually indulged. He advises girls to deal briskly with this type of man—firstly, by pointedly suggesting places to go and things to do (at his expense); and, secondly (if this doesn't work) by being to busy to see him, when he suggests spending "quiet evenings" at her home. Middle-Aged Look Results When the Waistline Measures Only Five Inches Less Than Bust

Six-Inch Difference Produces Silhouette Of Middle 30's

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOUR waistline barely measures five inches less than the bust, it makes you look middle-aged. A difference of six inches gives you an average, mid-30's silhouette. But, for youth and streamlines, the difference has to approximate eight to nine inches.

The comparison of bust and hipline should work out just the opposite. The less the difference between these two measurements, the better your figure. The hips should never measure more than three inchs larger than the bust. But figures seem to go by contraries and the rule is apt to be too little difference between bust and waist, and too much between bust and hips.

It is not out of the ordinary for a figure to measure 34 inches at the bust, 26 at the waist, and 38 at the hips. The way to better those measurements is to slim two inches off the waist and at least one off the hips. This is easy to do, provided you give the exercises you choose the right twist. Here are some that it would be hard to do wrong:

POSITION: Sit on floor, knees straight, feet wide apart, arms stretched overhead.

MOVEMENT: Holding arms in same position, twist and bend at waist to touch left hand to outstretched right foot. Continually pull up with the diaphragm and keep hips under you. That exercise, and others like it, will take inches off your waist.

That's fairly strenuous, so take it easy in this next one:

POSITION: Lie flat on your back on the floor with legs together, straight down, arms up on floor overhead.

MOVEMENT: Work around to the right, bringing feet and hands as close together as possible until your body is in a semicircle. Relax, then work back in the other direction. Keep your back as flat as you can.

Both the exercises above will shear inches off your waist. But if you need more inches in the bust circumference, work along these lines:

POSITION: Hold lightweight books of about the same weight in both hands. Stand erect.

MOVEMENT: Circle arms from shoulders, up and back, 20 times.

If your trouble is too much hipline . . .

POSITION: Face downward on floor, legs straight down, arms stretched on floor overhead.

MOVEMENT: Raise alternate legs from hips, knees straight. Repeat 25 times, later 50 times.

China's Former Envoy To Belgium Visits Here

Chien Tai Is One of Many Diplomats Ousted From European Posts by War Now 'Refugeeing' Through Capital

By Patricia Grady

The present war in Europe which sends to Washington diplomats whose foreign posts are no longer in existence, seems to be an ill wind blowing good to the Capital City. Since most such travelers, en route home, pass through the United States, it is only to be expected that they should stop a few days in the Capital City for exchanges of confidences with their embassies and legations here.

The most recent of such visitors is Chien Tai, former Chinese Ambassador to Belgium, who is sojourning with Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese Ambassador, during his stay here. Mr. Chien followed the Belgian government to Ostend during the Nazi invasion and stayed at his desk there until that city was reduced to shambles by enemy bombs. When the Belgian government took refuge in London, Mr. Chien received instructions to go to Geneva and await orders from his own embattled government at Chunking. Meanwhile, a Charge d'Affaires handles China's problems with the Belgian government in London.

May Become Vice Minister

With his wife and children, Mr. Chien remained in the city of internationalists' dreams until he was ordered to return to China, where, so rumor hath it, he is to become the vice minister of foreign affairs, a position which corresponds to that of Sumner Welles here. If rumor is true, Mr. Chien will be working with Dr. Quo Tai-chi, the minister of foreign affairs, whom Capitalites had a chance to meet during his visit here several months ago. Dr. Hu Shih introduced him to officialdom at a garden party at the Embassy. China seems to be making a habit of drawing its foreign affairs leaders from its roster of European diplomats, for Dr. Quo resigned his post as Ambassador to London to take his present position in Chungking.

Leaving his family in Geneva until he can make arrangements for them to return to China, Mr. Chien went to Lisbon, where he took the clipper for New York. Arriving in New York on Friday, he remained there over the week-end and came to Washington Monday. He will leave Washington by plane next week for San Francisco, from whence he hopes to secure Pacific clipper reservations for China.

Dr. Hu Shih Gives Dinner

Last night the Chinese Ambassador entertained informally at a dinner in honor of Mr. Chien at Twin Oaks. Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell M. Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. George Atcheson, all State Department experts on Far Eastern affairs.

The embassy, the charming old Alexander Graham Bell home on Woodley Road, has recently undergone fumigation and is now, according to Dr. Hu, "free from cockroaches and free from fumigators." The Ambassador felt that last week's fumigation was a legitimate excuse to take a few days off and went to New York for a short vacation, but complications in the Far Eastern struggle ensued and he rushed back to be at his desk. That was the second time this summer that Dr. Hu has tried to get a few days rest from his arduous job, only to have "circumstances alter cases."

He does hope, however, that he can steal away for a little time this summer and is planning on a trip to the West Coast in the fall.

CAPITALIZING: Mrs. Melvyn Douglas flew into town last night from her family's summer home in Fairlee, Vt. The lovely Mrs. Douglas, or to those who know her professionally, Helen Gahagan, will leave today or tomorrow for her home in California. She will return to put into effect the plans of the Civilian Participation Committee, whose last week meeting at the White House she came East to attend. . . . Alice Barry, daughter of Mrs. David Barry, is spending this week in Washington with Mary Wilson in her home on Kalorama Circle. Miss Barry will then return to Nonquitt, Mass., where her family is vacationing. . . . Lieut. Ord Preston, jr., has taken a short leave from Quantico and is spending a few days with his wife at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach.

Cuban Doctors Feted by Envoy

The Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Concheso were hosts at a cocktail party on Tuesday afternoon for a group of Cuban physicians who have come here to lay the basis for establishing a Finlay Institute. It is named after Dr. Carlos J. Finlay, famous physician who discovered that yellow fever is transmitted by the mosquito.

Visiting doctors at the party included Dr. Rafael Menocal, Dr. Guillermo Lage, Dr. Enrique Saladrigas, Dr. Mario LeRoy, Dr. Jorge Roa, Dr. J. A. Brand and Dr. Edgar Mayer. Also present were Representative Sol Bloom, at whose invitation the visitors came here; Miss Vera Bloom, Dr. L. S. Rowe and various members of the staff of the embassy and the Pan American Sanitary Bureau.

That evening the party was entertained at dinner at the Mayflower by Representative Bloom. Vice President Wallace also was in the group.

Many Parties Given For Bride-to-Be

Miss Kathryn Campbell, who will be married to Wallace Irving Babcock on August 9 at Trinity Episcopal Church, has been feted at a round of parties. Last night she was the guest of honor at a shower given by Miss Beverly Marshall.

Miss Helen Leane, who will serve as maid of honor at the ceremony, will entertain at a shower for the bride-elect on Monday. Miss Mary Crowell will be the other attendant and Maxwell Brasch will serve as best man. Miss Janice Harrington entertained at a shower on Monday at her home, Brookemont, in honor of Miss Campbell.

The bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Ray Campbell, were hosts last Friday evening at a party following the rehearsal. Miss Campbell was graduated from George Washington University, where she was a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and is now connected with the Library of Congress. Mr. Babcock, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Babcock, studied at George Washington and was graduated from National Law School. He is a member of Sigma Nu and Delta Theta Phi fraternities.

Piries to Visit In Canada

Leaving today for a visit to Canada are Air Commodore and Mrs. G. C. Pirie. Air Commodore Pirie, who recently resigned from his position as air attache of the British Legation, will spend a short time with his wife near Montreal before flying to London to receive his next assignment.

On the way to Canada, the former air attache and his wife will stop for visits with their son, who is at Wentworth Camp, in New Hampshire, and their daughter, who is in a summer camp at Pocono Pines. After her husband leaves for England, Mrs. Pirie will tour through Canada and will spend some time with friends in Maine before returning to Washington. She and her children will remain in Washington, in their Massachusetts Avenue apartment, until she knows her husband's plans.

The new air attache of the British Embassy, Air Commodore H. N. Thornton, was formerly British air attache in Sweden. His wife, who is now in London, will join him here in about six weeks.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

AT A SMALL and quiet wedding ceremony on Saturday at noon, the Marquise Kortryc d'Albizzi and Lawrence Knapp, of Washington, will be married. No formal announcement of their engagement has been made, but their friends have been told about it and several parties are being given for them this week.

Dudley Harmon

The prospective bride is an attractive English girl from Cardiff, Wales, who was first married to an Italian and has been living in Canada. She came to Washington last winter to make her home. Mr. Knapp is the assistant general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board and shares a house in Georgetown with Henry Whitney.

THE OTHER afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Peet were hosts at a cocktail party for the couple in the garden of their home in Georgetown. The future bride arrived with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Louchheim, at whose house she is staying until her wedding. Immediately after the wedding reception, which will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanger, the Louchheims will be off for a month's holiday in Vermont.

Seen here and there at the party: The pretty hostess in a cool looking summer print . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding arriving in evening dress en route to a dinner party—she is very busy these days working for the AWVS canteen down by the War Department . . . Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert Train . . . Laura Tuckerman, in a black and white print, talking to Mrs. Theodore Dominick . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rhetts and Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard van Arkel comparing notes . . . The Malcolm Rosses, in from Alexandria for the party . . . Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mahony; she was Margot Lee . . . the Richard Sangers arriving and saying they felt the wedding reception should be held at their house since the young couple used to go for daily hikes around the reservoir nearby. Mrs. Sanger will be off after the wedding to visit at a ranch in the West.

Others at the party included Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., Anne Perin, busy with her real estate job, and being told the sad tale of a househunting couple who were offered a choice between between only five houses by four leading Washington firms; Polly Ehrlich, just back from a trip to Mexico; Henry Whitney, who will be best man for Mr. Knapp on Saturday, and several others. All in all, it does seem as though there are a good many people still left in town.

MRS. GEORGE HOWE, who can really cook, whipped up the excellent Vichyoisse soup herself at her dinner for Robert Coe the other night. The party was a farewell affair, as Bob has since left for Wyoming and will go on to London early in September for duty at the American Embassy.

On his last night in Washington everybody relaxed by playing a good game of murder. The Howes' home near Olney is perfect for an informal party, with its large, high-ceilinged rooms opening one into the other. Among those who gathered to speed Bob on his way were the British First Secretary and Mrs. Hoyer Millar, who are sticking out the summer in Washington, except for occasional brief weekends at Nonquitt; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cumming, jr.—she will fly out to California next month for the last two weeks of August; Joseph Cotton, the Edward Burlings, Anne Perin, David Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Walton Butterworth and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell.

Helen Graham, Of San Antonio, Is Guest Here

A visitor from San Antonio, Tex., is Miss Helen Graham, daughter of Col. and Mrs. E. F. Graham, who has just come to town to be the house guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Stillman, at Bolling Field.

Later Miss Graham will visit her uncle and aunt, Chief of Cavalry, Maj. Gen. John K. Herr, and Mrs. Herr at the house they have taken at 5014 Lowell Street.

Gen. and Mrs. Herr, who just recently purchased a lot near the Army and Navy Country Club, had hoped to have a home built there by this fall, but due to the defense plan's priority on building materials there has had to be some delay in the plans. They will probably take a furnished apartment this October, but hope really to get a house on their property by the time Gen. Herr retires next year.

Lieut. Hunt To Be Married

Of much interest to Washington will be the wedding on Saturday of Miss Jayn Allen Tapping, of Coldwater Canyon, Beverly Hills, Calif., to Lieut. Richard Coulter Drum Hunt, U. S. N. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock at All Saints Episcopal Church in Beverly Hills and a reception will follow at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Lieut. Hunt is the son of Mrs. Arthur D. Condon, of Washington and London Terrace, Edgewater, Md. He is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, class of 1930, and for a time was on duty in Washington, where he was an aide at the White House. He is a member of the Society of the Cincinnati and the Aztec Club.

Lieut. Hunt is at present attached to the U. S. S. Colorado, now on the West Coast.

Concert Tonight To Honor Halifax

The British Ambassador and Lady Halifax will be honored guests at the final "Sunset Symphonies" concert tonight at 8 o'clock at the Potomac Watergate, when Fiorello H. LaGuardia Mayor of New York, and U. S. director of the Office of Civilian Defense, and Hans Kindler divide the assignment of conducting the National Symphony Orchestra between them. Soloists on this occasion will be the ballet group of Nina Stroganova, Lilla Volkova and Vladimir Dokoudovsky.

Lord and Lady Halifax will hear Mayor LaGuardia conduct "The Star-Spangled Banner," with the Dubinsky fanfare, and two Sousa marches—"Hands Across the Sea" and "Semper Fidelis." Under Dr. Kindler's direction, the orchestra will play Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony in F minor, Frescobaldi's "Toccata" (aranged by Dr. Kindler), two Scriabin Etudes (arranged by the Washington composer, LaSalle Spier), and excerpts from "Boris Godounov," arranged by Dr. Kindler.

The Stroganova-Volkova-Dokoudovsky group will be seen in dances ranging from the classical to the frankly humorous, including choreography to works by Beethoven, Tchaikovsky, Albeniz, Strauss, Brahms and Offenbach.

D. C. Represented At Horse Show

Several Washingtonians have arrived in Spring Lake, N. J., for the Jersey Shore horse show at the Jersey Shore horse show at annual horse show ball at the Monmouth Hotel. The proceeds of both events will go to charity.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming will be weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Crosby. Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Distler have joined Mr. and Mrs. George A. Horton and a round of parties is being planned in their honor.

Recent arrivals at the Essex and Sussex Hotel from Washington include Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Cabray, Mrs. William F. Halsey, Mrs. Louis O. Cameron, Mrs. E. A. Gorman, Miss Ann Gorman and Maj. Stanley F. Brewster. Spending the season in a cottage at the Essex and Sussex are the former French Premier and Mme. Camille Chautemps.

Farewell Tea Is Given For Mrs. Nevile Butler

A check for equipment of a hostel for bomb-shocked children in England was presented as a testimonial to Mrs. Nevile Butler, wife of the British Minister, at a farewell tea given in her honor yesterday afternoon by the Washington branch of the British War Relief Society and the Queen Elizabeth Chapter, Daughters of the British Empire.

Lady Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador and honorary president of both organizations, made the presentation at the tea at the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Butler will return to England early in August with her husband, who has been named head of the American division of the foreign office.

The hostel—to be known as Rose Butler Hostel—is one of a number being built by the British government in the countryside, for treatment of children who have been affected by bomb shock.

Rehabilitation material and recreation facilities for the hostel will be provided by the $200 check presented yesterday.

Lady Halifax acted as hostess at the tea. In the receiving line with her were Mrs. Roy E. Lowe, state regent of the Daughters of the British Empire; Mrs. Eric Tatham, acting chairman of the British War Relief shop committee; Miss Constance Parrish, secretary; Mrs. Hobart Dickinson and Mrs. Newton Dunn, chairman of the committee for the tea.

Among those attending were Mrs. Richard G. Casey, wife of the Australian Minister; Mrs. Ralph William Close, wife of the Minister from South Africa; Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Counselor of the Canadian Legation; Mrs. Watts Kenny, wife of the Canadian air attache.

Among the guests from families connected with the British Embassy were Lady Little, Mrs. Hoyer Millar, Mrs. A. V. Golding, Mrs. G. F. Thorold and Mrs. Stephen Childs.

Mrs. Butler served as first chairman of the British War Relief Society here and supervised the organization of its activities. Lady Halifax pointed out that the presentation was a token of appreciation for her services.

Lady Halifax was gowned in a tan and white print dress and Mrs. Butler wore black and white chiffon.

Motor Corps Aids British

Members of the Motor Corps of the American Women's Voluntary Services this week have started a new task—driving representatives of the British Purchasing Commission to appointments.

Mrs. John M. Sternhagen, chairman of the corps, pointed out this activity in discusing its program yesterday.

Wearing trim blue uniforms, members of the corps have provided transportation to groups as various as Girl Scouts attending day camps and investigators making rounds for the recent District housing survey.

The corps also provides daily service at the A. W. V. S. "lunch bar" for defense workers on Constitution Avenue. Members stand ready to run errands in case the canteen runs out of cakes or sandwiches.

Members use their own cars in work for the corps. Although about 80 women have registered in the corps, the number on active duty this summer is reduced by vacation trips.

Mrs. Charles Crawford is vice chairman of the corps and Miss Jean Bernstein serves as adjutant.

Seversky Tells Need Of Unified Airforce

Wrangling Betweeen Army and Navy Over Priorities for Planes Cited as One Reason

Conflict over priorities between the Army and Navy air commands is a symptom of the United States' lack of an "over-all plan of aviation strategy," Maj. Seversky, noted military aviation authority, contends in the following dispatch.

By Maj. Alexander P. de Seversky.

Copyright by the United Press

The chronic and illogical competition for airplanes between the Army and Navy aviation branches has just found expression in public complaints from high Navy men. Rear Admiral John H. Towers, Chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, told the House Naval Affairs Committee that priorities extended to Army bombers were cutting down delivery of air equipment to the Navy and causing "grave concern" to that service.

Specifically, Admiral Towers claimed that 20 per cent shortage in actual deliveries of naval planes in the first half of this year was due to the fact that a program of four-engined land bombers had been given the right of way. Arguing that "it is logical to expect that the Navy will be called upon to meet the initial impact of any hostilities," he protested against the favored treatment for the land forces.

The following day Secretary of the Navy Knox, in a press conference, also voiced the basic naval discontent, asserting:

"There has been some interference with naval aircraft, due to the emphasis put on four-engined bombers, but I am perfectly certain that an agreement will be reached to correct this."

Touched Aching Spot

Secretary Knox touched another aching spot in the aviation situation when he alluded to the lack of consistent planning. "Waves of enthusiasm" for this or that type of aircraft, he said, kept upsetting the program.

What emerges from all such complaints is a picture of tension, bickering and unnatural competition between the two halves of our divided air force. Those responsible for Army aeronautics are no happier over this condition than the Navy officials, since their plans are always colliding with plans of the other service.

The American public, it is to be hoped, will not miss the irony of the simmering conflict. The complaints, whether expressed in private or in the open, come from the very people in our armed forces who have strenuously opposed the consolidation of all our military aviation in a single, independent service, and have been assuring the Government and the public that the present system of divided air forces is not only satisfactory but essential for perfect "coordination" and smooth operations.

Handicapped by Disputes

The fact is that for years the development of the Army Air Force, particularly in the matter of long-range aircraft, has been handicapped by jurisdictional disputes with the Navy, which has sought to put geographical limits on the Army's operations. For a time the shoreline was the limit set for the Army's airplanes. Later it was extended to 300 miles off-shore. Although today there may be no such specified boundary, the Navy insists that since it is the Nation's "outer defense" it must have a reach beyond the Army Air Force. Thus any Army program for long-range aerial bombardment is sure to conflict with Navy conceptions.

Whatever the rights and the wrongs of any specific conflict, any layman can grasp the absurdity of the condition. Clearly the growth and improvement of our aviation defenses does not depend simply on the state of aeronautical science at a given time, but upon the good will of the Army or the Navy, upon interdepartmental diplomacy, reaching "agreements" such as the one mentioned by Secretary Knox. Instead of an aviation expanding without interference, we have a constant process of bargaining and compromise under conditions of artificial bureaucratic limitations.

Knox Reference Justified

Secretary Knok is justified in his reference to the shifting enthusiasms in respect to types of aviation. The Army manages to obtain permission to extend its range over water, whereupon enthusiasm for bombers blots out sensible attention to pursuits. Then the political weather changes and the Army is told to stick to "home defense," whereupon bombers are dropped cold and there is a boom in pursuits.

In fact, since the beginning of hostilities abroad, we have gone through three such changes. We started with bombardment, switched to pursuits and now are back on a bombardment program.

This indecision glaringly exposes the fundamental fact that we have no clear-cut over-all plan of aviation strategy. We merely have Army and Navy strategies in which they use aircraft in auxiliary roles, as far as they are being educated by the experiences of the war.

The misunderstandings between the various parts of our splintered air defenses are only beginning. They are certain to grow bigger and more violent and as our air equipment grows, as the potentialities of air power are increased by the inexorable march of aeronautic science. With zero hour approaching for America, the chance of chaos and a free-for-all between the divided air forces is increasing. It can be headed off, in the writer's view, only by immediately unifying all military aviation in a single service on an equal footing with the older services.

The quarrel over aviation priorities is on the face of it unhealthy. It is a sympton of haphazard, hit-and-miss aviation development. It is ever more apparent that instead of an Army and Navy board, we need a true defense board in which aviation is represented on an equal basis.

Rigid Priorities Forecast on Iron, Steel and Alloys

A rigid priority system will soon be imposed on steel, pig iron and steel alloys, it was freely forecast by OPM sources yesterday.

The existing controls on steel supply, it was indicated, have proved to be inadequate, and despite the fact that military demands, direct and indirect, are only about one-third of the great industry's output, the fact remains that delivery difficulties have been mounting, even for defense orders.

A clear shortage has also been encountered in the supply of pig iron, basic ingredient of finished steel, it was said.

The impending priority orders may give OPM power to allocate steel to various defense uses, and to insist that nondefense contracts be suspended until all preferential orders have been filled.

Lions Dine at Zoo, Visit Namesakes

Sixty Lions, uncaged, lunched at the Zoo yesterday. Their menu: jelled consomme, filet mignon, green peas, Parisian potatoes and strawberry ice cream.

Following their cigars, they were addressed by Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Zoo. Then they walked down to the animal houses and stared at some other lions.

2d McLean Will Filed With Court

On file in the District Court yesterday was a second will executed by Edward Beale McLean, former Washington clubman and publisher.

The will, dated April 7, 1932, included bequests similar to those in a will dated a year earlier, which was filed Monday. Attorneys for the family announced then that Mr. McLean left no personal estate, his interest in the eight million dollar property of his father, John R. McLean, having terminated with his death.

Mr. McLean's second will gave $50,000 to Deputy United States Marshal Martin Finn, once his valet. To Rose Douras Van Cleve, named as Rose Davies in a $300,000 bequest in the first will, the second will gave $100,000 and a life interest in Mr. McLean's entire residuary estate. The second will provided that after her death, the residuary estate should be divided among her children, or if she left none among Mr. McLean's three children.

Monkey Told 'Me He's Sorry,' Says Owner Who Was Bitten

By Gladwin Hill.

Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, July 30.—It must pay to be different—because so many people are that way.

In illustration of which we offer some recent striking examples of unconventional conduct:

Bert Hazleton, Kalamazoo, Mich., locksmith—After working 50 years without a vacation, he announced he was going to start taking one day off every week.

Thomas Gunick, of Bloomfield, N. J.—Bitten severely by his pet monkey, he said, "We're still friends—when I came back from the hospital he told me he was sorry.

Eschol Sears, of Moultrie, Ga.—When his calf ate a $20 bill, he killed the calf, extracted the currency pulp, and sent it to the United States Treasury for a new bill.

Viva La Maxwell

Deputy Tax Appraiser Dick Harris, of San Francisco—After driving a horse and carriage for 43 years, he capitulated the other day and bought an automobile.

An unidentified Iowa motorist—He applied for a license on a 1909 Maxwell car.

A soldier in Bridgewater, Mass.—Annoyed at the slow progress of the train he was on, he went up to the engine and attempted to take over the control himself.

Bob Crosby, Carlsbad, N. Wex., cowboy—A few minutes after drinking 24 bottles of pop as a stunt, he was discovered down the street—having another bottle of pop.

Certain parishioners of All Souls' Church, Brooklyn—Given $1 apiece by their pastor to invest and return to the church, they bet the money on the Brooklyn Dodgers.

To Clap or Not to Clap

Representative Hoffman, of Michigan—He asked that the Congressional Record strike out the note "applause" after one of his speeches because there had been no applause.

Richard Sawdey, of Fredonia, N. Y.—To win a 25-cent bet, he swallowed a live frog.

A motorist in Racine, Wis.—He telephoned to police to report himself for having inadvertently run through a red light.

Dr. Eugene Geiling, of the University of Chicago—To see whether a whale could have swallowed Jonah, he climbed through a whale's gullet himself.

U. S. Acts to 'Freeze' Defense Employes in Jobs

Uncle Sam has taken another step which tends to "freeze" his tens of thousands of defense employes in their present jobs.

After today a defense employe who resigns his job may not be placed in another Federal job for 90 days unless his request is accompanied by a letter of consent from the defense agency. And getting such a letter, an official indicated, will be indeed difficult. The new regulation was made effective as of today by the Civil Service Commission.

For some weeks the commission has restricted transfers and it seems that defense employes were getting around that restriction by resigning their jobs, taking a vacation, and then going to work for a different agency. Today's order will plug up that loophole. Some agencies have threatened to record "prejudice" against key employes who resign.

The next agency of the Agriculture Department that will be moved out of Washington is the Eastern regional office of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. The office has about 25 employes. As predicted in this column, Secretary Wickard yesterday announced the removal to Upper Darby, Pa., of the seventh regional office of the Forest Service. The move will be made around November 15, Wickard said, and it will affect 128 employes.

It was planned to announce the shift of the crop insurance office yesterday and it was proposed to take the 25 employes to Upper Darby. However, word came from Upper Darby that there was no space whatsoever available there and that killed the official order momentarily. The transfer of the Forest Service office will be permanent and hope is given employes that they will be brought back here when the emergency is passed. Many of the 128 employes object to the move as the vast majority have long records with the Forest Service. An Agriculture official said transfers will be permitted whenever possible to allow some employes to remain here.

Navy Needs Experts

The Office of Emergency Management, chiefly the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, is in need of expert accountants and economists. However, OPACS doesn't want Government accountants and economists. What it needs is industry accountants and economists who know the cost factors of the many commodities that it must regulate. The requirements are stiff and no exceptions are being made.

OPACS wants accountants, for example, who have had experience in industries such as oil, lumber, steel, food products, autos and the like. Three years' experience is required. CPA's are preferred. The jobs pay from $3,200 to $4,600. The agency prefers applicants to write it in detail on experience, age, education and nationality. The jobs are under civil service but no formal tests will be given. The commission probably will approve for "the duration" the applicants that OPACS selects.

Per annum employes at the Washington Navy Yard and other field employes here of the War and Navy Departments and the Coast Guard who have been worked more than 40 hours a week in defense jobs since June 3, 1941, will be paid time and a half for the overtime worked. President Roosevelt, in setting up the regulations yesterday governing overtime pay for field employes of the three agencies, made his order retroactive to that date. Overtime can be paid only to those per annum employes, the order stated, whose work is "essential to and directly connected with the expeditious prosecution of overtime work which is required of employes" who have been paid overtime for the past year.

UFWA has protested the dismissal of Mrs. Esta Diamond from the examining division of the Civil Service Commission. The C. I. O. union charges "antiunion and anti-C. I. O. bias." Mrs. Diamond is editor of the Federal Record, union publication. The commission is reconsidering her dismissal with prejudice.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, July 30 (A.P.).—Mrs. George G. Kruse today received notice from a New York City traffic court to pay a $2 parking violation fine by August 7 or have her license revoked.

Mrs. Kruse is taking the matter up with local authorities because, she insists, her car never has been east of the Mississippi River.

Dupont Hotel Head Parries Questions

House Committee Investigating Lease To Government Still in Dark

Undeterred by his skittishness at answering questions directly, Congressmen investigating the Dupont Circle Hotel deal will try again to get Harry L. Newman to illuminate some of the dark spots.

Yesterday the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee worked on the hotel corporation's president for nearly two hours. When the session was over, members still did not know why Newman led Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, and Charles Sawyer, Democratic National Committeeman from Ohio, on an inspection tour of the premises last month.

Irked by the witness' equivocal testimony, several committee members spoke yesterday of asking the House for subpena power to make Newman talk.

However, Chairman Fritz Lanham (Democrat), of Texas, last night declared he is not considering such a step, being of the opinion that facts which Newman admits withholding may yet come out if the committee is patient.

The fourth day of the public hearing, and the second on which Newman has been a witness, was frequently highlighted with laughter as the witness sparred with committee members.

At one point, when Representative McGregor, of Ohio, was trying to get Newman to explain the inspection trip of Tydings and Sawyer, and the witness was in no haste to answer, Representative Gibson, of Georgia, suggested in a stage whisper that maybe they were sightseeing.

"Yes, perhaps they were sightseeing, said Newman, shifting his gaze from McGregor to Gibson.

The audience in the Old House Office Building caucus room roared.

At another time, the witness asked permission to tell a funny story to illustrate a point.

"You're funny enough," observed Representative Hebert, of Louisiana.

Here Representative Mills, Hebert's Louisiana colleague, leaped into the oral free for all in defense of Newman, protesting that the witness was not being allowed to answer questions and was being made a laughing stock.

McGregor, Hebert, Chairman Lanham and others leaped in with dissents, to the consternation of the stenographer who was attempting to take down the testimony. When the latter was unable to find McGregor's question in his notes, the Ohioan rephrased it.

Declines to Name Directors

Although the question, in which McGregor sought to learn what Tydings and Sawyer were doing in the Dupont Circle Hotel shortly after the Government had agreed to lease it for office space, was slowly and clearly enunciated by the Congressman, Newman asked the stenographer to read it after McGregor finished.

When this was done, the witness replied that "they were there because I invited them . . . the purpose of my invitation was that I was very proud."

He added that Sawyer has "no more of an interest in the building than you do (McGregor)." When the questioner wanted to know if Newman had considered the risk to Tydings' reputation in bringing him to an apartment hotel which was on the verge of being leased to the Government, the witness responded that it was up to the Senator to jump on him for that, if there was to be any jumping.

Newman added that perhaps McGregor was jealous of the Marylander's "good standing."

Asked for names of directors and stockholders of Dupont Circle, Inc., its middle-aged president said he did not believe that to be a public matter. Earlier he had declined to tell how many shares he owns or their par value.

Auditor's Affidavit Read

While Newman was in the chair, Lanham read into the record an affidavit by John J. Maguire, night auditor of the hotel, stating that since July 6 departing tenants have had to sign a waiver before receiving rent rebates to which they were entitled.

It was on July 5 that the management first sent notices to occupants announcing that the Government wanted the building and requesting them to move by July 15, if possible.

Maguire's statement also said that the druggist in the building received an eviction notice last week—Newman has denied that any leaseholder has been or would be evicted—and gave a figure conflicting with the witness' as to the number of tenants in default of rent.

Newman testified Tuesday that the hotel had not changed hands from 1937 to the present. Maguire's sworn statement was accompanied by a letter written him by W. E. Furey, secretary of Dupont Circle, Inc., thanking him for his "faithful and loyal services" and inclosing a check for $267.30.

Furey's letter explained that "there has been closed today (July 3) a sale of this company to new owners."

Lanham said he expects to devote today and tomorrow to the Dupont hearing

Salutes Rock Defense Midway

V. F. W. Cannon Draws Hundreds to Patriotic Program

It sounded like they were firing the biggest guns in Defense Midway last night, and those who heard the noise from blocks around gathered in large numbers to see what it was all about.

There they found the Army and Navy guns cold and silent. Cause of the great noise was a 15-inch long affair that looked like a toy cannon and fired 10-gauge shotgun blanks.

Called a salute cannon, it was being fired by Veterans of Foreign Wars to attract crowds to their entertainment on the midway. It succeeded in drawing several hundred persons, who heard talks by Sergt. Alvin C. York, World War hero, and Representative Patrick (Democrat), of Alabama, heard music by the Alexandria American Legion Band, and witnessed dances by girls and a "womanless wedding."

Daniel Campbell, past commander of the District Department, V. F. W., was toastmaster.

Sergt. York, looking toward the soldiers in the crowd, said:

"This makes me feel like I want to be back in uniform myself. In case they need us old boys, we're going to be right back of you helping you push up the line."

The sergeant then autographed defense savings stamps for their purchasers, took a ride in an Army "jeep" and left for his hotel in his police-escorted limousine.

Agriculture Department employes will give a performance of humorous skits and music at Treasury House today from 8:15 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

The program will include music by the Department's orchestra, numbers by the Agriculture Chorus and Symphonic Choir and individual specialty acts. The Government film, "The River," will be shown.

19 Arrested In Laundry Strike Meelee

Versions of the "small riot" in front of the Arcade Sunshine Laundry Co. early yesterday, in which 19 strikers, two of them women, were arrested, are as conflicting as present day war communiques.

After three strikers were charged with assault, and five others with disorderly conduct, the air cleared, and charges and counter charges were as follows:

1. Robert Burford, 27, of Brookmont, Md., a striker, said that he was standing near the pickets, taking pictures during the incident when he was seized by police, and his camera taken. "Sergt. A. S. Douglas said he would smack me in the mouth if I took any pictures of the police," said Burford. The striker also charged that when his camera was returned, pictures that he had taken were destroyed.

2. Sergt. Douglas told The Post last night that he had been falsely quoted in yesterday's newspapers, and that he had not talked to or even touched Burford. "All I know is that he was arrested, but I did not arrest him or come near him," said the sergeant.

What happened yesterday morning is something like this: A woman picket and a woman worker started an argument, and soon police had to interfere. Bedlam followed, and 19 persons were taken to the Tenth Precinct Station.

Clara Giggintown, 38, 1328 E Street Northeast, was treated at Garfield Hospital yesterday for a scalp wound which she said she received from an umbrella in the hands of a woman striker. Two policemen also said they had been struck in the heads by an umbrella.

The 28-day-old strike continues with negotiations stalemated.

Postoffice Retires J. W. Lyons Today

James W. Lyons, who has spent the last 50 of his 72 years in the service of the Postoffice Department, will retire today.

A group of his fellow employes will honor Mr. Lyons with a farewell party at the Postoffice Building at 10:30 this morning.

Mr. Lyons, who lives at 917 Eighteenth Street Northwest, served with the U. S. Postal Agency at Paris during the first World War.

Something for Little Finds Victims Here

Police last night warned District auto dealers about a middle-aged, well-dressed man who is approaching dealers, winning their confidence by arranging to store his auto in their garages, then pulls his joker out of the pack.

The joker is that he says he's able to get good whisky at $1 a quart for his friends. He collects the money, and never shows up with either his auto or the whisky.

Wyoming Girl Loses Family In Wilds Here

A girl from the wide, open spaces of Wyoming came to Washington yesterday and discovered there are a lot of wide, open spaces in these here parts.

Loretta Burton, 23, of Baggs, Wyo., made a three-day trip from her home on the Colorado border to take a typing job with the War Department. She drove in with her mother and three brothers.

However, when the Burtons arrived in Arlington, and 9 a. m.—Loretta's reporting time—drew near, it was decided she could make better time by bus. So she left the family at an Arlington corner, reported to work on time, and after work started back for the Arlington meeting place.

But the corner wasn't there. Or if it was, Loretta couldn't find it. Anyhow, after a long search, Loretta gave it up, and spent the night with a friend at 1737 Q Street Northwest.

Sympathetic police both in Washington and Virginia joined the search for the missing family last night. And this item, too, is written in hope it will bring about a happy reunion.

NYA Cuts Rolls Here; Defense Training Unaltered

Substantial cuts in National Youth Administration rolls in Washington are now in progress because of reduced appropriations for the current fiscal year.

Officials said last night the number of youths in the District organization has been reduced from approximately 1,350 to about 1,100.

Similar retrenchments have been made throughout July in many other parts of the country, but particularly in the Middle West. No cuts are being made in the number of youths at work on the newly initiated program of training young people for defense jobs. Reductions are in the regular "out of school" program of training for trades not essentially important to defense.

Hitch-Hiking Journey Ends at Girl's Home

The entire Porcelli family was glad to have Viola, 16, back with them at their home, 906 Kent Place Northeast, last night. She walked to Hyattsville yesterday afternoon where she attempted to obtain a ride in an auto which would take her to New York.

She said she wanted to go there because she wished to see her girl friends and because she was lonely in Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Raub F. Brackville, of Hyattsville, whose auto she approached in an effort to get a ride, persuaded her to return home. They even drove her there.

D. C. Man Dies, Wife Injured In Auto Upset

George V. Martin, 68, of 2909 Rittenhouse Street Northwest, was killed and his wife injuried yesterday when their auto left the Lakes to Sea Highway near DuBois, Pa., and rolled over five times, the Associated Press reported.

Mrs. Martin was thrown clear and escaped with a broken rib. Her husband was pinned under the debris and died en route to a hospital.

The couple was en route to Cleveland. They had planned to stop at Franklin, Pa., to visit Martin's brother, Attorney Gervas Martin. Their son, Dr. George V. Martin, jr., is an assistant chief surgeon at the military hospital at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

Washington Fourth Among Safe Cities

A 17 per cent jump in the Nation's traffic death toll was reported yesterday by the National Safety Council.

At the same time the council disclosed that the District fatality rate is the fourth best among cities of 500,000 population for the first six months of this year.

The council warned that the increase in the Nation's traffic death toll indicated an all-time high for 1941. Thus far 16,810 persons have died on the highways, 2,390 more than in 1940.

Cities of 500,000 were led for the first six months of 1941 by Milwaukee, which had a fatality rate of 9.2; New York, 9.57; Boston, 9.62; Washington, 10.2.

Marvin Methodists To Discuss Union With Gorsuch

The congregation of Marvin Methodist Church, whose property will be razed to widen Independence Avenue, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock to consider Gorsuch Methodist Church's invitation for a union of the two congregations, both in Southwest Washington. Marvin stands at Tenth and Independence Avenues, and Gorsuch at Fourth and L Streets.

The Rev. Lewis S. Rudasill, Gorsuch pastor, extended a merger invitation when guest preaching last Sunday at Marvin Church, of which Dr. Chesteen Smith is supply pastor.

Also affected by the avenue widening will be St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Eighth and Independence Avenue.

Dogs Go Too Far; Hyattsville Acts To License Them

Hyattsville is going to the dogs. Mayor E. Murray Gover said so yesterday.

According to the mayor, stray dogs, with which the town abounds, have been snapping at women, children and long suffering mailmen. At least a dozen complaints from irate citizens have been received within the last two weeks.

Accordingly, the mayor has instructed W. Carroll Beatty, town attorney, to draw up an ordinance requiring that all dogs be provided with licenses. The licenses are issued by the county government.

Any pooch caught without a license will be taken to a municipal pound, soon to be constructed if the town council approves Gover's plan at its next meeting. A full time dog catcher will be employed.

'Even Chance' For Cent Gas Tax Increase

Hunter Says Lower Levy May Suffice For Early Stages Of Road Program

District motorists may face no more than a one-cent gasoline tax increase, at least in the initial stages of the projected $44,500,000 highway improvement program, Representative John Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, said last night.

Hunter is chairman of the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee that is scheduled Tuesday to report out a bill to raise the District's gasoline tax either one or two cents a gallon, to finance such projects as the Georgetown bypass, the South Capitol Street Bridge and high-speed trunk highways to the center of the city.

Declaring that there is an "even chance" that the subcommittee will report out a bill at the lower tax figure, Hunter stated that the final decision will be determined by several factors.

Hunter declared the subcommittee also wants additional data on the probable effect of the national defense program on the ability of the District to obtain materials for highway and bridge construction.

Two Lists of Projects Ordered

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director, was instructed by the subcommittee at a hearing yesterday to submit Tuesday two lists of projects to be built on a five-year plan, one to be financed by a 1-cent tax increase and the other with a 2-cent rise.

Whitehurst told the subcommittee that that the new $35,000,000 War Department building projected for Arlington County, Va., thereby increases the District's need for a new bridge across the Potomac River—that either a bridge or a tunnel would be constructed anyway.

Whitehurst said that with improvement to approaches to existing bridges, it is possible "that conditions will not be as bad as one might visualize."

"We want to do first things first," declared Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, "and we don't want you coming back here in a little while and saying we have to have money for a new bridge or tube."

"To be frank about it," Whitehurst declared, "we have been sitting by and not making these major improvements that have been necessary. We have been doctoring the situation instead of improving it."

Opposes 2-Cent Levy

Harry R. Wainwright, director of research for the Retail Gasoline Dealers Corporation, testified that a "one-cent increase might bring in as much in dollars and cents to the District as a 2-cent increase." He predicted that a 2-cent boost would create a gasoline price war, "in reverse," by shifting the price advantage from the city to the suburbs. A 2-cent increase, he said, would nearly equalize Virginia, Maryland and District taxes, so that the competitive advantage might lie with the suburban dealer whose operating costs are lower.

District Commissioner John R. Young told the subcommittee he was "bitterly opposed" to suggestions that the District borrow against anticipated revenue for highway purposes.

"You would never, never get such a proposition through Congress," warned Dirksen.

In response to questions, Whitehurst estimated that a two-lane tube under the Potomac would cost 2½ times a four-lane bridge, but explained that a high-level bridge would interfere with air traffic while a low-level span would have to be opened frequently to river traffic. Construction of either type crossings too close to present bridges would only make matters worse, he added.

Shortage to Be Considered

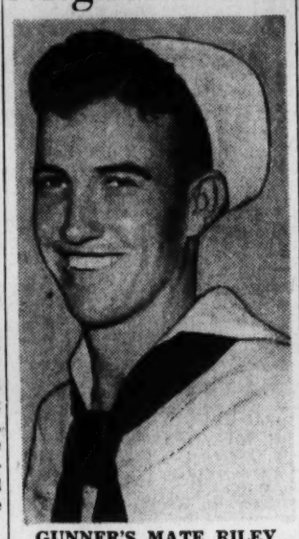
Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech urged adoption of a bill to relieve abutting property owners of assessment for one-half street paving costs in lieu of assessment for one-half cost of curbs and gutters.

Whitehurst estimated that the 2-cent increase would yield three million a year, but Wainwright predicted that by January gasoline shortages will have reduced consumption one-third.

The hearing marked the first appearance before a Congressional committee of Guy Mason, the new Commissioner. Mason joined Young in indorsing a tax increase.

Sidney Katz, Industrial Union Council, and Howard D. Woodson, Federation of Civic Associations, opposed raising the gas tax. John H. Connaughton, District of Columbia Information Committee, urged that the increase be made 2 cents so that "the Federal taxpayers not be imposed upon."

Sailor Kept From Greeting Neighbor York



GUNNER'S MATE RILEY

If there was a person Sergt. Alvin C. York would like to have seen on his triumphal tour of Washington yesterday, that person probably was Gunner's Mate Bates Riley, United States Navy.

But Sergt. York didn't know Gunner's Mate Riley was around, and Gunner's Mate Riley couldn't do anything about it.

The 20-year-old sailor was reared on a Tennessee farm next to the sergeant's and (as Riley put it) has "eaten chow in his home and everything." He wanted to tell York "hello."

But he couldn't get through the crowds.

Riley hung around Sergt. York's car for an hour as it was parked beside Defense Midway while York made an appearance, waiting for the World War hero to return so he could shake his hand. Then when the sergeant did come back, Riley was on the crowd's fringe and couldn't have been heard if he had yelled at the top of his lungs.

Riley, who's been in the Navy for 2½ years and is now stationed at the Washington Navy Yard, said his father was a second cousin of York.

Trash Fire Perils Navy Materials

Embers from a trash fire, scattered by a high wind, yesterday menaced the building materials of the new Navy Building, under construction at Columbia Pike and Arlington Ridge Road, Arlington County.

East Arlington residences were also threatened, until Arlington and Jefferson fire companies located and extinguished the blaze, according to County Fire Chief A. C. Scheffel.

Biting the Hand That Offers Candy

Five-year-old Rachael Epstein, of New York, won't forget her first visit to the White House very quickly. Yesterday she paused to feed a piece of candy to a squirrel on the White House lawn. The squirrel took the candy and a piece of Rachael's finger. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Randolph Puts Crime Bills Ahead

Committee to Study Vagrancy, Habitual Criminal Legislation Next Monday

Legislation to put into effect two recommendations of the Police Investigation Subcommittee—bills to strengthen the District's vagrancy and habitual criminal laws—reached the Capitol yesterday and were made the first order of business by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee.

At Randolph's request, neither of the bills was routed through the Budget Bureau—usually a "must" procedure with District legislation—but came directly to Congress from the commissioners. They were put at the top of the list of bills to be considered by the committee Monday.

The vagrancy bill lists 11 ways in which a man may be considered a vagrant and subject, under its provisions, to $300 fine and 90 days in jail.

The habitual criminal bill provides increased penalties for repeaters convicted either of misdemeanor or felonies. The penalties range from 1½ times the original punishment for second offenders to twice the maximum sentence meted fourth offenders.

Recalling the murder of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, the War Department employe whose death was responsible for the police investigation, the bill would inflict more severe penalties on felons convicted of rape following their first offense. Punishment by death or imprisonment would be compulsory in this instance.

The bill also provides that the District's intermediate sentence and parole law shall not apply for repeaters.

The vagrancy bill defines as vagrants known criminals, possessors of crime tools, persons habitually immoral or directly associated with houses of ill fame, able bodied men who live on persons not obliged to support them, idle persons without lawful source of income or unable to give a good account of themselves, beggars, and "all other persons who, by the common law, are vagrants."

District Police Probe Continues

The District today will continue its own investigation of the Metropolitan Police Department with further questioning of precinct captains and other ranking officers.

The inquiry was launched yesterday behind closed doors in the office of Assistant Enginer Commissioner Beverly C. Snow, chairman of the municipal probe.

A detailed account of study courses and other activities of the police training school was given the committee yesterday by Lieut. Beverly C. Beach, its head. The Commissioners have instructed the committee to delve deftly into police efficiency and training.

Maj. Snow and his associates, Budget Officer Walter Fowler and Disbursing Officer James R. Lusby, are armed with the detailed Congressional report of findings during the recent House hearings.

Cosmos Club Asks $400,000 Building Permit

Representatives of the Cosmos Club which is forced to move from its historic location at Madison Place and H Street Northwest through Federal acquisition of that property, applied yesterday at the District Building for a permit to construct a new club building costing $400,000, at 1715 H Street Northwest.

The projected structure of brick, stone and concrete, will be six stories high with a 132-foot frontage and a depth of 149 feet. Plans for the building accompanying application for the permit show a basement containing mechanical equipment, air-conditioning plant, storage sections for food, wine, records and baggage, clubroom, barber shop, manager's office, locker rooms, toilets and showers.

On the first floor are entrance lobby, main lounge, auditorium, taproom, serving kitchen, coat room, women's and men's waiting rooms, large toilet, small lounge and garden. In the mezzanine are card, billiard and writing rooms, women's parlor, library, and motion picture projection booth.

The second floor is devoted to breakfast, private dining, women's dining, main dining rooms and kitchen service section. On the third floor are general office, secretary's office, board room, 17 bedrooms with individual baths. The fourth floor has a sitting room, linen room, 20 bedrooms with baths, and the fifth, a sitting room, 21 bedrooms and baths.

Application for the permit lists Charles H. Tompkins Co. as builder; Francis P. Sullivan and Arthur B. Heaton, associate architects; Marshall & Gongwer, structural engineers; Weschler & Cleary, mechanical engineers; Rose Greely, landscape architect.

Close Vote Expected on Joint Tax Returns As House Agrees to Separate Ballot

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday sealed into its $3,529,200,000 revenue bill every defense-tax provision save one—the highly controversial provision for compulsory joint return by husband and wife.

A closed rule barring any non-committee change with that single exception was adopted, 203 to 168, after some Republicans had shouted "gag," and leaders had retorted "politics!"

The rule in effect ratified in advance every individual committee tax recommendation except joint returns, which was granted a separate vote. A final vote on Monday will offer members the alternatives of accepting or rejecting the bill as a whole. Republicans will offer the usual motion to recommit, but passage appeared certain.

Chairman Doughton and ranking committeemen, meanwhile, opened three days of general debate with arguments keyed to salvage the endangered provision—joint returns. An eyelash-close vote, holding upset possibilities, seemed likely.

A special morning meeting of the House Rules Committee paved the way for a change in procedure to permit independent action on the husband-wife section. The rule was swiftly modified to avert defeat of otherwise ironclad provisions. Taken immediately to the floor the closed rule was adopted by the House by a 35-vote margin.

As debate opened on the tax bill, it became apparent that the only remaining fight centered on the joint return requirement. Opponents of the section said they could combine 100 Democratic votes with a Republican minority to knock it out. Sponsors of the joint return insisted it would win "with not more than 150 votes against it."

Opening the case for the bill, Doughton told members joint income-tax returns would "correct an inequity."

"There are only 5 per cent of the people who have been getting advantage of this," said the Ways and Means chairman. "The other 95 per cent have been having to pay the difference because 5 per cent got a preference or advantage. I don't know anywhere else that we could get $300,000,000 and impose so little burden, so little injustices and so little hardship, as by requiring individual tax returns, because it doesn't affect anybody unless their income is $4,000 or more."

Doughton told the House that the new individual and corporate surtaxes, excess profits levies, estate and gift taxes and excises provided in the bill, plus those already existing, are estimated to raise 13 billion dollars a year. He said that was about 60 per cent of the estimated expenditures of 22 billion dollars in 1942. The committee, he said, followed a middle-of-the-road course, as $3,500,000,000 was "as much as could be reasonably imposed" on the country at this time. He asked "the most rigid economy" to assure taxpayers their funds are well spent.

Referring to his recent statement that general consumption taxes and a broadened income tax base might be necessary in the next tax bill, Doughton advised members he was "inherently opposed" to a sales tax "but, if our emergency continues, as it looks like it may, I would not say I would proscribe or reject such a tax."

Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee, who has worked with Doughton in managing the tax bill, warned members it would be risky to alter a bill it had taken three months to draft. Delayed passage he said is costing the Government three million dollars a day in excise taxes.

Treasury Plan Crops Up

Probability that the Administration will attempt to revive the Treasury's invested capital plan of excess profits taxation, meanwhile, was seen in the President's emphasis in his price message on "effective taxation of excess profits" and in a White House conference attended by Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel W. Bell, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan and Treasury General Counsel Edward H. Foley.

The Ways and Means Committee had rejected 20 to 5 the Administration's request that it substitute the invested capital method for its own "optional" plan. The fight now is expected to go to the Senate unless House defeat of joint returns starts a new revenue hunt in the House. Either the Treasury's steep individual surtax rates or the Treasury's excess profits plan would make up the 300 million dollar revenue claimed for joint returns.

In yesterday's brisk fight on the closed rule, Republicans generally, with the exception of Representatives Crowther, of New York, and Knutsen, of Minnesota, assailed the procedure as a "gag." Crowther and Knutsen said the same rules were used by Republican Administrations "in the interest of orderly procedure."

Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, led a fight on the rule and provisions of the bill, which he charged doubles and triples the tax on 5 per cent of the population earning from $3,000 to $30,000 a year. He said this minority is expected to "pay all the taxes."

Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, said higher taxes are in sight for an indefinite period to meet defense costs, with the pending bill only the first step. He said a general sales tax may be necessary. Like Doughton, he urged cuts in nondefense spending. Doughton paid tribute to committee Republicans, whom he said were completely nonpartisan in their consideration of the bill.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

NYA Program In Montgomery Is Cut in Half

Montgomery County officials of the National Youth Administration yesterday were ordered to reduce project rolls by at least 50 per cent, effective by the end of this week.

The unexpected order also directs the dismissal of Miss Bertha Katz, who has been in charge of the county office, and transfer of the office back to Frederick.

When Miss Katz, who resides at 1731 Holly Street Northwest, was sent to the county several months ago, the total NYA enrollment was 10. It now has been built to 90, of which 45 persons must be dropped.

The NYA programs have taken youths who were out of school and given them vocational training so that they would be ready for employment when jobs became available.

The job cut order is general for the entire Western Maryland District.

Ex-RFC Director, Utility Man Dies In Hot Springs

Harvey Crowley Couch, 63-year-old Southwestern utility and rail magnate and a former director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, died yesterday at his home in Hot Springs, Ark.

Mr. Couch, who worked as a railway mail clerk and a cotton gin fireman before building the first rural telephone line in southern Arkansas and western Louisiana, was brought to Washington as an RFC director by President Hoover in 1932. He remained with the corporation through the first year of the Roosevelt Administration.

Mr. Couch and his associates built the first major hydroelectric plant in Arkansas. At the time of his death, he was president of the Arkansas Power & Light Co., which he organized, a director of the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank in St. Louis, and chairman of the board of the Kansas City-Southern-Arkansas & Louisiana Railroad.

Funeral services will be at 11 a. m. today at Pine Bluff, Ark.

Services will be held at 2:30 p. m. in Columbia Baptist Church, Falls Church, with interment to follow at Columbia Garden Cemetery.

A native of South Bend, Ind., Mr. Lane was graduated from the University of Michigan. He worked as an engineer at South Bend and Leavenworth, Kans. He then joined the Patent Office, serving 43 years, 31 as principal examiner. He retired in 1930 and practiced patent law here.

He leaves his wife, the former Mary V. Fenwick, of Washington; a son, Munson H. Lane, Washington attorney; a daughter, Dr. Virginia E. Lane, and a sister, Mrs. Minnie I. Perkins.

Mr. Lane was active in Sunday school work with the First Baptist Church, of South Bend; the Baptist Church, of Leavenworth; the E Street and Temple Baptist Church, of Washington; Columbia Baptist Church, of Falls Church, and Bon-Air Mission, of Bon-Air, Va.

16 Million Order Goes to Canada

By the Associated Press

Letter contracts were given to War Supplies, Lt., of Ottawa, for the following: Advanced trainers with spare parts and technical data, $12,604,100; British-type link trainers for instrument flying and landing, $2,132,250; primary trainers with spare parts and technical data, $1,234,570; rubber antigas gloves, $375,290.

It's Trillions Now, Not Billions, at Boulder Dam

In the ninth year of the New Deal, Government figuring passed beyond the familiar billion stage and soared into the trillions.

The Interior Department announced that storage in Boulder Dam's Lake Mead had reached ten trillion gallons. It used the numeral in the caption of its release, but resorted to the less staggering term "10,000 billion" in the text.

District Gets W. Lee O'Daniel, Texas' Own Singing Senator

The District of Columbia yesterday acquired W. Lee O'Daniel who, in addition to being former Governor of Texas and a United States Senator, is known widely as a song writer and singer of "hillbilly" tunes.

The Senator, it was learned at the Capitol, has been assigned to a vacancy on the District Committee.

His immediate predecessor on the committee, incidentally, was Andrew Jackson Houston, son of Sam Houston, Texas' first Governor, whom Gov. O'Daniel appointed to fill out the unexpired term of the late Morris Sheppard. Senator Houston died shortly after the end of his term of a few weeks.

O'Daniel has advised Senate officials that he will be in town Monday to take his oath. He will be assigned a seat on the Republican side because there are no more seats on the Democratic side. The same seat, in the last row near the center aisle, was occupied by Senator Houston.

The Democratic Steering Committee also assigned the new Senator to the Committees on Commerce, Claims and Irrigation and Reclamation.

O'Daniel won over Texas by campaigning with a "hillbilly" band and with his own song, "Beautiful, Beautiful Texas"—but a new technique for Washington is indicated. Contrary to reports several weeks ago that his trip to the Capitol would take the form of a triumphal tour with sound truck and orchestra via Kingman, Kans., and Malta, Ohio, the Capitol expects O'Daniel to arrive quietly and by train.

O'Daniel is 52 years old and has shoulders like a fullback. Before entering politics in 1938, he was a business man in Fort Worth, where he owned a profitable flour concern. He is married and has a daughter and two sons.

Want to trade in your car on a JEEP?

Not even the great American auto industry can make everything at once. And as more and more men and machines turn to making jeeps, scout cars, tanks, and other Army equipment, fewer continue making new cars. Fewer new cars—fewer late model used cars turned in on trades. So if you don't want to keep that old gas-eater forever, you'd better act now about buying a later model used car. You'll find a lot of them advertised in today's Post—listed by price groups, for easier shopping.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The District Boxing Commission is angry with Promoter Ray Alvis for daring to state that the Joey Archibald-Chalky Wright fight, which he says he is promoting, will be for the featherweight championship of the world. They are threatening to suspend Alvis "for wilfull disregard of the rules and breaking with the public." They should know all about faith-breaking.

POVICH

The commission's gripe is that Archibald is not recognized as featherweight champion in the District, which is affiliated with the National Boxing Association, whose champion is Richie Lemos, of California. They won't permit Alvis to pull a fast one and advertise an Archibald-Wright match for the world title. Only the District Boxing Commission is permitted to indulge in that sort of thing, apparently.

Only two months ago, the District Commissioners sat idly by and beamed upon an Archibald-Harry Jeffra match which was widely advertised for the world championship despite the fact that it wasn't. Archibald was merely the New York-Maryland version of the title. The N. B. A.'s man at the time was Pete Scalzo, and the District Commission was bound to recognize no other as champion. Yet there was great effort to disturb the title implications of the Archibald-Jeffra affair, although the commission pointed out it was not for the title. The announcer, in giving the decision that night, described Archibald as "new champion."

Cracking Down Abruptly

Specifically, the rule that Alvis has been called on for ignoring is the rule that prohibits the release of any publicity on a fight until the contracts are filed. That may be a good rule when it is enforced. It prevents fly-by-night promoters from making empty announcements. Alvis has not filed any contracts for a Wright-Archibald bout, and the evidence is that he does not have both fighters signed, but the commission is cracking down on him rather abruptly. It hasn't always crcked down on promoters for such violations; only when it apparently suits the commission.

Before the contracts for the Joe Louis-Buddy Baer fight were filed with the commission via Mike Jacobs' office, there were plentiful announcements that the fight would be held here, but the commission didn't see fit to crack down against Jacobs for premature publicity. No indeedy. There may have been no $9,000 "cut" of the gate for the commission, which is now pointing to its profits for the 1940-41 fiscal year and is hollering for salaries for the commissioners.

All of a sudden the District Boxing Commission has become a stanch follower of the N. B. A., apparently. It wasn't so when the Archibald-Jeffra bout was approved here. Archibald kicked over the traces of the N. B. A. when he refused to fight under their auspices and was supposed to be non-grata with N. B. A. affiliates, but he was always welcome to fight in Washington. Just what the District Commission derives from its affiliation with the N. B. A. is a bit vague, anyway.

Could Do Service to N. B. A.

Here is a chance where the District Commission, if it is serious about giving the N. B. A. a lift, is in a position to do so. The commission shouldn't turn its back on a Chalky Wright-Joey Archibald fight. Wright, it seems, is rated the No. 1 challenger for the title by the N. B. A. and for two years now has been clamoring for a shot at the title. He is something of a sure-shot to beat Archibald if he ever gets into the same ring with him, and thus N. B. A. fighters would hold undisputed sway over all versions of the crown. The District Commission should encourage the fight, with the reservation that the N. B. A. title is not involved.

It is probably a bit irksome to the commission that the prize fight business here has not attained the same frenzy of interest that was apparent in the precommission days when promoters bootlegged their shows in the suburbs. Commission supervision apparently hasn't added much to the appeal of the shows. When promoters were free to toss in their matches as they liked, local talent was featuring the shows and fans were storming the gates.

Deep down, Washington is a pretty good fight town, apparently. Chick Meehan's Brooklyn outfit is eyeing the Uline Arena for winter promotions and next month Jack Kearns will copromote a show with Joe Turner at Griffith Stadium. Alvis wants to stage his Archibald-Wright match, if the commission will let him, and over in Baltimore Jack Lakin, who has resuscitated boxing there, is lining up a Washington show to be staged in cooperation with Goldie Ahearn, who holds a promoter's license here.

If it is the purpose of the commission to help provide Washington with attractive fights, what in the heck is the difference if Alvis did make a premature announcement of the Archibald-Wright fight? The greater crime would be if the commission kept the fight out of Washington because a meaningless sort of rule was broken a month before.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Not Out of the League Yet

New York, July 30 (INS).—Judging from the abusive tone of the mail these days, Brooklyn is still in the league. At least the Brooklyn fans are. They resent a guy who casually points out that the Dodgers seem to have blown their lids. Brooklyn may not be a husk of the team it was a month and more ago—as was more or less proved when it blew nine out of the 12 games before the current series with the Cards. But the fans are still of the championship variety for rabidity.

CONSIDINE

A printable cross-section of their letters in response to a recent piece of ours on Brooklyn shows such optimism as, " . . .Who do you think our bums are, Cleveland?"—a remark which we resent in the name of the Cleveland Chapter of the Baseball Writers of America, of which chapter we are an honorary member.

Another Dodger fan coins a phrase which may well supplant the classic "Wait'll next year." It is "Wait'll August and September. A team that has strived for so many years to win a pennant must have some fight left in it. Keep your future references to the Dodgers on the respectful side." Another fan, treasonous enough to admit that the Dodgers aren't doing as well as they used to be doing, says that the team is doing as well as it is only because of "guts of MacPhail, Durocher, Walker and Lavagetto. The rest of them have been falling dead in the pinch." Still another bloke writes, "The trouble with the bums is the dirty deal the team is giving Babe Phelps. It's shot the club to pieces." Anyway . . . it's still going to be the calamity of the sports year if the Dodgers blow.

It Happens on Ice

Strangest thing about the rise in the popularity of ice skating is that it has become a year-around sport, capable of providing employment for professionals for much longer periods than other sports. For instance, in "It Happens on Ice," at Rockefeller Center, the cast includes Chuck Hain, who gave up a job as an assistant golf pro at the Country Club of Iowa City; Noel Coffey, son of the old time heavyweight, and a boxer himself; Charley Cavanaugh, a minor league ball player who was once up with the Phillies; Leon Kasofsky, former diving instructor at West Point; Monte Stott, Sid Spaulding, Geoffe Stevens and Buster Graces, former English hockey players, and Paul Cassell, Cleveland jockey.

To give you some idea, if you already haven't one, of the temptation it must be to keep raising the bid when you're trying to buy a yearling at the Saratoga sales, let me give you some of the sales talk that will be sounded when a certain bay colt from Warren Wright's farm is led into the barter pit.

He has no name, just a number. But the auctioneer will say something like this: "Ladies and gentlemen, this is a bay colt out of Ladana, winner of the clever stakes, the Adirondack Handicap and many others. He is a half-brother to the winners, Sure Lad, Lady Lark and Hadalad . . . out of a half-sister to the stake winners, Ariel and Nedana, the dam of Swing and Sway.

Breeding May—or May Not—Tell

"His sire (a pause), Blenheim, 2nd, long proved a great horse and sire from a line of sires. He won the English Derby, sired a winner of that outstanding race in Mahmoud and verified his excellence by begetting in this country Whirlaway, winner of the Kentucky Derby, and the triple crown. Mahmoud holds the record for the English Derby, while Whirlaway has a like honor with regard to the Kentucky Derby.

Dodgers Buy Pitcher Allen From Browns

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 30.—The St. Louis Browns today announced the sale of Johnny Allen, pitcher for whom they were reported to have paid $25,000 last winter, to the Brooklyn Dodgers for the waiver price of $7,500.

ALLEN

All the other American League clubs had to waive on Allen before he could be sold to the National League pennant challengers.

He has won only two games and lost five for the Browns this season. His best years were 1936, when he won 20 and lost 10, and 1937, when he won 15 and lost 1, for the Cleveland Indians.

Chapman's Homers Beat White Sox, 5-3

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 30.—Sam Chapman smacked a home run with one on in the eleventh inning tonight to give the Athletics a 5-to-3 victory over Chicago after the White Sox had tied up the ball game in the ninth with a two-run rally. Chapman also walloped a homer in the sixth with two aboard to put the A's ahead.

Chapman, accounting for all of the A's runs, also drove the Mackmen to just within one-thousandth of a percentage point of the White Sox in fourth place.

The big center fielder's homer in the sixth with two out scored Bob Johnson and Dick Siebert, both of whom singled. In the eleventh Johnson flied out but Siebert rapped another single and Chapman brought him home with the ball game before 11,564 fans.

Chapman's wallops overshadowed fine pitching performances by Luman Harris for the A's and Buck Ross for the White Sox. Harris, after holding Chicago to four hits, one a home run by Taft Wright in the seventh, weakened in the ninth and was lifted with the bases loaded in favor of Bump Hadley.

Don Kolloway singled to open the ninth for Chicago and then Harris walked Joe Kuhel and Mike Kreevich. Then Hadley came in and Luke Appling tapped in front of the plate and Kolloway went out at home, Hadley to Hal Wagner. Moose Solters then singled to center, scoring Kuhel and Kreevich with the tying runs.

Jack Hallett replaced Ross to start the eighth after Buck gave up only six hits. Hallett allowed one hit until the fatal eleventh.

St. Louis Increases Lead to 3 Games; Rookie White Wins Another for Birds

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 30.—The Cardinals twice came from behind today to whip the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6 to 4, to increase their first-place margin in the National League to three games.

A three-run surge in the eighth after Pete Reiser's tenth home run of the year with a man on base that same inning put Brooklyn ahead, was typical of this rampant gang of veterans and youngsters who will not give up.

For Rookie Southpaw Ernie White it was victory No. 12, his fifth in nine days, although he gave way to a pinch hitter and Howard Krist hurled the ninth. White has lost only three.

Moore Comes Through

That pinch hitter for White was Estel Crabtree, who will be 37 years old August 19. His single scored doubling Martin Marion with the tying run. Then old reliable Capt. Terry Moore swatted one to center field, sending home Eddie Lake, pinch runner for Pinch Hitter Don Padgett, and Crabtree.

But the doleful Dodgers did not give up. After two outs, Lou Riggs batted for Mickey Owen and walked. Jim Wasdell batted for Hugh Casey and singled, sending Riggs to third. But all Peewee Reese could do was a fly to Johnny Hopp.

Brooklyn lost no time in scoring. Doubles by Billy Herman and Harry Lavagetto in the first brought in a run. Johnny Mize's single scored Frank Crespi—who got four for four—with the tying run for the Cards that same frame.

Mize Scores Two Cards

Mize doubled in the third to drive in Crespi and Moore and this 3-1 margin held up until the seventh. Joe Medwick doubled, went to third on a force play at second, and when Marion threw wild to first trying for a double play, Medwick scored.

In the last of the seventh, the Cards filled the bases with two out but Enos Slaughter—a .300 hitter who hasn't connected safely in the Brooklyn series thus far—popped out to Dolf Camilli. Kemp Wicker took over the pitching chores from Luke Hamlin at this critical period for Brooklyn.

Manager Leo Durocher, who played all 12 innings of yesterday's 7-to-7 tie, batted for Wicker to start the Dodger eighth, but sent up a fly to Marion. Reese singled to left and then came Reiser's home run which hit the screen above the right-field pavilion. N. Lavagetto walked and Medwick tried to bring him home with a hard line drive to left but Hopp dragged it down after a long run.

This series, which may prove to be the decisive one for determining the league champion, will end tomorrow with Whitlow Wyatt sched-

Braves Beat Pirates, 3-2, In 10 Innings

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, July 30.—The Boston Braves defeated Pittsburgh 3 to 2 tonight in an exciting ten-inning game in which Big Jim Tobin held his former Buccaneer teammates to a long hit for seven innings, then almost was beaten.

Tobin drove in Boston's first run in the fifth by duplicating Eddie Miller's double, the only damage done to Young Ken Heintzelman. Pirate southpaw, before he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Vince DiMaggio's Texas Leaguer which he stretched into a double was the lone hit Big Jim allowed until the eighth, which Pinch Hitter Spud Davis opened for Pittsburgh with a double. Rip Sewell ran for Davis, but when he failed to score on Vaughan's single into left. Manager Frisch substituted Handley as runner. The jeep scored on an infield out to tie up the count.

Young Ed Stewart misjudged Bud Hassett's liner in the tenth and it went for a triple. Sebastian Sisti and Dick West followed with singles, which with an infield out by Paul Waner gave Boston two runs.

The Bucs scored one in their half of the tenth and had the tying and winning runs on the sacks when Debs Garms ended the game by popping to Hassett.

'Red' Cochrane Will Report Today For Army Exam

By the Associated Press

Hillside, N. J., July 30.—Freddie (Red) Cochrane, the new welterweight boxing champion, was notified today by his local draft board to appear for physical examination tomorrow.

With the plaudits of his neighbors still ringing in his ears after last night's surprise victory over Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, Freddie declared:

"I'll claim no exemption and I am ready to do the same kind of a job for Uncle Sam as I did for the New Jersey boxing fans last night" in Ruppert Stadium, Newark.

Arrangements made before the fight call for a return match with Zivic within 60 days, unless a call to Army service should intervene.

Washington Fighter Is Given Unanimous Decision in Garden

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Sports Writer.

New York, July 30.—Georgie Abrams, a fast, brilliant boxer from Washington, D. C., tonight clinched a shot at the middleweight crown by registering his third victory over Champion Billy Soose—a nontitle ten-round decision before 6,500 fans at Madison Square Garden.

Abrams won the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges after a fast, close fight in which he crowded the champion in every session, preventing hard-hitting Billy from getting set for his dangerous left jabs and right smashes.

It was an excellent bout, packed with action and furious exchanges, although there wasn't a single knockdown. Abrams suffered a slight gash on his right brow in the second round, and Soose was bleeding from the nose after the third heat.

Abrams' decision snapped Soose's string at 12 straight victories. He hadn't lost a bout since Georgia took a decision over him on Febru-

Walters Wins 13th as Reds Beat Giants, 9-0

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, July 30.—Bucky Walters picked on the skidding New York Giants tonight for his thirteenth victory as the Cincinnati Reds belted three New York pitchers for 16 hits to win 9 to 0.

The Giants nicked Walters for three singles to fill the bases in the fifth, and did the same thing in the seventh, but went runless both times. All told, the losers collected 11 singles in their whitewashing.

Rain delayed the game 17 minutes at the end of an inning and a half, and for 14 minutes in the last half of the second occasion, Ernie Lombardi waited out the shower with the count two and two and the runways jammed, then looped a single over second base to bring in two runs on the next pitch.

Lombardi singled in another run in a three-run rally in the eighth and scored from third on a passed ball for a night's work that kept

Archibald Is Signed For 'Title' Go Here

By Jack Munhall

Possibly unaware that the District Boxing Commission was coincidentally discussing the possibility of suspending him, Promoter Ray Alvis late yesterday announced from New York that he had signed Joey Archibald, of Providence, and Chalky Wright, of Los Angeles, for a featherweight "title" bout August 18 in Griffith Stadium.

According to Alvis, Archibald has been guaranteed $8,000, with an option of 33 1/3 per cent of the net gate receipts, while Wright will get the usual challenger's cut of 12½ per cent. Al Weill, manager of Archibald, is reported to have insisted that the $8,000 guarantee be posted at least eight days before the fight with Nat Fleisher, editor of Ring Magazine.

Even as Alvis was closing out the bout, which he had announced in Washington papers Wednesday morning, Claude W. Owen, chairman of the District Boxing Commission, said Alvis had not obtained a permit for the fight and that he would seek suspension of Alvis "for false advertising."

"The Archibald-Wright fight would not be recognized by us or the N. B. A. as a title fight," said Owen, who pointed out that the N. B. A.-approved titleholder is Ritchie Lemos and that Washington is affiliated with the N. B. A.

"The Archibald-Wright fight will be just another fight as far as the District Boxing Commission is concerned," Owen declared, and added that he had informed Alvis of that early Tuesday.

Owen, who proposed that Alvis be set down for a period ranging from ten days to a month, said the commission would meet "sometime this morning" to decide upon the proposal.

With Owen favoring the suspension he would have to get the vote of one of the other two commission

Travis' Hit Is Decisive; Feller Out

Cramer, Case Figure In Winning Rally; Carrasquel Wins, Joe Heving Loses

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

The Nats were a smash hit with 24,000 gay fans at Club Griffith under the lights last night, when they came from behind in the ninth inning, just as the story books would have it, and beat the Cleveland Indians.

The score was 7 to 6. The Nats needed two runs in the ninth and got 'em. Bob Feller did not win his twentieth victory of the year but escaped being charged with the defeat. Umpire Arthur Passarella thumbed First Baseman Grimes out of the Cleveland lineup. Pitcher Steve Sundra learned during the game that he was the daddy of a new-born son. The Nats lost a one-run lead and won the ball game in the same inning. It was a very busy night.

Roger Cramer and Cecil Travis were the heroes of the evening, with an assist for George Case. They stirred up the necessary two runs after Sundra had pitched away his 5-4 lead in the ninth when the Indians moved in front, 6-5. At that point the 24,000 were moaning.

Heving No Hero

Feller apparently was about to back into his twentieth victory of the year. He was lifted for a pinch hitter during the Indians' ninth inning and would receive credit for the game if Relief Pitcher Joe Heving were able to hold Cleveland's one-run lead. Heving made a mess of the situation for Feller and the Indians in general.

There wasn't much encouragement for the 24,000 when Pinch Hitter Sammy West led off the ninth with a short fly to right field, but the Nats put the tying run on base when Case coaxed a walk from Heving. And the 24,000 loved it when Case stole second with Cramer at bat to move the tying run up a base.

Cramer grabbed the torch at that point and slugged a long two-bagger against the rightfield wall and Case loped home with the tying run. Heving shuffled off the diamond and Left-Handed Harry Eisenstat got the pitching job in this crisis.

Travis Breaks It Up

Eisenstat issued a semiintentional walk to Buddy Lewis for possible double-play purposes, and the issue was up to Cecil Travis. It didn't take him long. On Eisenstat's second pitch, Travis sent everybody home and permitted Mr. Griffith to turn off the lights. He slugged a line-drive two-bagger over left fielder Gerry Walker's

Detroit Eliminates Washington Union Printer Nine, 8 to 5

9th Inning Rally Falls 3 Runs Short

St. Louis and Boston Also Out of Play; New York, Chicago Teams Advance

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, July 30.—Detroit's onrushing contenders for the Union Printers' baseball championship eliminated Washington, the defending champion, from the 1941 tournament today by staving off a ninth inning rally to win, 8 to 5.

The defeat was the second for Washington. Detroit has won four straight games without a licking.

St. Louis and Boston also were eliminated, with New York and Chicago advancing to tomorrow's round of play.

New York got fine six-hit pitching from Zaner to whip St. Louis, 5 to 3, while Chicago shoved across a run in the last of the ninth to nose out Boston, 10 to 9.

Tomorrow Detroit (4-0) will clash with Chicago (2-1). New York (3-1) drew a bye.

New Signals For Gridiron Are Approved

By the United Press

Miami Beach, Fla., July 30.—Four new signals for football officials to use in notifying the spectators and the press box of rules violations during a football game will be seen on most collegiate gridirons this fall.

The signals were agreed on here tonight by the National Association of Football Commissioners at the concluding session of a three-day meeting.

The signals and the violations they explain are:

1. To show the intentional grounding of a forward pass, the official shall hold both hands over his right shoulder as though ready to throw something to the ground.

2. Unsportsmanlike conduct will be indicated by the official extending both arms out straight from the sides of his body with the palms facing down.

3. Illegal touching of a kicked or free ball will be shown by the official tapping both shoulders with his hands, the upper arm being parallel to the ground while he is making the signal.

4. Revolving the hands in front of the chest by an official will signal an illegal formation or position of one or more players.

The commissioners emphasized they were making strong efforts to coordinate the collegiate sports program with national defense. Asa S. Bushnell, representing the Eastern Intercollegiate Football Association, predicted that football would probably reach a peak this year—even in face of uncertain world conditions.

The commissioners agreed that even though the United States became involved in war, most collegiate grid schedules would be played as scheduled.

The commissioners passed two rulings governing the selection of officials for intersectional or bowl games. They agreed that if a home-and-home contract was made between intersectional teams the use of "home" officials would be advocated.

For single game contracts, which would include bowl games, "mixed crews" of officials should be used—two officials from each conference or area represented by the team.

Commissioners attending the conference also included Maj. John L. Griffith, of the Big Ten, and James W. St. Clair, of the Southwest Conference.

She is Mrs. Christina Foch Gehrig and she applied for her first citizenship papers.

The 59-year-old mother of the late Lou Gehrig was born in Willster, Germany, and came to the United States in 1900. Asked if she had any dependents, Mrs. Gehrig suddenly wept and replied:

"I had a son, Lou, but I haven't any more."

Cabmen Beat Fat Boy, 4-3; Simonds Wins

Yellow Cab scored its most important victory of the season last night at Washington Softball Stadium, defeating Fat Boy, 4 to 3, in a nine-inning tussle that was not decided until the final pitch and kept the Cabbies within striking distance of second-half Capital City League honors.

Bump Simmonds, Cabbie twirler, allowed five hits, three more than Harold Steffes, Fat Boy ace, but was invincible in the pinches. Steffes, with victory twice within sight, walked four men and cut loose a wild pitch to allow Yellow Cab to knot the score at 2 to 2 in the seventh and then in the ninth, after Hughes' second triple and Warvel's infield out, again gave Steffes a 3-to-2 lead, he promptly walked Sugrue, who went to third when Stasulli doubled. Steffes then cut loose two consecutive wild pitches, Sugrue and Stasull scoring with the tying and winning runs.

The victory gave the Cabmen a record of three wins and one loss and Fat Boy one loss to go with its two victories. Each trail undefeated Kavakos Grill, which assumed undisputed possession of first place with a mark of three triumphs and no losses.

Louise Butler pitched no-hit ball for the M. P. M. Market girls and beat Kenilworth, 11-5. Nine walks and errors figured in the five runs for the losers.

Petersburg Tops Harrisonburg, 10-5

Harrisonburg, Va., July 30 (AP).—With the Petersburg rebels getting to Evans Shelton for 14 hits and taking advantage of the Turks poor fielding, they defeated the Harrisonburg Turks, 10 to 5, this afternoon. This was the first daytime clash of the season and the teams are meeting again tonight.

The rebels had two big innings, the first and sixth, scoring four runs in each.

Detroit Double Pays $1,649.40; Season's Biggest

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 30.—A combination of Rosetta in the first race and Skippy McGee in the second paid daily double holders $1,649.40 at Fairgrounds Park today, the largest payoff of the Detroit season.

Rosetta, second choice paying $9.20 straight, won the first race by a length and a half from Batter, the favorite, while Jobelle was third.

It was Skippy McGee which made the big daily double. A long shot paying $44.40 straight, he drove home a half length in front of Mistletoe, another favorite Chestnut Bur was third.

The auctioneer can make this nameless bay colt sound like the greatest thing ever bred. This will be one of the colts which prompt more than one owner to get deeper and deeper into the bottomless pit of bidding against the devil-may-care spenders, such as Mrs. Ethel Mars, who seems to take a secret delight in outbidding the biddingest rival in the house.

Nameless now, this colt will bring perhaps $30,000 on the night of August 13, when he goes under the hammer. He gets a name next December—but he may never get a reputation, despite all the fine breeding that is behind him. But that's what makes horse-racing, and that's what keeps them coming back to the Saratoga sales, in the eternal search for the nameless $5,000 colt who became Man o' War and the nameless $3,000 colt who became Cavalcade.

Cox, Fraley Top Wrestling Card Tonight

Joe Cox, of Kansas, who sometimes is referred to as the Peck's Bad Boy of wrestledom, will attempt to end Pat Fraley's reign as a headliner tonight at Turner's Arena.

Cox and Fraley, who hails from the Pacific Coast, will clash in a 90-minute time limit scrap.

Fraley is the husky chap who made his debut here last Thursday, and impressively made Milo Steinborn, the Memphis "Strong Man" give up in 33 minutes.

In addition to being a consistent headliner on the coast, Fraley has been featured on cards in 15 different countries, and is regarded as the Australian and New Zealand champion.

Lou Plummer, reckless Baltimorean who incited the ringsiders last Thursday, goes against Texas Roy Clements in the semiwindup.

The two-man stars, Maurice LeChappelle and Ace Freeman, will go single tonight. Maurice meets Angelo Savoldi, the Ace tackles Angelo Leone.

Curtain raisers at 8:30 will be Tommy Rae and Fred (Legs) Grobmier.

Chicago Cubs, Phils Divide Double-header

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 30.—Tot Pressnell's brilliant relief pitching gave the Chicago Cubs an even break with the Philadelphia Phillies in a mid-week double-header today.

The Phils, breaking loose with six runs off Jake Mooty in the fifth, captured the opener, 8 to 4. Cy Blanton lasted out the game although the Cubs touched him for 14 hits, five by Stan Hack.

In the second game the Phils made their bid for a clean sweep off Hettwin Bill by knocking starting Pitcher Vance Page out of the box in the third. But Pressnell took over at this point and yielded only three hits the rest of the way.

The Cubs untied the score with a run in the fifth and added another in the sixth for a 5-to-3 decision.

Story of Lefty Grove Great From Any Angle

LEFTY GROVE

His Greatest Thrill Realized in 300th Pitching Victory

A gentleman who really wanted to write himself a powerful piece could take that baseball game in Boston, wherein the venerable and venerated Robert Moses Lefty Grove won, or had won for him, his 300th victory as a major league pitcher, and, using it as a sort of golden text, he could fashion anything from a smash of thrilling ball park fiction to a sermon fit for Sabbath usage from even the most solemn pulpit. For in it, behind it and through it is a strain of life story that, like a big city telephone cable, has a little bit of every sort of language in it.

Cunningham

From a technical standpoint, the game was a throw-out, but there's no question but that the Red Sox poured everything they had into the effort to nail that one for their oldest and most famous pitcher. There wasn't much else they could give him. So it chances, there wasn't much else he wanted or asked for. That's the big part of the story.

Being officially recorded for all history as a 300-game winner moved him into a historic circle with such other immortals as Cy Young, Charley Nichols, Eddie Plank, Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson and Grover Cleveland Alexander. The members of that sextet are the only ones who've accomplished the feat in this century. Alexander did it last, and he reached the figure 17 years ago.

But this, as it chanced, was practically all he had left to want for. The rest was already his. Ever since, back in 1919, he rode a bicycle barefooted 16 miles out of the West Virginia hills to ask for a job on a town team as a left-handed first baseman—a job that he flubbed, and then decided to try pitching—he's been steadily in the professional game, and his career has been one of the truly great ones.

And "great" is really the word.

The rest of the story isn't part of sports page lore. It's down in the little town of Lonaconing, Md., which the Groves call home. It's in the hearts of the neighbors down there who know the Groves as family people. They know Lefty as a fine, decent, clean and loyal family man, with the same wife he started out with, and whom he fondly calls "Mamma." They know he has a manly son and a pretty daughter, both now in college. They know he's never put on any dog, has never played the great hero, that he's never been tight with his money, but that, withal, he's been a "saving man."

In fact, he's banked and has invested his baseball earnings so carefully that, besides some bowling alleys he owns in Lonaconing, he's supposed to have a quarter of a million dollars in Government bonds. He's no part of a scrimp. His family lives well, and he even goes in for some reasonably fancy haberdashery, especially during the spring season in Florida, where his pullover sweaters, flannel trousers and two-tone sports shoes of expensive make are part of the standard tropical scenery around the Sarasota Terrace Hotel.

But he's not a night-clubbing ball player. He's never to be found around the bar. Pitching is his business, and physical fitness his stock in trade. He still follows his original country-boy routine, retiring early and getting up with the birds.

This isn't an effort to paint him as any gold-tinted angel. He had a temper that became practically historical. Its explosions were things of stark beauty. He'd tear shirts, kick buckets, rip gloves and threaten to tear erring ball players and disagreeing umpires apart. In fact, when Connie Mack sold

Scarborough Makes Ace, Suess a Two

Million-to-One Shot Recorded HereSecond Time in Four Years; Zimmerman Has Par

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Golf's million-to-one shot, a 1, 2, 3 and 4 on the same hole, was written into the books at Rock Creek yesterday with R. L. Scarborough counting with the hole-in-one, a perfect four-iron shot on the 167-yard par three third hole on A course.

An Argyle foursome accomplished the feat four years ago on the eighth hole, the last time it was recorded on a local course.

Scarborough was forced to play a stymie shot from the tee, however, to make his hole-in-one as Tony Suess, a Washington Post compositor, had the honor in the foursome and he smacked a tee shot which stopped just the length of a score card short of the cup.

Scarborough then stepped up with his four iron and the ball grazed Suess' shot as it slipped past and into the cup. J. Zimmerman played the hole in par figures but lost it two ways and R. E. O'Brien completed the cycle with a bogey four.

Scarborough's first hole-in-one helped him to a 37 for the round, 4 over par, while Suess was low with a 36. Zimmerman had 38 and O'Brien 42.

Majors' All-Star Game Benefited USO by $53,226.27

Chicago, July 30 (INS).—The United Service Organizations, which are conducting a Nation-wide campaign to make life more pleasant for the soldiers in camp, profited by $53,226.27 from the All-Star baseball game July 8 in Detroit, Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis' office disclosed tonight.

The attendance was 54,674 and the gross receipts less United States tax were $63,267.06. The American League expenses of participating players and umpires were $1,483.68 and of the National League, $2,378.67. The Detroit Baseball Co.'s expenses for tickets, sales, ushers, gatemen, special police and miscellaneous were $5,228.46.

In addition, $950 was paid for rain insurance. Total expenses thus were $10,040.81.

Richmond Nine Meets Norfolk

Richmond, Va., July 30 (AP).—The Richmond club will enter tomorrow night's final junior American Legion baseball round-robin series with a one-up lead over Norfolk.

Norfolk swamped Vienna from Fairfax County, 11-1 in five innings yesterday and Vienna, third participant in the series, forfeited its meeting with Richmond last night.

This leaves Richmond credited with three wins against no defeats, and Norfolk with two successes against a 5-1 loss to Richmond. A victory by Norfolk tomorrow would force the teams to play again the same night to break the tie.

One of Mrs. Whitney's Six Columbus Entries

Mrs. M. E. Whitney takes a fence on Spring Hope as she schools for the Columbus Horse Show at Meadowbrook Saturday and Sunday. Spring Hope has been bred to Mrs. Whitney's stallion, Bonne Nuit, and is due for temporary retirement soon

Skyscraper To Feature Show Sunday

The experts are confident that the skyscraper class on the second day of the Columbus Horse Show, Sunday, will range at 6 feet or better—the entries prove it. With 25 horses entered in each of the other open jumping classes at the Meadowbrook Saddle Club, the skyscraper has only 10 listed, but all of them are topnotchers.

The reason for this cut is that exhibitors refuse to enter a mount that is not capable of jumping 6 feet, but in the remaining events of the open division height is not as important as consistency.

Hence the ten entered are Dorothy Lee Counselman's Way, formerly of the U. S. Randle string; Cotter's Rocksie, holder of the high jump record of 6½ feet locally; Lieut. Fred Hughes, jr's Black Caddy, which held the earlier record of 6 feet 4 inches; Peggy Sampson's father-son combination of Hi Ho Silver and Black Boy, from Richmond, Va., Mrs. M. E. Whitney's Blue Eagle and First Night, both 6-foot leapers; Capt. David Wagstaff's Enterprise, Madison Square Garden winner, and Florence Fitzgerald's Dan's Rocksand, making his initial appearance in a high-jumping class.

Out of Retirement

Meanwhile a powerful field of entrants will appear in the other open classes, including one of the District's best-known old ponies, Tipperary Mary, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Bradley. The little chestnut mare, now 26 years old, has won enough ribbons during her career to furnish a tackroom, and will emerge from retirement to show at Columbus.

Another likely horse is Betty and Peggy Mills' Baby Shooks, from Newton Square, Pa. With tiny Peggy up, Baby Shooks twice turned back the North's most prominent leaper, Maytop Stable's Bartender, at the Rumson (N. J.) show last week, and should be a formidable opponent for Washington competitors.

Others are Mrs. Polly Stokes' Freckles, gray pony from Warrenton, Va.; Fort Myer's Smacko, Reno, Clipped Wings and Streamline; Miss Cotter's Rocksette, Randle's Sport Marvel, Blanche Johnson's Good Times, Lieut. W. B. Rand, jr.'s Papa John, Anita Mammele's Caddy's Trump, Fenton Fadeley's Skippy and Headrock and Capt and Mrs. J. C. Minniece's Trail Bird.

Other Entries

For the hunter division Mrs. Whitney will send The Bear, Strong Tea, Spring Hope and Cherry Bounce. Also from Virginia will be Mrs. D. N. Lee's Glamour Man and Ruth O'Keefe's Higlo. The Mills sisters will show Jack O'Dandy and Randle's hunter contingent will be made up of Troop, Rascality and Gee Ray Bee. Betty Couzens is planning to ride her newest purchase, Spanish Oak.

Garfield Holds Homecoming Card Today

Garfield Playground's annual homecoming today has developed into a "welcome back" day for Evelyn Sheridan, playground director, who is back on the job after a year's absence enforced by a severe illness.

Once so seriously ill that she was annointed, the popular director now is again enjoying good health and is eager to renew acquaintances with her many "children." Among them are expected to be "G-Men" Joe Lynch and Pat Garrity, a pair of priests, the Revs. Paul Pepetti and Cornell Cowhig, and a group of doctors, including Phil Diglin, James Kane, Vince DiFrancessco, Ralph Monico and Sam Zola.

Also expected are Ben McCullough, Pete Haley, Ed Colliflower, Tom Nolan, Preacher Adkins, Irish McCarthy, Dick Tennison, Maude Parker and Lowell Adkins.

As usual, declared Ben Zola, men's director of the playground, there will be a baseball game between the oldtimers and the not so old-timers, and also a game between women teams, if enough of the fair sex show up to permit it.

Refreshments will be served, and if you can't leave your children at home, bring them along because there will be maids to care for them at the playground.

Brewer Nine, All-Stars in Benefit Game

Heurich Brewers, for many years a power in local sandlot baseball circles, will meet an all-star nine, representing the Washington-Virginia Night League, in a benefit game for Pat Murphy tonight at Ballston Stadium.

Murphy, a star backstop for the Maccabees in the arclight loop and a former member of the Brewers crew, was struck in the face by a foul line drive during batting practice last week. He suffered two broken jaws and all of his teeth were loosened.

League officials immediately picked an all-star team and contacted the Brewers to play the contest for Murphy's benefit.

Dos Olson, who has been doing many of the Brewer pitching chores as well as toiling for the Gibson Grays in the night circuit, will probably draw the starting mound assignment for the loop nine.

The complete all-star line-up, position and team follows:

Jimmy Schwab, catcher, Palace; Walker Nyce, catcher, Gibson Grays; "Wimpy" Williams, shortstop, Gibson Grays; Johnny McPherson, third base, Arlington Dodgers; Bill Harris, outfielder, Palace; "Renny" Orlando, second base, Village Motors; "Captain" Kidd, outfielder, Village Motors; Bernie Good, first base, Arlington Dodgers; MacAndrews, second base, Mattos; "Gump" Swann, third base, Palace; Delano Robey, outfielder, Maccabees; Mal Leatherwood, outfielder, Maccabees; Luther Tapp, shortstop, Arlington Dodgers; Ralph Cooper, first base, Maccabees; Lanny Birch, pitcher, Maccabees; Joe Porter, pitcher, Village Motors, and Dos Olson, pitcher, Gibson Grays.

President Bill Veeck, of the Brewers, said the transactions were effective immediately.

Southpaw Earl McAleer's 74 was the lowest round of the day, while W. G. McCreery's 79 was low gross for the winners. Daily's net 66 and net 69's by I. T. Donohoe and A. L. Duncan were the best handicap totals.

Lio to Start for College All-Stars in Chicago

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 30.—The starting line-up of the college all-American football team which will meet the Chicago Bears, August 28, at Soldier Field—selected by millions of fans throughout the Nation—was announced today.

Tackles—Nick Drahos, Cornell, 961,474; Ernest Pannell, Texas Aggies, 875,263.

Guards—Augie Lio, Georgetown, 1,284,078; Tommy O'Boyle, Tulane, 1,052,754.

Center—Rudy Mucha, Washington, 1,256,184.

Quarterbacks—Forest Evashevski, Michigan, 1,357,674.

Halfbacks—Tom Harmon, Michigan, 1,421,586; George Franck, Minnesota, 1,259,214.

Fullback — George Paskvan, Wisconsin, 914,327.

Position by position, those 11 stars received the greatest number of ballots in a Nation-wide contest sponsored by the Chicago Tribune with the cooperation of 263 newspapers and radio stations. Voting ended last midnight.

Friday announcement will be made of one of the five coaches of the staff which will drill the collegians into shape for the battle. The 11 players named by the fans must start the game, but coaches may make any changes they wish after the opening kickoff.

This year's collegiate squad, many observers believe, is the best all-around aggregation in the history of the series, with strength both in the line and backfield.

Seventy players will be invited to go into training August 10 at Northwestern University and next It will have to be strong, however, to withstand the offensive of a Bear machine which won its championship by routing Washington, 73 to 0.

The professionals now hold an edge in the series begun in 1934. They have won three games, lost two and tied two. Last year's college outfit scored 28 points—only to see the Green Bay Packers pile up 45 before the greatest crowd in the series history—84,567 spectators. The crowd this year may exceed that figure, should good weather prevail, for the advance ticket sale has been the best on record.

THE SPHINX IS SAID TO BE grinning

Throughout the ages, the Sphinx, squatting in the shadow of the Pyramids, has kept its cynical and set expression. Nothing to date has stirred up its placidity.

But rumor indicates that now there is a new look on the face of the Sphinx—its eyes are popping with eagerness, its nostrils are spread in luxurious sniffs, its tongue hangs out and its mouth fairly drools.

Shaileen Scores Easily in Winnaford Purse at Bel Air

Tony Steel Runs Second By 4 Lengths

Two Ply Runs Third In Field of Six; Daily Double Pays Lowest of Meet

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Bel Air, Md., July 30.—Shaileen, owned by A. A. Gray, of Baltimore, scored an easy victory in the Winnaford Farm Purse, top event on the midweek program here in Harford County. In turning in her third victory of the year in 12 starts, this daughter of Happy Argo and Shanette, forged to the finish line four lengths in advance of the Knollwood Stable's Tony Steel. Three lengths farther back came J. Pedrosa's Two Ply to be third in a field that shrunk to six starters after three scratches.

Ridden by Jockey Wayne Weber, Shaileen had a light backing in the crowd of 8,000 and returned $19.80 for the usual deuce investment. The track was slow as the result of a downpour last night and the 4-year-old filly was clocked in 1.42 3-5 for the mile route.

Goes to Front

Shaileen was confidently handled in the early stages. Blustering, Two Ply and Becomly fought a three-way battle for the pace-setting honors with Blustering having the most speed. After a half, Weber asked Shaileen for speed. She responded by going wide and circling the leaders. She opened a gap at once and was never threatened thereafter, Weber having a grip as she reached the wire.

Tony Steel came from far back to get the place money ahead of the tiring Two Ply.

Favorites won the first four races on the program and the daily double of $11.10 was the smallest of the meeting to date. In the first event, Pimlico Polly, owned by H. R. Dulany, jr., of Washington, came from behind to defeat Olympian and Chief Teddy. Pimlico Polly paid $4.80. In the second race, White Cockade, a veteran of many turf battles, galloped into a lead and was never threatened, paying $4.40.

Jockey S. Dewsin, who starts a suspension tomorrow, rode two winners on the card, taking the fifth with Aster Lady and the seventh with Schley Al.

2 Howard Stars Arrive at Del Mar

Del Mar, Calif., July 30 (AP).—Two distinguished guests arrived today for the Del Mar Turf Club's racing season.

They are Mioland and Porter's Cap, two stars of the Charles S. Howard stable. They originally were scheduled to go East.

Mioland's role during the 27-day meeting, which opens Friday, may be that of a sideliner, but Porter's Cap will be pointed for both the $7,500 Del Mar Handicap and the $5,000 Labor Day Handicap.

Howard will have his stable of 16 horses here.

Virtually the same jockeys who rode at Hollywood Park also will ride at Del Mar, including Ferrill Zufelt, apprentice sensation who rode 61 winners at Hollywood Park.

Selections at Bel Air

Dear Al:

They laughed when Bel Air was added to the Maryland half-mile circuits. Last Tuesday, the betting here totaled $200,000, or $4,000 more than was wagered on that afternoon at Saratoga. I had breakfast yesterday with J. B. Belk, of Charlottesville. He is the owner of Walter Light, Blustering, Sir Counsellor and others all by the sire Sir Walter. Belk owns Sir Walter which never won a race, finishing second once in three tries before going wrong. Belk has never advertised his stud and keeps Sir Walter to serve a few mares he owns. The horse, now 10 years old, has a remarkable stud record, having sent ten horses to the races and all have been winners. By the way, Blustering is the first get of Flaming Mamie, a mare which carried the colors of Belk to many victories. He hoped to get a name for her with "Walter" in it but the Jockey Club turned down his list so Belk asked that body to name her and it chose Blustering. The Virginian, one of the most popular owners in the East, may take a few mares next year for Sir Walter which was named because Sir Walter Raleigh gave Belk's family its original land grant in North Carolina. Jockey R. Haber is planning to leave for Dade Park's meeting. They tell me that horses from No. 1 post position failed to win at last year's meeting. Three have won from the inside this season—Count Me, Pimlico Polly and Aster Lady. Steeplechase Jockey Norman Brooks appeared to be uninjured after his spectacular fall with Flemar in the steeplechase. Later, however, he collapsed and was rushed to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore for examination. See you on the rail—BILL.

First race—TACARO LILLY showed speed last out and may improve enough to beat this kind. RIPPLE ON is a fair sort and belongs close in this company. SWEET ZACA had trouble last out and is dangerous.

Second race—GENNARO lacked speed at Hagerstown, but is a good one. Should like this track, and I'm going to string along. DON DASH is sharp and will close ground. DONA MONTEZ to take care of the others.

Third race—QUAKERSTREET and BAHAMA KNIGHT, both winners here, promise to battle it out in the day's jumping event. I prefer them in the order named. JUSTA BUD'S rider lost stirrups last out, and this one is a long-shot possibility.

Fourth race—RED IDOL ran out at every turn in that recent start. I expect better handling today. REAL BOY was never better and is the one to beat. STREAMER promises to be a dangerous contender.

Fifth racee—J. HAL turned in a smashing effort last out and seems capable of repeating that effort in this field. NICK had trouble at far turn behind J. Hal. TYR will be a threat if the track is off.

Sixth race—DAN'S FOLLY appears well placed in this field. Will like the track and needs only the right ride. GIMPEY and DOMINAL to account for the place and show awards.

Seventh race—TIME SCOUT gets the call in this distance affair. Likes the route and gets in with modest weight. PENNY ARCADE whipped this kind at Hagerstown. SUN SWEEP for the show end.

Eighth race—FRANK H. is the class of this field and should take command and never be menaced. BLOX and SCHLEY BUCK for the place and show money.

Best bet—Frank H.

Cotton Futures Plunge, Close $3.65 Lower

By the Associated Press

New York, July 30.—Good news and bad news sent cotton futures jumping from gains of $1.15 a bale to losses of as much as $6.15 a bale, the close showing net losses of $2.90 to $3.65 a bale.

Traders leaped nimbly to the buying side early on Senate approval of freezing Government-owned loan stocks for duration of the European war.

Prices about-faced and dived on publication of the anti-inflationary price control message to Congress from President Roosevelt in a break that was the sharpest since March 11, 1935. Stop-loss orders uncovered on the way down accelerated the plunge. Some regarded the message in part as a virtual request for authority to control the cotton market.

Weak at Close

At the lows, trade and professional buying was evident. The Agriculture Department's 16.49-cent-a-pound July 15 parity price as basis for loans on the 1941-42 crop brought a flurry of buying, but the rally was short-lived and the trend was down again at the finish.

Little attention was paid to the Worth Street gray goods market, which proceeded cautiously, with one eye on cotton and the other on price ceilings.

Range follows:

	Open	High	Low	Close
October	17.14	17.22	16.22	16.43	—56
December	17.28	17.38	16.30	16.53	—63
January	17.33	17.39	16.49	16.57	—64
March	17.49	17.50	16.30	16.84	—67
May	17.49	17.50	16.27	16.60	—73
July	17.48	17.49	16.40	16.60	—70

Spot middling, 17.06, nominal.

Coffee, Sugar Gain

Coffee and world sugar futures were the only markets which resisted the downturn, Santos coffee gaining .03 to .07 of a cent a pound and world sugar rising .01 to .08 cent a pound.

Cottonseed oil followed cotton, recovering from its lows of the day to finish with losses of .07 to .09 cent a pound.

Straits tin, faced with imminent price ceilings, lost 1 to 1¼ cents a pound.

Wool tops lost .5 to .8 of a cent a pound, and hides were .14 to .18 cent a pound cheaper.

Rubber, a limited market, lost .05 to .50 cent a pound, and cocoa was .09 to .10 cent lower.

The Associated Press index of 35 basic cash staples, which passed 90 per cent of the 1926 average earlier in the week, slipped to 89.64 per cent from 90.01 per cent the day before.

Most of the Stock Exchange leaders were in lower territory from the start until the final hour, with losses in steels and specialties running to a point or so. The rally reduced or erased many of the early losses and permitted a fair number of issues to edge into the gain column. Rails paced the recovery move. Rubber shares were firm all day.

The Executive's reference to inflation dangers was said by brokers to have been the cue for some last-minute bidding, but they also noted a period of hesitation immediately upon release of the message as if the market was trying to measure its broader implications.

Before the late lift the price swings seemed to express Wall Street concern over the huge amounts which some big corporations felt it was necessary to set aside for 1941 taxes out of June quarter profits. The case of United States Steel Corporation, with a $32,800,000 provision against $11,800,000 in the first quarter, was regarded in boardrooms as a notable example of the trend.

The Associated Press of 60 stocks was down .1 of a point at 44.1, which was only slightly under the peak of the July rise. Volume was 745,690 shares against 962,710 yesterday.

Goodyear, Goodrich and Southern Railway reached new 1941 highs. Other gainers included United States Rubber, Southern Pacific, New York Central, Great Northern preferred and Wheeling Steel. On the offside were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, General Electric and Allied Chemical.

Improved in a narrow Curb were American Gas & Electric, Sunray Oil and Pennroad. Transactions here were around 128,000 shares compared with 154,000 yesterday.

Quoted values of Japanese government and municipal bonds wilted 3 to 7 points today when light offerings found an absence of bids except at drastically lower prices.

The general domestic corporate list was mostly narrow but the undertone remained steady. United States Governments were without important change either way.

Turnover of $6,703,950, par value, compared with $8,391,200 on Tuesday. The only important change in the Associated Press averages was a drop of .4 of a point in the foreign group.

Renewal of pressure against the Japanese group was a continuation of the move begun last week after the freezing of the empire's American funds. There was some letup Monday when it was asserted servicing of the various issues would be continued. Today's worst losses were registered on transfer of but one or two bonds.

United States Governments closed 15-32 higher to 2-32 of a point lower on the Stock Exchange. A similar trend prevailed over the counter with dealings light on both markets.

U. S. Can Check Inflation, Says Floyd Odlum

By the Associated Press

New York, July 30.—The Government, "with adequate public support," should succeed in preventing an uncontrolled inflationary price rise, said Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas Corporation, large investing concern, in his semiannual report to stockholders today.

Odlum reported asset value for the common stock as of June 30 at $11.81 per share, compared with $11.43 a year earlier, and presented a table showing it had risen in each of the past three years, starting from $10.93 on June 30, 1938, despite a substantial decline in the average price of shares in the Stock Exchange during the same preiod.

Atlas directors today ordered a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock, payable September 5 to stock of record August 11, together with the regular quarterly payment of 75 cents on the preferred. This was the second 25 cent common stock disbursement ordered this year. Two 25 cent distributions were made in 1940, one June 5 and one October 25.

Explaining the company had considered it prudent to maintain a substantial portion of its assets in cash, Odlum said "the impact of frequent changes in and increase of taxes, the restrictions and priorities with respect to many materials and their effect on normal channels of business, trade and profits and on civilian life, pose daily questions concerning which an enlightened guess is all that is sometimes possible."

On prices and the efforts of the Government to curb runaway prices, he said: "An abrupt inflationary spiral is by no means a certainity and furthermore there may be considerable doubt as to how much protection to capital is afforded by securities in such a period of inflation when accompanied by price controls and high taxes."

He thought a gradual rise in prices, in contrast with a runaway increase "may not be avoidable in periods of emergency such as at present and may even be desirable." He expressed the hope and belief it was the intention of the Government to keep costs and profits in a proper balance.

Dun & Bradstreet to Observe 100th Anniversary Tomorrow

By the Associated Press

New York, July 30.—A company founded on a business failure and which has devoted a century to compiling statistics to prevent other failures will celebrate its 100th birthday anniversary Friday.

The company is the centralized credit reporting service known all over the world as Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

It was founded August 1, 1841, as "The Mercantile Agency" by Lewis Tappan, a New York silk importer who had gone bankrupt in the panic of 1837 largely because of some bad guesses as to the credit standings of country merchants.

He mulled over this situation to such an extent that he finally lost interest in the silk business and devoted himself to the organization of a service by which correspondents in every community reported confidentially on the financial standing of the local businessmen. These reports were supplemented with a cross check of the houses with which the merchants did business.

The idea was a success from the start. It helped Eastern banks and New York wholesalers to open up the West and the Far West by giving them a guide on business houses which could be granted credit with which to carry out pioneering operations.

From a strictly cold-blooded business viewpoint, Lewis Tappan had a lot to do with the winning of the West.

Thirteen years after the founding of the agency, Tappan gave a job to Robert Graham Dun, an Ohioan, who purchased full control in 1859 and gave his name to the present firm.

It was that year that the company's reference book was first published. It contained 20,000 names and their credit ratings. This year's book lists 2,300,000 names of commercial enterprises.

The Bradstreet part of the present firm got its start in 1849 in Cincinnati. John M. Bradstreet, a descendant of Simon Bradstreet, first colonial governor of New England, started a service in competition to Tappan. The competition went on for 86 years until the companies merged in 1933.

[The Washington office of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., will join in the celebration of the centennial anniversary. The local office is under the management of Vinkler D. Waddill and was founded in 1890.]

Defense Bonds and Tax Anticipation Notes Seen Warding Off Evils of Inflation

Daniel W. Bell, Undersecretary of the Treasury, and one of the outstanding financial mentors of the Roosevelt Administration, today acts as guest columnist for Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, who is on vacation.

I am very glad of this opportunity to take Mr. Rukeyser's place for one day to discuss important economic aspects of the defense savings program.

The Government is making every effort to finance as much as possible of national defense from tax revenues and from genuine savings. It is hoped that this will check the inflationary tendencies that come naturally from the tremendous effort we are now making for our own defense and as the arsenal of democracy.

D. W. BELL

Our defense effort has now reabsorbed, directly or indirectly, millions of those who have been unemployed in recent years. Our national pay envelope is fatter than ever before, and more American workers are leading a more abundant life than ever before. Our supplies of certain raw materials for civilian use are being needed more and more for the weapons of defense, and our effort is only beginning.

These are the conditions in which prices and costs will rise unless we take vigorous measures to check them.

The most effective way is to skim off the excess purchasing power so that current earnings are put to work for the Government instead of being spent on private consumption. Whether this is done by taxation or by the purchase of defense bonds, it serves the triple purpose of keeping prices down, of providing the dollars that are needed for defense and of releasing scarce materials for military use.

Since May 1 hundreds of thousands of Americans have been buying Defense Bonds and stamps to help pay for defense and also to help achieve these economic ends. On August 1 the Treasury will begin the sale of tax anticipation notes which should make the payment of income taxes prompter and easier and thus contribute to the same great objectives.

There is room in this fiscal program for every man and woman to do something helpful, not only to defend the Republic, but to keep down the evils of inflation.

In this guest column, I should like to discuss one other anti-inflationary point that is not generally understood. This is the problem of minimizing the further rise in bank deposits at this time. The amount that will be raised by the savings bond program is difficult to estimate, but the more we raise through this method, the less we shall have to raise through our regular market financing. Such a reduction will check the increase in demand deposits which might otherwise have taken place.

As you know, the volume of bank deposits expands if banks make net purchases of Government bonds. During the period of business recovery, the expansion of deposits was perhaps desirable because we then had a large volume of unemployment and idle plant capacity.

Now, however, we face a different situation. The volume of unemployment is rapidly decreasing and the volume of production is rapidly growing. As the defense program gets into full swing, we shall reach the stage at which more and more industries will be approaching capacity. The problem will then no longer be the mere expansion of total output, but also the expansion of defense production by diverting resources from nondefense fields.

At that stage, a sustained rise in demand deposits would make it more difficult to check a drastic rise in prices. This is just an additional reason—but a most important one—for taking every available dollar out of current purchasing power at this time. It is the patriotic thing to buy defense bonds and stamps now. The point I wish to make today is that it is also the prudent thing to do. The best insurance of our economic stability in the future.

Profits of 250 Firms Mount 23% in Period

By the Associated Press

New York, July 30.—Profits of the first 250 companies to report for the second quarter of 1941 were 23 per cent greater than in the same period a year ago, an Associated Press compilation disclosed today.

Earnings of the group amounted to $378,999,000 compared with $308,020,000 in the quarter ended June 30, 1940.

The survey showed that virtually every important industry enjoyed larger earnings than a year ago Compared with the increase in industrial activity, however, gains scored by many industries lacked impressiveness.

As measured by the Federal Reserve Index of Industrial Production, physical output of goods during the April-June period was nearly 30 per cent greater than a year ago. The increase in profits, however, amounted to 23 per cent.

Rails Show Big Gain

Railroads, railroad equipment manufacturers and the steel industry showed the largest earning gains. Profits of these industries were fairly well protected from excess profits taxes by heavy capital investments.

Twenty-two railroads reported second quarter net income totaling $31,933,000, more than double the $14,475,000 earned in the same period of 1940. This wide gain was chalked up despite the coal strike sharply cutting earnings of several important carriers.

Eight manufacturers of railroad equipment earned $5,534,000 compared with $2,811,000 a year ago, a rise of 97 per cent.

Twenty-four steel companies took recently granted wage increases in stride, reporting profits of $47,446,000 against $30,929,000 in the June quarter of 1940. During the quarter the industry operated at the highly profitable rate of 98.2 per cent of capacity compared with an average rate of 72.5 per cent in the same quarter last year.

Farm Price Index Rises 7 Points in Month

By the Associated Press

The general level of prices received by farmers at local markets during the month ended July 15 advanced 7 points to continue a rise that has totaled 22 points since March, the Agriculture Department reported yesterday.

At 125 per cent of the 1910-14 average, prices of farm products were higher on July 15 than on any month since March, 1937. On July 15, last year, prices were only 99 per cent of the prewar level.

Rail Earnings to Soar

In contrast to the mixed trends in industrial corporation earnings, almost all railroads are expected to report increases in profits this year. For the marginal roads, with heavy leverage, the rise will be substantial. Few railroads will have more than very small excess profits taxes to pay on the basis of any probable tax proposal. Earnings of Class 1 railroads this year are expected to be almost as large as 1930 and better than in any intervening year, with little difference in the figure regardless of the exact terms of the tax law. The gain over 1940 is expected to be close to 150 per cent.

There was nothing of the super pitcher about Feller last night. The Nats swatted him for nine hits before he retired, and after the Indians set him up in a 2-0 lead in the first inning, the Nats knocked Feller loose for three runs in their half of the inning.

Bill Zuber started the ball game for the Nats and Manager Bucky Harris tolerated him for only one inning. After giving up two runs to the Injuns in the first inning, Zuber started the second by pitching a single to Grimes and walking Mack. With nobody out, Sundra got the pitching job at that point, and with the aid of a clever catch by Case emmitted no damage in the inning.

Heath Triples

Sundra, who was to learn midway of the game that Mrs. Sundra had borne him a brand-new son, was hit freely but apparently was in control of the situation until the ninth. He allowed only two runs from the first until the ninth.

Jeff Heath banged a long triple against the right center wall in the first inning to score Campbell and Walker, who had singled, but Zuber got out of the inning gracefully when he caused Keltner to pop up, and then nipped Heath by a wide margin on an attempt to steal home.

Then it was that Feller, like an ingrate, pitched three runs back at the Nats. Roger Cramer, who has always hit Feller as if he owned him, launched the uprising with a double against the wall in left-center and, with two out, the Nats went out and got three runs.

Feller Loses Control

Cecil Travis scored Cramer with a single to right and Feller lost his control for a spell, filling the bases by walking Vernon and hitting Archie on the arm with a curve ball. Archie suffered a painful bruise on the elbow of his left arm and later was forced out of the game. Anyway, Jake Early fetched two more runs home with a Texas League single to short left. It wasn't much of a hit, but it was laden with two big runs.

The fifth inning was sort of uproarious. The Indians gained a run and lost a ballplayer. They tied the score briefly at 3 to 3 when Boudreau, Walker and Heath banged singles against Sundra. Walker tried to score on Keltner's pop to Third Baseman Bloodworth in short left field, and Bloodworth flagged him down with a fancy throw to the plate.

As the Indians charged Umpire Passarella to protest that Walker was safe, First Baseman Grimes inadvertently jostled the umpire. Grimes was something of an innocent bystander who happened to be in the way as Walker picked himself up from the dust and rushed toward Passarella. The umpire gave Grimes the thumb and permitted Walker to stay in the game.

Nats Counter

The Nats countered with a run against Feller in the same inning to reclaim a 4-to-3 lead. Case started it by beating out a hit to Boudreau who threw wild past first after making a clever stop. Case scurried to third on the play which Hemsley complicated by slipping to his posterior while attempting to retrieve the ball against the first-base boxes. Cramer scored Case with a single to center.

It was some sort of les majeste when the Nats scored another run off Feller to take a 5-3 lead in the seventh. Case greeted him with a double to center field. Cramer was purposely passed and when Lewis forced Cramer at second for the second out, Case moved to third. He scored when one of Feller's pitches got away from Hemsley. Travis was purposely passed, but Lewis turned in the third out of the inning when he was picked off second by Feller.

With two out, the Indians stirred up a run in the eighth to cut the Nats' lead to 5-4. Keltner doubled to left center and Trosky scored him with a two-bagger to left. Going into the ninth, the Indians were a run behind.

Pinch-hitter Delivers

Pinch-hitter Roy Weatherly batted for Feller and singled to center with one out in the ninth and it was the start of grief for Sundra. Boudreau singled to right and Campbell scored Weatherly with the Indians' third straight hit—a single to right. With the score tied and runners on first and second, Alex Carrasquel got the pitching job.

Carrasquel was no immediate success. Walker slammed his second pitch for a single to left and the Indians were a run in front. Heath flied to left for the second out and Gee Walker helped Carrasquel over the hump. He leisurely tried to steal second, drew a throw from Carrasquel, and eventually Campbell tried to score during the rundown. The play shifted to him and Campbell was trapped and tagged.

The score at that point was 6 to 5 in favor of the Indians, and you know what the Nats did in the ninth. It was all very exciting.

Police-Fire Committeemen Host Tonight

A program of events for the annual Police-Firemen's Field Day scheduled Saturday, August 23, at Griffith Stadium, will be outlined tonight by Lieut. John J. Agnew, general chairman, and his committee, at a banquet to be given for members of the two departments and newspapermen at the Harrington Hotel.

More than 75 have been invited to the affair, starting at 6:45, including two of the District Commissioners—Guy Mason and John Russell Young.

Lieut. Elmer F. Stein, veteran from Engine Co. No. 16, will be master of ceremonies. Ranking officials of the Police and Fire Departments will attend.

The field day is staged for the benefit of the Police Retiring Association and the Fire Department Relief and Retiring Associations. Inspector William G. Stott, who officially retires tonight from the police force after 37 years of service, is president of the police group, and will be among the honored guests.

Abrams Defeats Soose 3d Time

ary 12, 1940. Before that Abrams had beaten the Farrel, Pa., flash in September, 1939.

Abrams therefore will have to wait until after the Overlin-Soose fight, which is to be held some time in October or November, before he gets a shot at the title. If Soose wins, Abrams will be given an immediate bout. If Overlin, Abram's stablemate, wins, Georgie will have to wait until someone beats Ken before getting a chance at the crown unless Chris Dundee, manager of the two, releases one of them to another manager.

However, because of Abrams, triumph tonight, it virtually is certain that Abrams, instead of Overlin, will challenge Soose for the title in October or November.

Tonight's bout was a see-saw affair in which the men seemed to exchange rounds during most of the milling. The United Press had the bout scored even, with each man credited with four rounds and the last two even. Referee Frank Fullum gave Abrams nine rounds and Soose only one. Judge Bill Healy scored it six for Abrams two for Soose and two even. The other judge, Tom Curley voted seven, two and one even.

Abrams forced the fighting throughout, and although a notoriously light puncher, sent the taller and heavier champion back on his heels several times with straight right hands to the chin. In the third round, for example, Georgie couldn't seem to miss with those rights. He landed nine in a row, bringing the catsup to Billy's nose.

The champion's best round was the eighth when he hurt Abrams twice with hard rights to the head and temporarily slowed up Georgia to a walk. Both men went all out in the ninth and tenth and fought furiously on even terms.

Abrams, on furlough from the Naval training station at Jacksonville, Fla., scaled 160¾ pounds, 3½ less than Soose.

Bobby Ruffin, 134, New York, outpointed Mike Belloise, 130, New York (8).

Paul Klang, 162½, Brooklyn, outpointed Vince Fratello, 161, Hackensack, N. J. (6).

Billy Graham, 128, New York, (drew) Joey Agro, 126½, Coney Island (4).

Turner Plans Poland-Blunt 25-Round Bout

If present plans materialize Joe Turner, Washington's only active boxing promoter, will stage an all-star heavyweight show featuring a 25-round fight between Bill Poland, Jack Kearns' young heavyweight find, and Eddie Blunt, recent conqueror of Buddy Baer, at Griffith Stadium Tuesday night, August 26.

Turner outlined his plans at a luncheon attended by sportswriters, radio commentators, Claude W. Owen, chairman of the D. C. Boxing Commission, and Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey in the latter's halycon days.

The 25-round route was suggested by Senor Gabe Menendez, Turner's matchmaker.

Kearns readily agreed to the marathon distance for his fighter. The veteran manager stated, "although my fighter is young—he likes a longer distance as he improves as a fight progresses."

Poland, hailed by Kearns as "the coming champion," holds a knock-out victory over Harry Bobo, rugged Pittsburgh heavyweight.

Others whose services Turner has acquired include Lee Savold, of Des Moines, Iowa; Pat Comiskey, one-time white hope who was flattened by Maxie Baer and Lou Nova and now staging a comeback, and Melio Bettina, former light heavyweight champion and recent victor over "Reds" Burman in Brooklyn.

Archibald Signs For Fight Here

members to swing it. One of the two members, Thomas P. Morgan, jr., told The Post last night that he would not vote to suspend Alvis, but would suggest that the promoter be warned. The other member, Police Chief Earnest W. Brown, could not be reached for a statement.

All of which adds up to another of the boxing muddles for which the District is infamous. Most confusing point of the issue is that Archibald gained his claim to the featherweight title by defeating Harry Jeffra here. At the time the District Boxing Commission raised no howl about the fight being held for the title, but last night Owen emphasized that the fight was not recognized by the commission.

A solution to the mess loomed in an announcement from Chicago yesterday by Joe Triner, the N. B. A. president, that he would sanction a bout between Lemos and the Archibald-Wright winner, which would settle beyond doubt the true champion.

Along cauliflower lane last night there was talk of "something fishy" about the whole business. How, the gossipers were asking, can Alvis guarantee Archibald $8,000 for this fight, when the Archibald-Jeffra bout, also a "championship" affair, drew less than $1,000?

There is, however, one factor that may be overlooked. And that is that Wright, a lightning-fast Negro, is one of the classiest fighters in the game today. He will be the drawing card of the program, not Archibald. Wright, one-time chauffeur for Mae West and later a sparring partner for Henry Armstrong, has for more than a year been called by boxing writers "the uncrowned" featherweight ruler.

When Jeffra was the New York-California champion, Wright filed repeated challenges for a shot at Jeffra's title, and more recently he was hot in pursuit of a championship go with Petey Scalzo, the N. B. A. champion before his knockout.

Bill Cunningham Writes on Grove

him to Boston, the resident scribes in the Hub of the Universe approached him at first as gingerly as if he were Gargantua, the gorilla.

But that was only because he wanted to win. Somewhere along the line, he became mellowed and philosophical rather than explosive and ornery.

He's a powerful figure of a man even yet. Well over 6 feet tall and weighing 200 pounds, he's long and lean with tremendous leverage in that snaky left whip. His black hair is now definitely threaded with silver, and nobody really knows how old he is. He officially passed his fortieth birthday two or three years ago, and that's for the record, but he's probably closer to 50.

There was dramatic justice in the fact that his long-time teammate and co-Athletics and world series hero, Jimmy Foxx, should have clinched the 300th win for him with a screaming three-bagger that amounted to a home run. The Mighty Double X reared himself upward from the depths of a slump to deliver safely to his old pal his dearest desire.

It's a great story from any angle, but the greatest angle of all is the quiet one of R. M. Grove, the mountain boy who grew up to be an American. There's just enough that's plain and decent and old-fashioned in this country still to bring our quickest, sincerest, if often unexpressed, emotions brimming at the sight of a strong, clean father standing proudly beside his bride, now some decade, or two, or three older with their fine sons and daughters squared away toward the future. Whether ball player or bishop, policeman or merchant prince, that's the backbone of all we stand by and for and with in this country.

That's the key block in the foundation of our American way.

Stakeholding Upheld by N. J. Supreme Court

By the Associated Press

Trenton, N. J., July 30—A 1940 repealer of an act banning stakeholding was held constitutional today by the New Jersey Supreme Court, which said holding wagers on horse races was no crime under State law.

The court, in an opinion by Chief Justice Thomas J. Brogan, reversed the sentence imposed on Anthony Baldinotti, of Orange, charged with stakeholding on November 26, 1940, two weeks after the Legislature enacted the repealer in conjunction with legalization of pari-mutuel betting at licensed tracks in the State.

Essex County Prosecutor William A. Wachenfeld had contended the repealing act was in conflict with the section of the State constitution prohibiting pool-selling, bookmaking or gambling of any kind.

English Harry Wins at Arlington

Chicago, July 30 (AP).—Mrs. Monte Weil's English Harry, a stout-hearted son of Mowlee—Honesty, set all the pace in the 2 miles and a furlong Mike Hall Purse over the grass course at Arlington Park today, and at the end had enough left to beat J. C. Lewis' Dark Phaona by a head.

H. and H. Stock Farm's Gen. L. was third in the six-horse field. A crowd of 12,000 attended.

Because it was the first time that a race of that distance ever had been run on the turf course, English Harry's time of 3:45 was automatically a track record.

E. E. Irby's Landlubber, the 8-5 favorite, was fifth.

The winner's prices were $13.00, $6.20 and $3.80. Young Jimmy George gave the winner a well-judged ride.

District Tennis Entries Will Close

Entries for the District men's tennis tournament will close at 6 p. m. today at Edgemoor Club, where the annual affair will open Saturday. Chairman Manuel Erana announced that at least 70 contestants are expected to compete.

Erana said that Wilmer Allison, former national doubles champion, and Harris Everett, star North Carolina University player who recently succeeded Barney Welsh as West Sulphur champion, may compete. Welsh, the defending champion, and his leading rivals already are entered. These rivals include Don Leavens, Davis Johnsen and Hugh Lynch.

A broadcast from the heart of Europe, extolling the virtues of democracy, should be news these days.

And so this is to report that at 10:30 tonight, WJSV brings you such a broadcast from the world's oldest democracy. In case you'd forgotten, the country is Switzerland, still enjoying the rarity of independence in the old world.

In fact, Switzerland is celebrating its 650th year of independence. Ceremonies, which have remained unchanged from medieval times, are conducted each year in the town of Rutli, in the Schwyz Mountains, in which the Swiss oath of freedom is renewed and there is a ceremonial relighting of the traditional fire of freedom amid much pageantry.

It was at Rutli in 1290 that the oath of freedom was secretly signed to be publicly made official a year later. Incidentally, too, it was at Rutli that Wilhelm Tell's legendary apple-shooting was supposed to have occurred. And the pageantry includes a reenactment of the incident.

The original oath of revolt against the tyrannical rulers of Hapsburg and Burgundy declared: "In the name of God, we want to be a united people of brothers, nor separate in any need or danger. We want to be free as were our fathers. Rather death than live in slavery."

contract laws, no matter how trifling. Here is what the lawmakers say on the point:

"A lead out of turn may be treated as a correct lead, and must be treated as such if, before the card wrongly led is withdrawn, a card is played to it by the other side. Otherwise if a lead out of turn is made by declarer from either hand, either defender may require him to take the lead back, and if he has led from the wrong hand he must lead a card of the same suit from the correct hand."

Declarer of today's deal, one of the 1941 Olympic hands, had no penalty advantage to help him, but he made his four-spade contract through proper timing. He saw that in order to win enough tricks he had to develop the clubs and also ruff his losing hearts in dummy. As the adverse trumps had to be pulled before any later clubs could be cashed, the various plays had to be timed accurately.

West opened the king of hearts and South took with the ace. The South hand not being rich in entries, South seized his first opportunity to lead a low club for a finesse, which won. A low trump was returned to declarer's ace and another low club led, picking up West's second honor and leaving the nine equal with dummy's honor.

Declarer now entered his hand with the trump king. To cash the nine of clubs at this point would have lost the contract, as the club was needed for quick reentry. A heart was first led for dummy to ruff, and then the five of clubs was played to the nine, so that South could lead and ruff his last heart. Now declarer was sure of his contract, as he had to make at least one more trump trick. He lost two diamonds and a spade.

Text of President's Message to Congress on Price Control

Legislation Asked To Halt Trend Toward Inflation

The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on price controls follows:

Inflationary price rises and increases in the cost of living are today threatening to undermine our defense effort. I am, therefore, recommending to the Congress the adoption of measures to deal with this threat.

We are now spending more than 30 million dollars a day on defense. This rate must and will increase. In June of this year, we spent about 808 million dollars—more than five times the 153 million dollars we spent in June, 1940. Every dollar spent for defense presses against an already limited supply of materials.

This pressure is sharply accentuated by an ever-increasing civilian demand. For the first time in years, many of our workers are in the market for the goods they have always wanted. This means more buyers for more products and other materials needed for defense. Thus a rapidly expanding civilian demand has been added to a vast and insistent demand by the Government.

Those who have money to spend are willing to bid for the goods. The Government must and will satisfy its defense needs. In such a situation, price advances merely determine who gets the scarce materials, without increasing the available supply. We face inflation, unless we act decisively and without delay.

The consequences of inflation are well known. We have seen them before.

Hampers Production

Producers, unable to determine what their costs will be, hesitate to enter into defense contracts or otherwise to commit themselves to ventures whose outcome they cannot foresee. The whole production machinery falters.

Speculators, anticipating successive price advances, withhold commodities from essential military production.

Costs to the Government increase, and with it the public debt.

Increases in the workers' cost of living, on the one hand, and excessive profits for the manufacturer, on the other, lead to spiraling demands for higher wages. This means friction between employer and employed.

Great profits are reaped by some, while others, with fixed and low incomes, find their living standards drastically reduced and their life-long savings shrunken. The unskilled worker, the white-collar worker, the farmer, the small business man and the small investor all find that their dollar buys ever less and less.

The burden of defense is thrown haphazardly and inequitably on those with fixed income or whose bargaining power is too weak to secure increases in income commensurate with the rise in the cost of living.

And over all hovers the specter of future deflation and depression, to confuse and retard the defense effort and inevitably to aggravate the dangers and difficulties of a return to a normal peacetime basis.

Economic Sacrifices

Economic sacrifices there will be and we shall bear them cheerfully. But we are determined that the sacrifice of one shall not be the profit of another. Nothing will sap the morale of this Nation more quickly or ruinously than penalizing its sweat and skill and thrift by the individually undeserved and uncontrollable poverty of inflation.

Our objective, therefore, must be to see that inflation, arising from the abuse of power to increase prices because the supply is limited and the demand inflexible, does not occur during the present emergency.

Today we stand, as we did in the closing months of 1915, at the beginning of an upward sweep of the whole price structure. Then, too, we enjoyed relative stability in prices for almost a year and a half after the outbreak of war abroad. In October, 1915, however, prices turned sharply upward. By April, 1917, the wholesale price index had jumped 63 per cent; by June 1917, 74 per cent; and by June 1920 it was nearly 140 per cent over the October 1915 mark.

The facts today are frighteningly similar.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics index of 28 basic commodities, by the end of June, had advanced 50 per cent beyond its August, 1939, level. It has increased 24 per cent since January of this year.

Since August, 1939, the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of 900 wholesale prices has advanced 17½ per cent. It has increased 10 per cent since January of this year. In the past 60 days, wholesale prices have risen more than five times as fast as during the preceding period since the outbreak of the war abroad.

Opportunity to Act

Since August, 1939, the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of the cost of living has advanced 5½ per cent. It has increased 3½ per cent since the beginning of this year, and the upward pressure is now intense. In a single month, from the middle of May to the middle of June, the cost of living was greater than during any similar period since the World War. But even yet the index does not fully reflect past increases, and only in a few months will it respond to current increases.

In 1915 the upward price movement proceeded unchecked so that when regulation was finally begun it was already too late. Now we have an opportunity to act before disastrous inflation is upon us. The choice is ours to make, but we must act speedily.

For 12 months we have tried to maintain a stable level of prices by enlisting the voluntary cooperation of business, and through informal persuasive control. The effort has been widely supported because far-sighted business leaders realize that their own true interest would be jeopardized by runaway inflation. But the existing authority over prices is indirect and circumscribed, and operates through measures which are not appropriate or applicable in all circumstances. It has further been weakened by those who purport to recognize need for price stabilization yet challenge the existence of any effective power. In some cases, moreover, there has been evasion and bootlegging; in other cases the office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply has been openly defied.

Faced now with the prospect of inflationary price advances, legislative action can no longer prudently be postponed. Our national safety demands that we take steps at once to extend, clarify and strengthen the authority for the Government to act in the interest of the general welfare.

For the Duration

Legislation should include authority to establish ceilings for prices and rents, to purchase materials and commodities when necessary, to assure price stability, and to deal more extensively with excesses in the field of installment credit. To be effective, such authority must be flexible and subject to exercise through license or regulations under expeditious and workable administrative procedures. Like other defense legislation, it should expire with the passing of the need, within a limited time after the end of the emergency.

The concept of a price ceiling is already familiar to us as a result of our own World War experience. Prices are not fixed or frozen; an upper limit alone is set. Prices may fluctuate below this limit, but they cannot go above it.

To make ceiling prices effective it will often be necessary, among other things, for the Government to increase the available supply of a commodity by purchase in this country or abroad. In other cases it will be essential to stabilize the market by buying and selling, as the exigencies of price may require.

Housing is a commodity of universal use, the supply of which cannot speedily be increased. Despite the steps taken to assume adequate housing for defense, we are already confronted with rent increases ominously reminiscent of those which prevailed during the World War. This is a development that must be arrested before rent profiteering can develop to increase the cost of living and to damage the civilian morale.

Wage Stability

Of course, there cannot be price stability if labor costs rise abnormally. Labor has far more to gain from price stability than from abnormal wage increases. For these are likely to be illusory, and quickly overtaken by sharp rises in living costs, which fall with particular hardship on the least fortunate of our workers and our old people.

There will always be need for wage adjustments from time to time to rectify inequitable situations. But labor as a whole will fare best from a labor policy which recognizes that wages in the defense industries should not substantially exceed the prevailing wage rates in comparable non-defense industries where fair labor policies have been maintained. Already through the efforts of the National Defense Mediation Board and wage stabilization committees wage standards are being established and a measure of wage stability is being brought to particular industries. It is expected that such activities will be continued, extended and made increasingly effective.

I recognize that the obligation not to seek an excessive profit from the defense emergency rests with equal force on labor and on industry, and that both must assume their responsibilities if we are to avoid inflation.

I also recognize that we may expect the wholehearted and voluntary cooperation of labor only when it has been assured a reasonable and stable income in terms of the things money will buy, and equal restraint or sacrifice on the part of all others who participate in the defense program. This means not only a reasonable stabilization of prices and the cost of living, but the effective taxation of excess profits and purchasing power. In this way alone can the Nation be protected from the evil consequences of a chaotic struggle for gains which must prove either illusory or unjust, and which must lead to the disaster of unchecked inflation.

Big Naval Base Planned by Hitler

Berlin, July 30 (AP).—Adolf Hitler himself drew the plans for a German naval base on the French west coast described as "the largest ever built," a German propaganda company reporter's dispatch said today.

Fritz Todt, builder of Germany's Siegfried Line, handed Hitler's original sketches to the commander of the U-boat force recently when the navy took over the completed works, the dispatch said. The construction was "the work of the Fuehrer. His first plans were followed," Todt was quoted as saying.
